BUTLER ALTERS USUAL TACTICS IN SENATE RACE

Candidate in Bay State Far From Being Inept in Politics.

DISPLAYS PROGRESS IN GAME'S TRAINING

Impression Is Gained He Learned to Be Human From Coolidge.

ODDS ARE BELIEVED STACKED AGAINST HIM

Friends Express Amazement at Some of Figures Who Aid in Fight.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 21.—Win or lose this year, former Senator W. M. Butler is not the same cold-blooded business man, politically inept, that Washington used to know. The gentleman has progressed in political training.

His associates complain that he has not yet acquired the knack of remembering faces or of appearing to remember them, and, of course, that is bad, but as compared with what he was a few years ago he might be called the finished politician. One gets the impression that he has been sitting late hours at the feet of his friend, that political sage, Calvin Coolidge.

For example, Senator Dave Walsh went out to Montana to help the dry senator, Tom Walsh. Now he is back saying that prohibition is a big issue in this State and that everybody should vote for the wet Marcus Coolidge.

High-Toned 4 Years Ago.

Four years ago the dignified and high-toned Butler could not have brought himself to ridiculing Walsh for this. Of what moment did that have in the destiny of peoples? He would have asked. Surely voters were not influenced by little things like that.

But four years have wrought a change in Mr. Butler. He has learned that little things like this do enter into our political life, and, as a result, you should hear him laughing at Dave Walsh all over the State.

There is another thing—four years ago Mr. Butler could not even laugh.

It would seem that the odds are all stacked against the man. He is running as a dry in a State that votes wet in every referendum it has, and he is running against the Democratic trend. The campaign he is making excites the admiration. Should he win, he should be received with open arms by Jim Watson, J. Ham Lewis and Tom Heflin, whose campaigning abilities are criteria for those who want to succeed in the political game, not that they are three of a kind by any means. He will, indeed, probably shock them at his ready understanding of their language, so far has he come along in the last four years.

Friends Were Amazed.

Look back at his primary campaign. Some of his high-toned friends are still expressing amazement over some of the fellows he surrounded himself with in that fight. Old Butler, too, the fellow who made enmities galore when he was Republican national chairman because he simply could not stand to deal with the many shady elements that haunt a national chairman's door.

They say up here, those Puritan friends of his who are alarmed at what that Butler boy is coming to, that he had every old political hanger-on in the State with him in his primary campaign. Oh, and don't think they did not beseech him with their deep-throated broad "A's" to get rid of them.

But Mr. Butler, a man of many of those old New England inhibitions four years ago, seems to have broken over the traces and set out recklessly

Bush Killing Suspect Is Silent on Arrival

Man Taken in Pittsburgh Questioned; Two Others Sought.

Handcuffed to Detective Sergt. Thomas Sweeney, Frank Mahoney maintained a sullen silence as he arrived in Washington from Pittsburgh at 9:52 o'clock last night, to face a warrant charging him with the murder of Louis Bush, wealthy philanthropist and bus owner, who was shot to death in the rear of his local home on October 6.

Ducking his head as photographers' flashes blazed, Mahoney was led to the Union Station substation of the Metropolitan police, where he was fed and grilled by Detective Sergt. Joe

PINCHOT AND DAVIS DISPUTE HOOVER AID

Former's Claim of Support for Keystone Ticket Is Denied by Latter.

WHITE HOUSE RETICENT

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Whether President Hoover has indorsed the entire Republican ticket in the forthcoming election in Pennsylvania was a disputed question in the Keystone State tonight.

Gifford Pinchot, Republican gubernatorial nominee, in a radio address at Washington, Pa., today said:

"President Hoover has sent word by Secretary James J. Davis, one of his Cabinet officers, that he stands for and desires the election of the whole Republican ticket in Pennsylvania. And no one who has the slightest knowledge of national affairs can doubt that the election of the whole Republican ticket in Pennsylvania is most necessary."

Mr. Davis is the Republican nominee for United States senator from Pennsylvania.

Yesterday in an address at a Republican rally at Uniontown, at which Mr. Pinchot also spoke, Secretary Davis said:

"The President has not indorsed any candidate and he can not even indorse me and I am a member of his Cabinet. The late President Wilson

WARBURG ATTACKS BRITAIN ON ZIONISM

Banker Resigns Chairmanship; Like Lord Melchett, Cites "Cruel Betrayal."

WEIZMANN MAKES PLEA

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The Jewish Telegraph Agency tonight made public a statement by Felix M. Warburg, banker, denouncing the British declaration of policy in Palestine as a "cruel and unfair betrayal," and announcing his resignation as chairman of the administrative committee of the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

Mr. Warburg has called a meeting of the American members of the committee for tomorrow and will then announce his resignation. His statement charged that Lord Passfield, British colonial secretary, had misled him, and caused him "to be the innocent vehicle of misstatements" to the executive meeting of the administrative committee in Berlin last summer.

"I told my associates that the proposals of the government would include the issuing of bonds or guarantees of the British government for the agricultural development of Palestine, for Arabs and Jews, under a commission of three with a British chairman, and with an Arab and a Jewish member," said the statement.

BLAST CLAIMS 131 VICTIMS IN GERMAN MINE

140 Still Below Earth Awaiting Rescue After Alsdorf Tragedy.

CAUSED BY EXPLOSION OF TON OF DYNAMITE

NOISE AT FIRST HELD THAT OF EARTHQUAKE

Cause of Catastrophe 1,200 Feet Below Surface Is Not Yet Known.

Berlin, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The Wolff News Agency said late tonight that the known dead totaled 131 so far in the dynamite blast at the Anna Mine in Alsdorf early today. The agency added that 35 bodies had not yet been brought to the surface and said that 140 men still were down in the mine awaiting rescue.

Alsdorf, Germany, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—A terrific explosion of dynamite in the No. 2 shaft of the Anna Mine here early this morning killed at least 99 persons and injured 98, with the probability that more would be discovered as rescue work continued through the night.

The latest figures were established by officials of the mining company at midnight and the work of seeking other bodies or attempting to rescue some 150 imprisoned men went on without interruption.

Twenty of the deaths were caused by the collapse of the administration building on the surface as the force of a ton of dynamite shook the surrounding countryside. The others were crushed as avalanches of debris came down upon them.

Miners' Children Mourn.

The explosion, which occurred 1,200 feet below the surface, dealt death and destruction for miles around and brought grief to the 10,000 inhabitants of this mining town. All day long weeping wives and children waited outside the pit mouth.

Apparently there were three explosions. The first, a gas blast, caused the dynamite stored in one of the shafts to explode.

The great force of this upheaval blew up gasoline tanks in a building on the surface, and the administration building also collapsed, inflicting a score of casualties.

Mine officials said that part of the difficulty in estimating casualties lay in the fact that many of the 666 miners who went down on the day shift escaped safely but were so frightened that they did not check out with the company.

Efforts to Reach Entombed Men.

The 150 imprisoned men are at a depth of 1,550 feet, and ceaseless efforts are being made to reach them. Damaged ventilation and pumping machinery has been repaired to facilitate the work.

When the blast occurred the first thought of the countryside was of an earthquake, with panic-stricken country folk for miles around fleeing into the open.

This was the second large German mine disaster within four months, the previous one being at Neurode, Silesia, with a death roll of more than 150.

Experts said that the cause of today's explosion could not be stated with certainty until a complete investigation had been made. Rescue work was hindered today by the fact that the explosion made the main entrance of the mine impassable. This made it necessary that victims be carried to shafts of the Maria Mine, several miles distant, by an underground route.

U. S. TO DEMAND CONVICTION OF CAMPBELL TODAY AFTER 12TH JURYMAN IS SELECTED

200 Veniremen Are Called to Complete Panel in Baker Killing.

COLLINS WILL STATE PROSECUTION'S AIMS

Government to Summon Physicians as First Witnesses.

SLAIN GIRL'S CHUMS NEXT TO TAKE STAND

Defense Expected to Stress Condition of Victim's Body at Autopsy.

Another juror must be seated in the District Supreme Court today before the voice of Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins will be heard to demand conviction, and possibly the death penalty, for Herbert M. Campbell, who, the Government says, killed Mary Baker.

When court convenes today 200 jurors, constituting a special venire, will appear for examination to fill the vacant chair. All of the jurors now in the box are acceptable to the Government and Chief Defense Attorney Charles H. Smith has indicated that he, too, is satisfied with them.

Before noon, Mr. Collins expects to make his opening address, in which he will outline the case which the prosecution hopes to prove to the jury against Campbell.

Doctors to Be Called First.

Mr. Collins will then call his first witnesses, who will be Dr. A. Donald Magruder, Dr. Benjamin Swain and Dr. W. C. Welburn, to testify regarding the condition of the girl's body when they performed an autopsy.

Then Mr. Collins will call Miss Ines Eyre and Miss Ora Smith, friends of the dead girl, who will tell the story of their attendance at the Church of the Epiphany and the time that they left the girl a few blocks from the church.

There is a possibility, said Mr. Collins, that Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Wood and Francis T. Rice will be placed on the stand today to tell of the attack on Miss Baker in her automobile in the Ellipse. The Woods will say under examination, says the Government, that Campbell strongly resembles the assailant.

Mr. Smith, however, intends to subject the doctors to a rigorous cross-examination regarding the condition of the girl's body in view of the findings of Dr. Albert H. Hamilton, for the defense, who believes that the girl was not slain in the automobile. Absence of powder marks or burns on the girl's clothing is the reason for his belief.

Experts to Appear Later.

Ballistics experts will not enter into the Government's case until near the close which is expected on Friday or Saturday. The plan of the Government is to develop the case chronologically, first telling of the assault, abandonment of the automobile, flight of a man through Arlington Cemetery and stories of witnesses who saw the car on the night of April 11 on the spot where it was found on Cemetery road near Military road.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins, who is presiding at the trial, stopped the session yesterday when only 11 men remained in the jury box after 76 prospective jurors had been examined.

In their examination the defense utilized 13 of its 20 peremptory challenges, and the Government 5. Most of the others were excused by the court when they indicated that they had formed opinions in the strange murder, which would not be obliterated by the evidence presented; or had conscientious scruples against imposition of the death penalty.

Eleven Jurymen Chosen.

As constituted when the court adjourned the jury was composed of: Charles T. Jones, Vernon M. Norr,

BRISTLING PHRASES HURLED IN DANVILLE

Each Side Goes to Extremes in Describing Other's Strike Stand.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Danville, Va., Oct. 21.—On the facade of the Elks Club building on Danville's main street is an inscription that bespeaks the charitable spirit of that organization. It says:

"The faults of our brothers we write upon the sands, their virtues upon the tablets of love, and memory."

But no such charitable spirit marks the cotton mills strike that is in progress here now. On the contrary, there is only bitterness. Faults are written, not on the sands, but in bristling statements that read like court indictments. Virtues are mentioned not at all.

In the opinion of Harry R. Fitzgerald, powerful president of the Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills, the labor leaders who are directing the strike are simply "foreign agitators," men and women who came here

YOUNG WOMAN, 20, BEATS OFF ATTACK

Screams Attract Motorist and Assailant Flees Into Darkness.

Miss Maurine Fritts, 20 years old, of 7497 Blair road northwest, last night beat off a man who attempted to attack her while she was walking on Blair road between Georgia avenue and the railroad bridge near the Bliss Electrical School, in Takoma Park.

When the man made his appearance and started to molest her, Miss Fritts screamed, attracting the attention of a motorist on Georgia avenue, who came to her rescue. When the automobile approached, Miss Fritts' assailant fled.

Accompanied by her benefactor, whose name was not disclosed in the police report, Miss Fritts at once told Montgomery County police at the Silver Spring Substation.

Policeman J. B. Nolte of that station, with police of the Thirteenth Precinct and a headquarters detective, immediately went to the scene and searched the neighborhood for suspicious characters. They were unsuccessful, however, and Miss Fritts

Hawks Takes 63 Minutes For Capital-New York Hop

Races Through Snowstorms to Better 71 Minutes From Metropolis to Washington Earlier in Day; Feat Demonstrates Plane to Naval Officials.

Flying from Washington to Valley Stream, Long Island, a suburb of New York City, in 63 minutes yesterday afternoon, Capt. Frank Hawks, noted aviator, broke all records for speed between the two points, covering the distance of 225 miles at an average speed of 212.5 miles per hour, even though encountering two snow storms.

Setting a pace for travel between the two cities never before approached by a human being, Capt. Hawks was simply bettering slightly a record which he had established earlier in the day on his trip from Valley Stream to Washington.

On that trip Capt. Hawks sped along the airways between New York and the Capital at 185 miles per hour to do the distance in 1 hour and 11 minutes.

While airmen were still discussing this remarkable feat which established a new record, the famous flier was shattering the same day's mark on his return trip. In 1927, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, just back from his flight to Paris, got up one morning in New York, flew to Washington, spent a half hour here and went back to New York, all in 4½ hours, which in those days was considered quite a feat. Today's flying by Capt. Hawks cut that time in half.

Capt. Hawks, back in a New York hotel after an ironic automobile ride from the Valley Stream field which required exactly 13 minutes less time than his Washington-to-New York hop, said he penetrated snowstorms on the return journey near Wilmington, Del., and near Philadelphia. He had slightly unfavorable crosswinds on both laps, he said, with a headwind on the southbound trip which proved an aid while returning.

The purpose of Capt. Hawks' visit

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Those who are constantly agitating, either for political or publicity purposes, for a revision of German reparations, and who are trying to connect them with the European debts owed the United States, are doing distinct injury to the world economic situation. They arouse new uncertainties and inflame old animosities. We should regard these questions as settled. Let Europe adjust its own difficulties. The present rates of payment can be met by all countries concerned.

Those saying that if Germany defaults reparations other countries can not pay the United States debts are overreaching themselves. That means that if reparations are not collected from Germany they must be collected from the taxpayers of the United States.

We must all suffer from the consequences of a World War. It is now costing our taxpayers about $2,000,000,000 each year. To claim that cancellation would be profitable to international trade only means that a subsidy of so much tax money would be profitable. But that would not meet the situation. Paying the cost of the war is a moral obligation. It can not be evaded by trade profits. It is best to meet it and stop discussing it. The world wants certainty, not agitation.

400 at Campbell's Trial; All Have Decided Opinions

Crowd Forced to Stand Outside Courtroom Pending Selection of Jury in Baker Case; Defendant Seems in Good Spirits.

Convinced of his guilt, or sure of his innocence, more than 400 persons followed Herbert Campbell to his murder trial yesterday, not so much for the purpose of hearing familiar testimony, but to learn if their judgments are to be borne out by the weight of evidence. Most of them were women.

None of the many interviewed had open minds. They resembled nothing so much as a football crowd of loyal alumni, militantly for or against. One young woman, however, admitted that she had come to see Campbell's "girl friends," and to compare them with the attractively dressed Mrs. Campbell, sitting a few feet from her husband. All appeared to have forgotten Mary Baker, the girl whom Campbell is alleged to have slain on the night of April 11 last. Mary Baker was gone, but Campbell was present, and about him revolved their theories and intuitions.

Both theorists and searchers for a Roman holiday, however, were barred from the courtroom pending the selection of a jury, which may or may not be completed today.

Campbell arrived at the courthouse shortly after 9 o'clock in a van with several other prisoners. He sat with his attorneys and his brother, Frank, while Mrs. Campbell, her sister-in-law and Campbell's father, took seats just beyond the railing. All appeared to be in good spirits, Campbell seeming perfectly unconcerned. His wife, wearing modish fox furs and a black velvet dress, chatted quietly with her sister-in-law, while the father of the defendant tapped the floor nervously with his cane.

Only once did the Virginia Highlands realty man show as much as Vernon E. Chappell, Robert Chinn, William O. Rabbitt, George Ellis, A. Provost Shaw, Phillip Little, Elmer H. Bailey, jr., George A. Kleney, jr., and Paul J. Seltzer.

When court opened Campbell was seated on the front line of the defense and Government counsel.

Mr. Collins, and his aids, John J. Sirica and James Kirkland, were seated in front of the witness stand, and Mr. Smith and the assistant defense attorneys, Lucian H. Vandoren and Herbert S. Ward were near the defendant.

Questions to Veniremen.

Mr. Collins and Mr. Smith submitted to the court a list of questions to be asked the veniremen. They were: Do you know any of the counsel? Do you know any of the witnesses in this case? Do you know the defendant or any members of his family? Were you acquainted with Miss Baker or any member of her family? Have you formed any opinion in this case as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant?

Have you any conscientious scruples against the death penalty? Would you convict on circumstantial evidence? Have you formed any opinion or would you be prejudiced against any testimony given by ballistics experts?

Campbell manifested a keen interest in selection of the jury. For the most part he sat with his head resting on the thumb of his left hand as he saw the jury box weeded out by the court when some failed to qualify.

Women Are Challenged.

On three occasions Mr. Collins expressed his satisfaction of the jury in the box only to see a vacancy created when the defense used one of its challenges.

Defense attorneys showed that they were prejudiced against having a woman on the jury, having challenged every one who was not excused for cause.

The panel in Judge Adkins' court was quickly exhausted and juries from other courts were summoned. This caused a repetition of the explanation of the case by Mr. Collins and the reading of the list of witnesses to be called by the Government.

One Exception Noted.

Only one exception to the court's action was recorded yesterday. Mr. Vandoren objected when the court excused J. I. Drexel, 1424 W street, because he said that a greater amount of circumstantial evidence than direct evidence would be required to convince him that the defendant was guilty.

The monotony of the questioning was somewhat relieved when one prospective colored juror told the court that he had an "opinion who did it but couldn't prove it."

As court announced its adjournment Mrs. Campbell, and the aged but sturdy father of the defendant, Loudoun Campbell; Frank G. Campbell, his brother, and Mrs. Frank G. Campbell, went to his side. The father and the defendant embraced before the defendant was taken to a cell on the lower floor.

Father, Son Photographed.

Members of the family accompanied him and Mrs. Campbell remained with her husband until the prisoner's van came for him at 2:30. Mr. Ward, of the defense counsel, escorted Mrs. Campbell.

The prisoner's father, brother and sister-in-law, Mrs. Frank Campbell, left the courthouse in a taxicab. Before leaving, the elderly Campbell posed for pictures with Frank Campbell.

"Yes, I'll pose," he said. "I'm not ashamed that Herbert Campbell is my son. I'm proud of him."

Elder Campbell Speaks.

When he entered the taxicab he turned to a Washington Post reporter and said: "And you can say this for me, too. When my boy is acquitted that doesn't mean that the Campbell case is finished. It will mean that it has just begun. And those who have been jumping and fiddling will begin to pay the penalty."

The old gentleman emphasized his conclusion by thumping his cane on the floor of the taxicab.

"And what he says, goes for me, too," said Frank.

Prospective Jurors Excused.

The following prospective jurors were excused because they had formed opinions that could not be altered by the evidence: Samuel C. Watkins, Miss Olga Sieverling, M. E. Winston, Oscar R. Ellis, C. Edelen, Mrs. Augusta Noack, Charles Turner, Walter S. Wise, Eugene Wise, Thomas Wingfield, Howell Peeples, Henry Waters, Miss Dorothea Stinchcomb, Miss Lillian Lepp, P. A. Bacon, Edward Chase and T. Walter Jones.

The following were excused because they had conscientious scruples against imposition of the death penalty: H. C. MacFate, W. L. Veit, T. H. Thatcher, C. B. Griffith, L. F. Peake, C. H. Mersch, R. C. Towles, James C. Patterson, Albert P. Dobbins, Charles L. Rouse and Ernest C. Day.

Among others excused by the court and challenged by opposing attorneys were: Miss Frances Barkley, Miss Miriam Cavanaugh, Mrs. Henry H. Gilligan, Henry G. Albrecht, G. E. Roberts, Max Yaffe, W. E. Benton, F. H. Rollins, Alfred A. Nelson, Leo Spaight, V. Absher, Michael Lightman, Robert H. Parkhurst and S. Dallas Tucker.

Habeas Corpus Denied In Dry Agent Assault

Miami, Fla., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter refused today to issue a writ of habeas corpus for George Moore, of West Palm Beach, who is held in the Palm Beach County Jail on a Federal indictment for resisting and assaulting a Federal officer.

Moore killed F. R. Patterson and Robert K. Moncure, Federal prohibition agents, January 19, 1929, while they were raiding his home. He was acquitted of murdering Moncure. Recently he was indicted on a charge of attacking Patterson.

Tokyo, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The Japanese cruiser Abukuma, while participating today in naval maneuvers off the southern coast of the main Island of Hondo, collided with an unidentified warship and was badly damaged. No casualties were reported, but the Abukuma was taken into tow for the Yokosuka naval base in Tokyo Bay.

'BUGS' MORAN HELD AS LINGLE SUSPECT

Capone's Reputed Foe Yields Quietly to Raiders and Claims Innocence.

WOULD GO DUCK HUNTING

Chicago, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The law caught up with George ("Bugs") Moran today, harassing him with such charges as vagrancy and carrying concealed weapons, and questioning him about numerous slaying and other major crimes.

The search that started June 9, when Jake Lingle, Tribune reporter, fell mortally wounded in a pedestrian tunnel, ended early today in a small roadhouse west of Waukegan, Ill. The Lake County (Waukegan) States's attorney and five private detectives made the raid, and Moran, after he saw who it was, made no resistance.

Lingle was a close friend of "Scarface Al" Capone, so when the reporter was shot down from behind, the police inclined to the theory that the gang headed by Capone's archenemy, Moran, might have had something to do with it.

Moran had disappeared, however, and when Jack Zuta, Moran's lieutenant, was killed as a supposed sequel to the Lingle slaying, the plot thickened and the search for the gang leader intensified.

There were numerous other things the police wanted to talk to Moran about, including the unsolved St. Valentine's Day massacre of seven of his henchmen last year.

Moran was charged with vagrancy and carrying concealed weapons by Waukegan authorities and released on bonds of $10,000 into custody of Chicago officials, who brought him here on one of the "public enemy" warrants issued several weeks ago for major gangsters.

He was put through the identification bureau and kept carefully from the view of reporters and others.

What he told the police, if anything, was not revealed, but Moran told reporters in Waukegan that the vagrancy charge was "ridiculous."

"They can't make a vagrant out of an active business man," Moran said. "I am vice president of the Central Cleaners & Dyers, and actively connected with the business."

It has been generally agreed for some time that Moran is no longer in active control of what was known as the "North Side mob." Police believe he was driven out by the extensive Capone organization, his hold on the North Side beer trade being further lessened by the Valentine's day massacre and the slaying of Zuta, the "brains" of his gang.

Moran, however, had another story.

"I have been out of the booze business and all other rackets for four years," he said. "I have been going straight and I intend to go straight."

"When Lingle and Zuta were killed I was up in the middle of Canada on a hunting trip. I'm going on another when I get out of this mess I make $25,000 a year from my interest in the Central Cleaners and I don't want anything to do with the rackets.

Moran denied to reporters that he had ever negotiated with Al Capone for peace.

"I never negotiated for peace with Al Capone," he declared. "I never made peace in my life with anybody that fought me. Al is living his life and I'm living mine. Capone's running Cook County? Let him run it. I'm out of the rackets.

For Sake of Family.

"I've taken a rap for things all over the country—beer hustling in Los Angeles—bank robberies in some place else. I'd be the busiest guy in the world if half of those raps were on the up and up."

When Moran denied he had ever had anything to do with Jack Zuta, reporters reminded him that his name was found in the slain gangster's records.

"I can't explain that," he commented, "unless somebody was using my name. I never got a cut from Zuta."

Moran said he had a wife and child and for that reason wanted to lead a quiet life.

Going Duck Hunting.

"I have a board meeting at the Central Cleaners this week. Then I'm going duck hunting."

He was asked about Leo Mongovern, his reputed right hand man, with whom he is reported by Wisconsin authorities to have spent the summer at Bemidji, Minn.

"The newspapers said he was dead, didn't they?" he asked. "Well, maybe they're right. Mongoven's dead as far as I'm concerned."

It was State's Attorney A. V. Smith, of Lake County, Wis., who earlier today said his information was that Mongoven was not dead but had been living at Bemidji with Moran. He said he wanted to question Moran, not only about Zuta's killing, but also about the triple slaying of Joe Bertche, Sam Pellar and Frank Quirk, Chicago gangsters, at Gross Lake, Wis., last May.

Placed in Solitary Confinement.

Moran, after going through the long process of being questioned and having his record taken anew, was placed in solitary confinement on one of the top floors of the detective bureau under a special guard.

Moran was not the only one who kept authorities busy today. A police sergeant, whose name was not revealed, was accused by Police Commissioner John Alcock of having been caught taking money from a gangster. Neither Alcock nor Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne would comment on the case, other than to say they hoped to send the officer "over the road."

Detective Chief Norton went before the grand jury to tell what he knew about the disappearance of police files, later found in possession of Capone gangsters. His testimony was not disclosed.

BUY REAL ESTATE NOW

The limited area of the District of Columbia and its constantly increasing population is definite assurance of increasing real estate values. Despite price fluctuations, that are occasioned by temporary conditions, the trend is consistently upward. We are now at the bottom of one of these fluctuations, and those who purchase real estate now will gain the advantage of a return to normal levels with subsequent increases in value . . . The same factors of safety and increasing worth favor present investment in real estate mortgage securities, and the purchase of these securities also constitutes a public service as it encourages real estate ownership.

a flicker of perturbation, and that was when Justice Adkins asked the first prospective juror if he had any objection to capital punishment. Campbell twitched his head upon hearing the ominous query, but maintained perfect poise as the question was monotonously put to other talesmen.

Dozens of photographers, barred from the courthouse, stalked about the grounds and picketed entrances, while crayon artists at the press table sought to capture the expressions of the judge, attorneys and the defendant. Frank Campbell remained at his brother's side through the tedious examination of jurors, frequently going into huddles with defense attorneys.

Women Are Rejected.

The six or seven women examined indicated a desire to serve on the jury, several of them saying that although they had formed an opinion, they would yield to the weight of the evidence. All, however, were rejected.

While the examination was proceeding, the line of would-be spectators grew like a matinee crowd, finally extending two abreast across the lobby of the building and around into the corridors. Others waited outside the building in the hope that a jury would be selected.

Two women appeared at the courthouse before 8 o'clock in the morning and patiently waited until the building was opened. Heading the line, they remained until court was adjourned at 1 o'clock, when they left with the announced intention of being the first on the scene today.

Embraced by Wife.

When the proceedings were recessed Mrs. Campbell hastened to kiss her husband, who was embraced by his father. Campbell slapped the elder man on the back, telling him not to worry. Mrs. Campbell told reporters that there "is nothing to it."

"I wouldn't be here if he were guilty," she added. "It's all a mistake that will soon be righted." After giving his wife a small box of cough drops, Campbell was placed in an automobile and taken back to the jail. The crowd adjourned to the side entrance to watch him depart. To elude photographers, Mrs. Campbell dashed from a rear door with a defense attorney, ran across the street and into a building on the corner of Fifth and E streets. She left by a rear door, ran down an alley and jumped into a cab which rounded the corner.

Campbell's father consented to pose for photographers on condition that they would quote him as "being proud of the fact that Herbert Campbell is my boy." Frank Campbell also posed for his picture.

$15,000 Gambling Debt Suit Filed

Payment on Note Refused by Vice President of St. Louis Firm.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Depositions in a suit to collect a $15,000 gambling debt from E. R. Handlan, vice president of the Handlan-Buck Manufacturing Co., here, were filed today in St. Louis Circuit Court.

Louis E. Goldsmith, described as the "greeter and mixer" of the Club Forest, a night club and gambling house near New Orleans, is seeking to recover the $15,000 on a note signed by Handlan which Goldsmith claims he purchased from Manassee Karger, manager of the club, innocent of knowledge that it represented settlement of a gambling debt.

Handlan said he would fight the claim on the ground it represents a gambling transaction and therefore is illegal. He declined to disclose how or where he gambled.

WOMAN, IN PRAYER, DENIES KILLING GIRL

Stepmother Kneels at Bier of O'Loughlin Child and Sobs Innocence.

FATHER HUNTS SLAYER

Denver, Colo., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, kneeling in prayer before the body of her stepdaughter, Leona O'Loughlin, 10, denied tonight she had killed the child.

"So help me God!" she cried, thrusting her arms high, "I know nothing about this death."

Denied freedom on a writ of habeas corpus, Mrs. O'Loughlin then was returned from the mortuary to the city jail for further questioning in connection with the slaying of Leona, whose body was found in Berkeley Lake here last Thursday.

Leo O'Loughlin, city detective and father of the child, seriously ill a week with an ailment diagnosed as resulting from the eating of ground glass, left his hospital bed today to assist in the investigation.

Will Take Active Part.

"My first duty is to give Leona a proper burial," O'Loughlin said. "After that I am going to take an active part in the investigation of her death. I want to see justice done, regardless of whose toes are trampled upon."

The child is to be buried tomorrow at Fort Collins, Colo., by the side of her mother, who died a year ago. Mrs. O'Loughlin made her first appearance in court as the writ was sought by her attorneys. District Judge James C. Starkweather set 10 o'clock Friday morning as the time for a formal hearing. He warned, however, that she would not be released "pending a reasonable investigation of this terrible thing."

Physicians say laboratory tests have indicated the child and her father were fed ground glass. The detective became ill Tuesday night and was taken to a hospital. The child's disappearance was not discovered until Wednesday. Her body was found next day.

Investigate New Glass Story.

Police today were investigating a story by the detective's father, Dennis O'Loughlin, 74, who said that six weeks ago he found ground glass in sugar at his home at Fort Collins. He said he made the discovery a short time after a dinner at which his son, Leo, and Leona, as well as Mrs. O'Loughlin's son by a first marriage, Douglas Millican; Mrs. O'Loughlin's sister, Mrs. Maybell Shannon and another son, Frank O'Loughlin, were guests. The sugar was not eaten by any members of the dinner party.

Other developments today were the discovery the detective last week had made his daughter beneficiary of two life insurance policies totaling $2,200, and the questioning of Frank O'Loughlin by police. O'Loughlin's first wife formerly was the beneficiary of the insurance policies. Police said they questioned Frank O'Loughlin concerning his relations with his brother's wife. Frank was a boarder at the detective's home. He left police headquarters after making a statement.

California Cigar Maker Burns Self at Stake

San Jose, Calif., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Achilles Alloggi, 60, a cigar maker, tired of life, committed suicide by chaining himself to a stake in unfrequented bottom land by a creek, drenching himself with gasoline and setting himself afire. His charred body was found today.

Alloggi left a note to a daughter saying his death would "be better for all concerned."

FEW IN MADRID SEE BURIAL OF WEYLER

DYING WISH IS REALIZED

Madrid, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Less than 40 persons today witnessed the burial in San Lorenzo Cemetery of Valeriano Weyler, Spains last captain general of the old school and her last surviving figure of a vivid chapter of military history across the seas that faded with the present century.

No crowds lined the rainy streets as the body of the aged warrior was rushed in an automobile hearse to its last resting place.

No one except the family, a small group of friends and a few newspapermen, who had been watching the Weyler house knew what was happening. The family held the funeral a full two hours before the time announced for the purpose of avoiding crowds. They were successful in this and the captain general's last dying wish for a simple funeral was realized.

Rejected State Funeral.

The interment was unostentatious and the captain general's body was placed in the grave and the simple ceremonies were over 30 minutes after the body had left the house and long before the people had planned to line the streets and go to the cemetery to see the funeral.

By his own will Gen. Weyler rejected all the gorgeous ceremony of a state funeral. He, who in life had passed in processions where multitudes gave him honor, rode in death through indifferent streets unheeding his passage, because it was unknown.

Crowds Are Disappointed.

The body, in a simple wooden coffin, went into the grave wrapped in a white robe. A priest, unknown to prominenece, who is stationed at the cemetery to perform the last rites, said the final ritual.

Cold gray skies gave intermittent drizzling rain. The earth was piled in. The handful of spectators went away. There were no guns, no salutes, no uniforms. An hour or so later people generally began to hear of the funeral and disappointment was expressed everywhere. But the captain general had won, for it was not long ago he said: "I have seen much of wordly honors and know they are worth nothing"

The captain general, who was 92, died yesterday.

Lamont du Pont Aids Hastings for Senate

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Lamont du Pont, president of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., in a letter today informed United States Senator Daniel O. Hastings, Republican senatorial candidate, that he would support him in the present campaign although he did not agree with him on the prohibition question. Senator Hastings is being supported by the drys.

Pierre du Pont, chairman of the DuPont board, and Irenee du Pont, vice chairman, are supporting former Senator Thomas F. Bayard, the Democratic candidate for senator. Mr. Bayard favors repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Baby Zeppelin "Air Yacht" Explodes, Injuring Three

Toms River, N. J., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—An explosion on Capt. Anton Heinen's baby zeppelin "Air Yacht" today hurled three men 40 feet to the ground and wrecked the dirigible's engine and gondola.

The airship, recently completed by the widely known designer and pilot of dirigibles, was tied to a temporary mooring mast in preparation for a flight when the explosion occurred. Two members of the crew and a man who was going for a ride were seriously lacerated and bruised by the fall.

The gas bag was undamaged, however, and a few hours after the accident, Capt. Heinen deflated it for transportation to the Heinen Air Yacht Corporation's hangar at Cape May. Officials of the company said repairs would be completed soon.

Capt. Heinen himself refused any comment on the explosion. He received wide recognition as an expert pilot when he guided the dirigible Los Angeles across the ocean from its builders in Germany for delivery to the United States Navy, and later when he brought the Shenandoah back to her mooring mast at Lakehurst after a storm tore her from her moorings.

For many years a believer in the practicability of lighter-than-air craft, Capt. Heinen perfected his air yacht with the idea that it might soon be used as widely as motor or sailing yachts.

The tiny dirigible, about 150 feet long, was given its first trial flight by the inventor, with his wife and daughter aboard, about a month ago. He flew the craft from Cape May to Atlantic City and expressed great pleasure at the ease with which it could be handled. Since then the air yacht, which had room for six passengers, made many successful flights.

Those injured in the accident were Chester Lee, Cape May, and Joseph Heck, 17, Atlantic City, members of the crew, and John K. Fall, of Sea View Park, the passenger.

Physicians at a hospital in Lakewood, said they would recover.

First reports were that the accident was caused by an explosion of a compressed air tank aboard the airship, but the Heinen Air Yacht Corporation issued a statement tonight saying it was a cylinder of the engine which exploded

A very successful newspaper correspondent once told us that he was more interested in any vital piece of today's news than the most thrilling episode recorded in yesterday's papers.

With reservations—that's a healthy mental attitude and it's one that we all need to encourage in ourselves. What happened yesterday—last month or last year—is history. We are concerned with the immediate Present—the Now and the Here.

Let us stop talking about the unpleasant yesterdays and bend our concentrated energies toward building up an economic condition that will mean security and prosperity for all of us.

We know now that there are no magicians who can in a short space of time turn our savings into fortunes. We have learned through experience that the only sure way to future financial peace of mind is by conservative investments.

To lay a solid foundation for your family's future, put your savings into real estate NOW, while prices are so very low. Property bought at this time is bound to increase in value—slowly for a little while—but steadily and surely—because Real Estate is always first to feel the impetus of renewed financial activity.

To build a new period of prosperity, we must cast aside the shadow of fear and uncertainty that has depressed us. We must stop this looking backward and turn squarely to a constructive future.

EXPENSES OF G.O.P. LISTED AT $573,173

Wrigley and Forstmann Each Gave $10,000; Report Made by Democrats.

BARUCH IS CHIEF BACKER

(Associated Press.)

The Republican national committee reported expenditures of $573,173 in the campaign this year up to October 20 in its detailed statement submitted yesterday to the clerk of the House.

The Democratic senatorial campaign committee in its report listed expenditures of $22,085 between September 1 and October 20. Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier, was chief contributor to this committee with a gift of $20,000.

Reports for this period which are required by law have not been received so far from the Republican senatorial campaign committee nor from the Democratic national committee.

Of the half-million dollar Republican campaign chest, $120,000 has been turned over to the Republican congressional committee which is in charge of the drive for Republican members of the House, and $55,000 has been given for the Republican senatorial campaign committee.

Wrigley Heavy Contributor.

The heavy contributors to the Republican national committee fund were William J. Wrigley, of Chicago, and Julius Forstmann, of Passaic, N. J., with donations of $10,000 each.

Other Republican contributors included Ogden Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, $5,000; Dwight Morrow, of New Jersey, $5,000; Mrs. Elizabeth C. Morrow, $5,000; T. M. Girdler, of Cleveland, $5,000; Mr. and Mrs. James E. Davidson, of Bay City, Mich., $5,000; William H. Crocker, of San Francisco, $5,000; Lammot du Pont, Wilmington, Del., $5,000; F. V. du Pont, $5,000; L. F. Swift, Chicago, $2,500; Mrs. A. S. Taft, of Cincinnati, $2,000; Dwight Davis, governor general of the Philippines, $1,000; Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles, $2,500; Harry J. Bauer, Los Angeles, $2,500; H. and M. H. Fleishhacker, San Francisco, $1,000, and Wallace M. Alexander, San Francisco, $1,000.

Pay for Tabloid Editor.

The Republican report also showed payment of $2,000 in salary to David Hinshaw, the editor of Washington, a tabloid newspaper being issued "to tell the story of the Hoover administration," and a payment of $1,500 to Hinshaw for postage.

The Democratic senatorial committee reported the following allotments of funds to candidates: Thomas P. Gore, Oklahoma, $1,000; Thomas F. Bayard, Delaware, $1,500; M. M. Neely, West Virginia, $2,500; M. M. Logan, Kentucky, $2,000; Thomas J. Walsh, Montana, $1,000; John H. Bankhead, Alabama, $1,000; H. H. Schwartz, Wyoming, $1,000; Edward P. Costigan, Colorado, $1,000; Robert J. Bulkley, Ohio, $2,000; and Daniel Steck, Iowa, $500.

Democrats Back Hatch.

While contributing to the candidate opposing Senator Heflin in Alabama, the Democrats have so far sent no funds to Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Democratic nominee in Nebraska opposing Senator George W. Norris, insurgent Republican.

The Democrats also sent $1,500 to C. A. Hatch for the New Mexico senatorial campaign.

Report was made of a $2,000 contribution for the campaign of Gov. Bulow, of South Dakota, who is running for the Senate on the Democratic ticket. Hubert H. D'Autremont, chairman of the Minnesota Democratic central committee, made this contribution which was forwarded to A. L. Putnam, chairman of the Democratic State committee at Pierre, South Dakota.

BITTER PHRASES RISE TO LIPS OF BOTH SIDES AT DANVILLE

to collect dues and to profit at the expense of his employes.

In the opinion of the strike leaders, Mr. Fitzgerald is an autocrat. His celebrated scheme of industrial democracy, they say, is in reality an industrial autocracy, a paternalistic scheme to keep the workers in submission and to fatten the treasury of the mill company.

It is a situation which would seem extremely distressing to President Herbert Hoover. A year or so ago, after that "Black Monday" in the stock market darkened the whole economic outlook of the United States, the President called in representatives of capital and labor. From the representatives of capital he exacted a pledge that they would try to avoid wage cuts, and from labor that they would try to avoid strikes.

Here both things have happened. The cotton mill company reduced wages by 10 per cent and the cotton mill workers now are on strike.

Four thousand of them are out, but that doesn't represent the number actually affected. Like most of those who work with their hands, the mill workers here have large families and it is estimated that the number who really must be fed out of the strike fund totals something like 15,000, nearly half of the population of Danville and its environs.

Of course, neither side in the controversy is as bad as the other side pictures it. The strike leaders are not "foreign agitators." True, Francis J. Gorman, who came here to enlist the mill employes in the United Textile Workers of America, was born in Yorkshire, England, but that doesn't mean that he is not a good American now.

As for Mr. Gorman's right hand in the strike, Miss Matilda Lindsay, she, like Mr. Fitzgerald, is from old Virginia stock. Incidentally, she was for many years an employe in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington, and even now is a member of the local bureau of the Federation of Federal Employes. Her job here is to work among the women strikers who represent 40 per cent of the 4,000 who have walked out. She is tremendously popular among the women and is regarded as the Joan of Arc of the present fight.

Fitzgerald No Villain.

Nor is the mill president, Mr. Fitzgerald, the villain he has been pictured. That he has been stubborn, that he has refused an offer of Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia to turn the controversy ov to a committee on mediation, can not be denied, but even so it is hard for the impartial observer to work up any wrath over him.

When, many years ago, Mr. Fitzgerald inaugurated his system of "industrial democracy," when he established his idealistic capital and labor "congress," with its house of representatives, senate and cabinet, when he provided cheap homes for the workers, established welfare buildings and the like, and banned night work and child labor, when he did all of these things, there is no doubt but what Mr. Fitzgerald believed that he was creating a workers paradise, one that would be held up as a model for the world.

Now that paradise that he sought to create is a place of bitterness and strife. Two years ago, a depression in the cotton goods market struck the Riverside & Dan River Co., and the company called in efficiency experts. They inaugurated the "stretch-out system," whereby the cotton mill worker is required to do far more work than he had to do before. Finally the company ordered a wage reduction of 10 per cent; ordered it, so the strikers say, without putting the question up to the company congress that had always passed on problems of that kind.

Appeal Sent to Green.

As a result of these things, the mill workers appealed to President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, and Green sent Gorman here to organize a textile workers' local. Then, three weeks ago, came the strike.

Mr. Fitzgerald's attitude perhaps is best summed up in his famous "Poster No. 192" which he issued last February. It is addressed "To All Our People."

In the poster President Fitzgerald warned the workers against "paid organizers" who had appeared in Danville. He praised the company's own system of employe representation, saying that it contained every element of collective bargaining that had any real merit. Always, he said, it had obtained for the employes the best possible wages and the best possible working conditions.

The last two years, Fitzgerald told the workers, had been difficult ones for the company. The company, he said, had been forced to curtail its output more than 25 per cent, and that was why the wage cut had been resorted to.

"Foreign Agitators" Accused.

Discussing the advent of the representatives of the American Federation of Labor, he said:

"What can such a movement do for you that you do not already have except (and this was in upper case letters) to take your money in dues to pay a lot of foreign agitators and some few disgruntled, unappreciative persons who are continually sowing seeds of discord and unhappiness?"

The attitude of the strikers is perhaps best summed up in the answer filed in the circuit court of Pittsylvania County. Industrial democracy is described in it as a "vague, theoretical system." Actually, it says, the workers had no voice in the running of the mills.

The workers, it says, were paid low wages during the war, when workers elsewhere were receiving increased wages; they were coerced by foremen and overseers and forced to vote in their congress for those things that the management wanted, and were blacklisted or fired if they did otherwise.

Finally Took Action.

"Such a system," the strikers' brief said, "was calculated to cause distrust and unrest among the workers and they finally came to the conclusion that the so-called industrial democracy had been promulgated exclusively to coerce the workers and to prevent them from organizing for their mutual betterment."

That is the gulf that separates the company and its erstwhile employes. President Fitzgerald still is convinced that his scheme of industrial democracy was a good one, and the strikers are convinced that it was bad, and are determined never to go back to it. Meanwhile a $15,000,000 cotton goods plant here is idle, and one of the biggest pay rolls in the South is cut off. The importance of the strike to organized labor in general, and the manner in which the organized workers of the country have come to the aid of the local strikers, will be explained in an article tomorrow.

Vote Fraud Is Laid To Former Judges

Four Give $3,000 Bond After Arraignments in Kansas City.

Kansas City, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Indicted for "conspiracy to injure a citizen in the exercise of his civil rights," four former Kansas City election judges were free under bond tonight after arraignment before a United States commissioner.

The judges posted bonds of $3,000 each. They appeared voluntarily late today after United States marshals received warrants from Jefferson City, where indictments were reported returned yesterday.

The investigation of vote registrations here was undertaken by W. L. Vandeventer, Federal district attorney, after party leaders charged "padding" in the precinct rolls. The judges—Sam Termini and John Veretta, Democrats, and Ronald M. Moss and Peter Costanzo, Republicans—are the first persons definitely named.

BUSH SUSPECT KEEPS SILENCE ON ARRIVAL

Waldron and others. Shortly afterwards he was whisked away to headquarters, according to Waldron, although at a late hour he had not made his appearance there.

Mahoney was arrested Sunday as he was leaving a bus in the Pennsylvania city preparatory to changing to one which would place him nearer his declared destination, Los Angeles. The man who is thought to have done the actual killing, William J. Carnell, escaped through the line of detectives who met the bus and succeeded in arresting Mahoney.

Inspector William S. Shelby, in charge of the investigation, stated last night that nothing new had been gleaned from local sources, in spite of the fact that several of the headquarters detectives have been busy trying to uncover still more evidence against the two men.

He stated, however, that the evidence they have in their possession will be placed before the United States attorney for the district with the request that the case be laid before the grand jury with a view to an indictment which, would facilitate matters when Carnell is captured, which the inspector thinks is just a matter of a few hours or days at most.

The inspector declined to comment on a report that a third man was hunted, although he did not deny it. The third man is said to be wanted in connection with the purchase of the gun with which Bush was shot as he was preparing to drive his car into the garage at the rear of his home.

Blame for the escape of Carnell in Pittsburgh was attributed yesterday to the fact that he had changed clothing after buying a ticket at the Washington offices of the Colonial Stage Co., where a description of the two men was secured. Police in Pittsburgh were looking for a man in light clothing and a hat, while Carnell had changed his clothing to a darker suit and a cap, and was not sitting with Mahoney when he arrived in the city.

In the meantime a description of Carnell has been broadcast over the Nation, particularly over the East and Middle West, where it is known that he is in hiding at the present time. Police do not believe that he will continue his journey to the California city, knowing by this time that he is being hunted for the murder.

Louis Bush left an estate valued at $380,579, according to the petition for letters of administration filed yesterday in District Supreme court. Mr. Bush left no will.

The petition was filed by William L. Bush, a son, who represents himself as the sole heir of the estate. Mr. Bush requested the court to name Maurice D. Rosenberg, president of the Bank of Commerce & Savings, and Frank W. Owings, a director of the same institution, as coadministrators with him.

The estate is said to consist of real estate assessed at $184,582 and personal property estimated at $195,897.04.

16 New Hack Stands Created.

Sixteen new hack stands, accommodating 46 taxicabs, were created by the District Commissioners yesterday on recommendation of the Police Department. The sixteen new stands brought the number of designated hack stands to 187.

DISCIPLES OF CHRIST RECEIVED BY HOOVER

President and First Lady Are Hosts to 5,000 Delegates; Tribute Paid Garfield.

CHURCH DIVISION SCORED

Disciples of Christ paused in the midst of another strenuous program yesterday in the first world convention of Churches of Christ to meet President Hoover at the White House and immediately afterward to pay honor to the member of their brotherhood who once occupied the Executive Mansion—President James A. Garfield.

The President and Mrs. Hoover promptly at 3 o'clock in the afternoon received approximately 5,000 delegates in attendance here from 25 nations, posing with the throng for photographers. President Hoover then privately met Jesse M. Bader, of Indianapolis, Ind., newly elected president of the convention; John Wyckcliffe Black, of Leicester, England, chosen president of the 1935 world convention, to be held in Leicester; Robert A. Long, wealthy lumber dealer, of Kansas City, Mo., who served as president of the international convention of Disciples of Christ here last week, and Dr. L. D. Anderson, of Fort Worth, Tex., newly elected president of this latter organization.

Upon leaving the White House the several thousand delegates assembled around the Garfield Monument at Maryland avenue southwest and the Capitol Grounds, where brief memorial exercises were held for the martyred President, who worshipped regularly at the old frame chapel where the Vermont Avenue Christian Church now stands. There a wreath was laid at the base of the marker by the Rev. F. Treudley, of this city, long-time friend of Garfield, who met him while the latter was serving as president of Hiram College, a Disciples of Christ institution in Ohio, before becoming Chief Executive of the Nation.

Aside from the morning and night sessions, interest of the delegates also centered on the "all-nations" luncheon at noon at the Mayflower Hotel, with minute messages by speakers from all nations represented and an address by Dr. Charles L. Goodell, of New York City, on the topic, "The Present World Situation in Evangelism;" the vesper services at the new National City Christian Church at Thomas Circle, with a sermon by the Rev. William Robinson, of Birmingham, England, and a complimentary dinner to overseas delegates in the late afternoon at the Raleigh Hotel.

Pledging the brotherhood of the Disciples of Christ anew to the hope of a great Christian unity, the Rev. Dr. Claude E. Hill, of Tulsa, Okla., addressed the meeting last night at Washington Auditorium, a cospeaker with the Rev. Dr. George W. Knepper, of Akron, Ohio.

Unity in Faith.

"The church can never function adequately, it never can be equal to this task while disunion and division prevail," declared Dr. Hill. "Among the surely and unmistakably recorded words of the Lord Jesus there is sufficient nondebatable and uncontested ground to provide an adequate basis for a lasting union of the divided and dismembered church.

"Let us not be misunderstood. Our plea has never been for uniformity in opinion, but for unity in faith. And by faith, we mean and have always meant the unmistakably recorded words in the terms of His Own example. Of the inadequacy of a divided church for its task, we are confronted with centuries of tragic failure. Division has been ingloriously tried and has failed until at least no apology for it is left. In theory, at least, denominationalism has made its last stand. Once we were almost the sole advocates for union. Now nearly all others talk about it.

"Our movement is an honest attempt to solve the problem. We are here with a passion plus a program. We have never meant to ask men to come to us or walk with us, but rather have we sought to find a way in which all might walk together with Him. We, ourselves, are ready to take any other way that offers a larger hope for a closer and richer fellowship, a larger hope for unity, union, and a united church based on reason, experience and the word of God."

Deplores Divided Church.

Characterizing disunion of religious faiths as "the scandal of the family of God," Dr. Knepper in his address declared that a divided church is proof to a skeptical world that churchmen magnify the petty, with the differences in faiths due mainly to unessential details, opinions or processes.

The Rev. Dr. L. D. Anderson, of Fort Worth, Tex., and the Rev. Dr. F. D. Kershner, dean of the School of Religion, Butler University, both addressed another audience at Constitution Hall last night.

"It is not certain that either the church or our civilization can survive the perpetuation of sectarianism," asserted Dr. Anderson. "The issues are clear cut, world-wide, age-long. We have experimented with cavilling and calumny, competition and conflict. It is demanded that we try through cooperation and consolidation for competency and conquest.

Five-Minute Talks.

"Divisions have made it impracticable to teach the barest fundamentals of religion and morality in our public schools and State-supported institutions of higher learning. Divisions have disrupted many homes and in others have been factors in those changes whereby the home has largely ceased to function in the work of religious education. Divisions have so weakened the church for activity, so blinded her by prejudice, so poisoned her by sectarian propaganda, so enslaved her by chains of archaic custom and obsolete conviction, that she is impotent in the face of the educational task."

Dr. Kershner stressed that "Christians of all groups are coming to realize more and more that unity is of the very essence of church life."

In morning sessions on the theme, "Pentecost Among the Nations," speakers from the various nations represented made five-minute talks to tell of the spread of religion in their lands.

Morning, afternoon and night gatherings at both Washington Auditorium and Constitution Hall face the delegates today. Among the principal speakers will be John R. Mott, of New York City, chairman of the International Missionary Council, and a world-wide figure in his long association with the Y. M. C. A., and Arthur Holmes, professor of philosophy, University of Pennsylvania, who alternately speak at both sessions tonight.

HUSBAND KILLS FIVE IN FAMILY AND SELF

Schoolboy's Excuse for Being Tardy Leads to Finding of Beaten Bodies.

HAMMER, RAZOR USED

Washburn, Wis., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—A schoolboy's excuse for tardiness revealed today how a father had slain his wife and four children, then committed suicide.

Robert Thorsen, on his way to school, stopped at the home of George Froseth, 60, assistant postmaster, to return a book. The door was locked, and when he looked through a window he saw the body of Mrs. Froseth.

"There's something wrong at the Froseth home," he told his teacher, explaining why he was late. The teacher went on with classes, and at recess notified authorities.

They found the bodies of Mrs. Froseth, 45; George, jr., 11; Adelaide and Neil, twins, 9, and "Coostie," 6 years old.

The husband had beaten them to death with a hammer and had slashed his own throat with a razor.

The authorities believe Froseth became suddenly insane during the night and went from room to room, beating the sleepers, after which he went to an upstairs bathroom and fatally wounded himself. He had staggered downstairs and as far as the living room, where the body was found.

Froseth had held public office here for many years, and had been active in political life. He had suffered several nervous breakdowns in the last several years, friends said. His accounts were in order and he was in no financial trouble.

Chief of Police James Long found Froseth lying in the living room, his throat slashed by a razor. The other members of the family were in their beds. The children's skulls had been crushed with a hammer while Mrs. Froseth apparently was killed by a blow on the back of the neck.

Coroner Edwin Bradley said he doubted an inquest would be held.

Hundreds Made Homeless; 100-Mile Winds Hit Vera Cruz.

Mexico City, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Hurricanes and torrential rainstorms have caused much damage along the central Gulf Coast in the last few days.

A report received tonight said the same hurricane which struck Vera Cruz yesterday also wrought destruction in the seaport of Alvarado, State of Vera Cruz, destroying a large part of the poor section of the town and leaving hundreds of homeless. Much crop damage was reported in the vicinity, with rail and telegraph service tied up in some sections.

Winds ranging up to 100 miles an hour struck the City of Vera Cruz, and port traffic was tied up. Heavy rains fell. In the State of Hidalgo, west of Vera Cruz, rain has fallen almost constantly since Saturday night. The City of Pachuca was inundated for the second time within a fortnight.

The Mexico City-Brownsville Air Service has been held up for the last three days by rains and fog.

SURVEY COMPLETED ON WORLDS TRADE

Department of Commerce Says Some Countries Show Improvement.

OTHERS NOT PROMISING

(Associated Press.)

A review of world business conditions made up from cable and radio messages was said at the Department of Commerce yesterday to show a number of "hopeful indications" as to the future development in some countries and dark prospects in others.

The study was carried on in almost every quarter of the globe, and the department's summary follows:

"Far Eastern conditions show several hopeful indications, though actual business activity has increased very little. In Japan some gains has been made by cotton spinning, but other industries continue to lag. China in general is favored by the improved political outlook with construction extremely active and crops exceptionally good. Slowly returning confidence is the only appreciable change in British India.

Siam Export Outlook Dull.

Although prospects in Siam are seasonally improved, the rice export market is not promising. After exceptionally low levels of prices and business in the Philippines during September, several favorable factors have appeared in October, including increased railway traffic, greater construction activity and reduced unemployment.

"The good agricultural outlook is the only hopeful feature in the Australian situation. Sugar and pineapple crops in Hawaii promise to be exceptionally large, but the business outlook is dependent on price trend in export products. In British Malaya there is continued decline as the result of previous overtrading and in New Zealand prices present appreciable gains.

"In the Netherlands and Belgium gains are being recorded and the outlook is somewhat improved; in the case of the Netherlands, however, the autumn pickup has not assumed normal proportions.

French Wheat Crop Bad.

"The French wheat crop is one of the worst on record and the country's foreign trade, both export and import, is at a low ebb. Reports of Greek foreign trade show a heavy decline. Heavy employment totalling nearly 400,000 laborers on public works in Italy is the principal hopeful factor in that country.

"Increases in contemplated construction in Canada and improved confidence in the textile industry are the principal favorable factors in the Canadian situation, but newsprint production has declined.

"Political conditions in Brazil have caused a paralysis of business. Conditions have failed to improve in Argentina."

King Will Attend Indian Conference

Plans to Open Round Table Session in London on November 12.

London, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Importance attached by Great Britain to the forthcoming India round table conference was exemplified tonight by announcement that King George will personally inaugurate the discussions by attending the opening session November 12.

The ceremony will take place in the royal gallery of the House of Lords, whose sombre magnificence also witnessed the opening of the London naval conference last January.

Undoubtedly there will be much less anxiety regarding his majesty's health next month than when he drove through a dense fog to inaugurate the five-power gathering of January, for it is known that he is now in excellent condition. The intention of the king to attend the opening session was made known in a communique issued by the India office.

was so badly frightened by the affair that she was unable to give the police an accurate description of her assailant.

As pieced together by Policeman Nolte from Miss Fritts' story, she was walking along Blair road to meet friends at the Bliss School. Suddenly a man appeared from the side of the road and grabbed her.

Miss Fritts, who is described as very pretty, put up a strong battle and succeeded in keeping the man at a distance. All the time that the fight was occurring, she screamed and finally her screams brought a motorist from Georgia avenue. The man then fled into the darkness.

Miss Fritts lives at the Blair road address with her mother, Mrs. Mary K Fritts, and several sisters. She is employed in Washington, but, according to Policeman Nolte, declined to state with what firm. The attack occurred about 10:30 o'clock.

Detective Is Indicted; Impersonation Charged

Harry T. Thompson, a private detective, was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on a charge of impersonating an officer. The indictment alleges he told Miss Margaret E. Bailey, of Ridge place southeast near Thirteenth street, that unless she signed an affidavit she would be imprisoned. The affidavit, it was alleged, was to be used in a divorce case which Thompsons' employer was preparing to prosecute against his wife.

Thompson was arraigned several days ago in Police Court, and is now under bond. At that time it was brought out that Miss Bailey signed an affidavit but did not realize what she was signing until afterward. The affidavit is said to have related to a party which was attended by the wife of Thompson's employer.

BUTLER CHANGED MAN AS HE RUNS to satisfy his suppressed desires. It is like the Harvard boy who now and then defies his ancestry and marries a chorus girl.

As to whether, in Mr. Butler's case, they will live happy ever afterwards, remains to be seen. He was successful in the primary against odds.

Like Nebraska Trick.

I find after an investigation that his people put Bossy Gillis into the campaign to draw from Eben S. Draper who ran as a wet and came within five or six thousand of winning. Sort of another Nebraska trick.

I don't know whether Butler knew about it at first. He did later because there was some worry on his part when Gillis in his first two speeches attacked him as to whether Draper had not entered Gillis, and he, Butler, had to be reassured.

It was a silly worry, of course, because Gillis, running as a wet, was bound to draw from Draper.

Now that is not the old Butler but it is a more politically successful Butler, and that is the way we measure them in the what is affectionately referred to as the Nation's Capital.

Butler not only won the primary but he won it in cities that he never expected to carry. It is quite significant and bears on his success next month that the rural vote where his greatest strength was deemed to lie did not turn out.

Man Indicted on Charge Of Larceny After Trust

Larceny after trust is charged in an indictment returned yesterday by the grand jury against T. Ralph Stabler.

The defendant, according to records in the United States attorney's office, is alleged to have converted to his own use $600 which he is said to have obtained from Jonathan G. Bigelow, of 423 Fourth street northeast. The money, it is alleged, was to have been used to buy an automobile, which was to be sold for their mutual benefit. The transaction is alleged to have occurred May 1.

LARGER WHEAT CROP FORESEEN IN REPORT

Consumption in Marketing Period Will Exceed Supply, View Held.

RUSSIAN EXPORTS CITED

(Associated Press.)

While the world production of wheat was estimated yesterday by the Department of Agriculture to be larger than a year ago, expectations were that consumption during the 1930-1931 marketing period would exceed production.

The prospective world wheat crop outside of Russia and China was placed at 3,650,000,000, or 160,000,000 bushels more than in 1929 and 320,000,000 less than in 1928.

During the past season consumption exceeded production to the extent that stocks of old wheat on hand July 1 were 100,000,000 bushels less than on hand at the beginning of the 1929 season.

"Shorter feed grain crops and very low prices of wheat," the department said, "undoubtedly will result in the consumption of wheat being considerably larger than in the past season. Notwithstanding the continuation of high duties in some countries, Europe probably will consume more wheat than in the past season because of smaller supplies of feedstuffs with a larger number of live stock to be fed."

The disappearance of wheat in the United States and Europe combined was estimated to be 250,000,000 bushels greater than in the past season.

"This would reduce the world's carryover of wheat at the end of the season to about a normal basis unless Russia contributes a large amount of wheat for consumption in the deficit countries," the report continued.

"Russia continues to be a very important factor in the wheat market. Reports of shipments from the first of July into the second weeks of October total about 25,000,000 bushels. This is more than twice the amount shipped in the corresponding period of the 1926-27 season when the total exports amounted to about 49,000,000 bushels.

"It now seems quite likely that total Russian exports will exceed the shipments in the 1926-27 season. Some current reports estimate that shipments will amount to as much as 75,000,000 bushels. Uncertainty as to how much Russia may ship is probably more important at the present time than the actual volume of shipments."

Jury Trial Asked On Liquor Charge

Defendant Also Is Held to Grand Jury, Accused of Taking Auto.

Robert F. Layton, colored, yesterday was brought before Judge Gus A. Schmidt in Traffic Court on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor and operating without a permit, and later was arraigned before Judge John P. McMahon on charges of unauthorized use of an automobile and violating the national prohibition law.

The traffic cases were continued until the other cases could be disposed of. On the prohibition case Layton demanded a jury trial. He was held for the action of the grand jury on the charge of taking the automobile, which was said to belong to Ida R. Dove, of 1102 Ninth street northwest.

Layton was arrested Monday morning at Seventh and N streets following a minor accident. Private C. N. Strange, of the Second Precinct, who made the arrest, said that Layton had one gallon of alleged liquor in the car when taken to the precinct.

U. S. REMAINS FIRM ON WAR DEBT POLICY

Officials Consider Effects of Moratorium, but Are Still Passive.

GOLD DANGER IS ARGUED

New York, Oct. 22.—A Washington dispatch to the New York World today says:

High officials of the administration have considered the effects on the United States of a German reparations moratorium and consequent suspension of allied war debt payments to this country, but no change of policy or anticipatory action is in view, officially, here, it was learned today.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichstag, and the man who stabilized the German mark, expounded to Secretary of State Stimson, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Gov. Eugene Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board, and other officials here his belief that Germany will soon halt reparation payments. He also called briefly upon President Hoover during his visit here.

But, it is now disclosed, the possibility of a German reparation breakdown had been canvassed here before Dr. Schacht's visit, and the general conclusion reached that there is no step which this Government can take in advance either with regard to tentative plans for scaling down allied debt payments to the United States, or in seeking means for readjusting the concentration of gold in this country and in France.

Latter Subject Agitated.

The latter subject has been agitated by a number of prominent bankers, who contend that the concentration and immobilization of gold in the United States and France, with consequent drainage of gold reserve in other countries, are basically responsible for the fall of commodity prices. They hold that some method must be found to redistribute gold, in view of the lack of new supplies, if gold standard countries which are now either close to or nearing the danger line of gold reserves, are to continue on the gold standard.

The consequence to the United States of having other nations go off the gold standard again would be disastrous, is his view.

However, responsible administration officials, who have heard the arguments of this group, are disinclined to agree that the drop of commodity prices was induced by the gold situation. On the contrary, they assign in every case other reasons for commodity price declines. The administration view, so far as it has developed, is that disturbed political conditions are responsible for the disproportionate gold distribution in most cases and that the situation will correct itself when world political conditions become more stable.

Tentative Draft Prepared.

It can be said now, authoritatively, that administration officials have had before them, in an unofficial way, a tentative draft plan, apparently prepared in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and brought here by Gov. George Harrison of the New York bank, for a suspension of allied war debt payments to the United States in the event of a breakdown of German reparations.

The view of officials here is that the key is Germany's political situation; that until and unless Germany suspends reparations, the issue of allied debt payment suspensions can not arise.

In other words, the administration adheres to its policy in holding that there is no relation between what Germany pays to the allies and what they pay to this country. Some officials privately admit that this is merely a political fiction. But in any case, agitation for anticipatory scaling down of war debts, to forestall a German collapse, or to avert more serious world conditions, has not sufficiently impressed the administration to alter its passive policy.

Gen. Coxey Here Alone In Unemployment Cause

(Associated Press.)

Gen. Jacob S. Coxey, of Massillon, Ohio, who led an army of unemployed to Washington in 1894 and thereby gained his military title, came to Washington yesterday alone, and today will lay before Secretary Lamont of the Commerce Department his "solution" of the 1930 unemployment problem.

Gen. Coxey's arrival yesterday was as quiet as his first "invasion" was noisy. After registering at a downtown hotel, he called on Representative Guy E. Campbell, of Pittsburgh, who obtained today's conference with Secretary Lamont.

film star, yesterday filed suit for divorce against the Marquis Henri de la Falaise, who has been seen considerably with Constance Bennett (inset), screen actress.

Film Star Claims Titled Husband, Her Third, Deserted Her.

Los Angeles, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Gloria Swanson, motion picture star, filed suit for divorce today against the Marquis Henri de la Falaise de la Coudraye, her third husband. She charged desertion.

The marquis said he had expected the action.

"We have come to the parting of the ways," he said, "and if she wants a divorce I will accede to her every wish. We still are the best of friends. Everything moves too swiftly in Hollywood for a happy marriage."

The actress confined her complaint to a paragraph. The action said her titled husband "wilfully and maliciously abandoned and deserted her and persisted in said desertion and abandonment against her will."

The desertion was said to have occurred September 18, 1929. The complaint said the two were married in Paris January 28, 1925. It added that there were no children and no community property.

Before leaving Hollywood on a motor trip last week, Miss Swanson admitted the matter of a divorce had been placed in the hands of her attorney.

This was the actress' third matrimonial venture. Wallace Beery, screen actor, divorced her in 1919 on charges of desertion. Four years after her second husband, Herbert Somborn, wealthy Pasadena resident, divorced her because "she placed her career above everything else."

Inability of the marquis to obtain permission from immigration authorities to live permanently in this country, and his employment for a film company abroad, forced the couple to remain apart much of the time. When he returned from his last European trip he went to a Hollywood hotel instead of to his wife's Beverly Hills mansion.

The marquis has been seen considerably with Constance Bennett, screen actress. Asked concerning her, he said that they were "good friends." He added he might be married again if he became divorced, commenting, "Who can tell what is going to happen in the future."

WOODS WILL DIRECT GROUP TO AID THOSE UNEMPLOYED

announced designation of Col. Arthur Woods, a former New York police commissioner, to head it.

An immediate muster of plans and personnel under his direction was forecast, though the President withheld for the time a specific statement of means to be adopted. It was indicated that the administration hoped to bring into cooperation all necessary units of local government and private industry to mitigate individual suffering.

While the President is said to regard the situation as serious, particularly as unemployment has a drought problem running parallel to it which entails efforts both in city and agricultural zones. He is also anxious to prevent exaggeration in discussions of the subject.

From data now in the hands of the Federal Government, largely compiled by the Census and Labor branches, the number of unemployed workers was placed at 3,500,000 and it was pointed out, 1,000,000 persons are always so unemployed.

The census inquiry was considered as demonstrating that there was on the average in each family one and three-quarters persons regularly employed and that in the present situation there are a lesser number of families completely devoid of breadwinners than has usually been so regarded.

There were the usual reports to the effect that the next step in the Federal employment program would be directed toward stimulating public work expenditure, probably upon a large scale, but there were no official statements outlining this and it was not believed that definite proposals would come until Col. Woods assumed his duties.

Advisors to Be Called.

It was considered certain that a gathering would be summoned soon, either by the President or by Col. Woods, to assemble advisors of responsibility and knowledge whose opinion will guide the main direction of action.

This expectation was confidently held by a number of individuals associated with the President who participated in unemployment organization, which he headed in 1921.

Among plans already discussed by the Cabinet committee, Secretary Hurley indicated yesterday that consideration had been given one under which employment would be divided among a larger number of individuals working a shorter time. The plan already has been used by the War Department in flood control work, he said.

"By employing 2,000 men for three days a week instead of 1,000 for six days a week a meal ticket would be provided at least for all of them," he said.

Railroad Aid Extended.

While plans were being formulated for the unemployment group, the President announced that railroads had agreed to continue their cooperation toward relieving drought distress by extending until December 1 the 50 per cent decrease in rates upon live stock and feed moved out of and into drought stricken areas. The President said that although the December date had been set railroad aid would no necessarily end then.

An additional inquiry into needs of drought stricken farmers is to be undertaken both by railroads and the Federal Government to revise relief measures.

While congressional leaders were ready to join any program to press public improvements to aid unemployment, they are planning no extensive legislation in this direction until advised of the program of President Hoover and his Cabinet committee.

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, one of the few members of Congress here now, predicted yesterday that Congress would readily get behind a presidential program but asserted that there would be no stampeding of "radical legislation" through the mill.

Hoover Cancels Plans To Attend Navy Game

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday canceled his tentative arrangements to attend the Princeton-Navy football game at Princeton on Saturday.

The White House announced the Chief Executive had found it impossible to get away this week-end and would remain at his desk. He still expects to see one major football contest during the fall, possibly the Harvard-Yale contest at New Haven November 22. Some other game may be chosen, however.

LONG-DISTANCE CALL SPEEDS BOB SEARCH

Wife to Be Questioned as Number of Investors Hit Is Set at 3,500.

22 AUDITS MADE PUBLIC

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—A reported telephone call from Charles V. Bob, in Akron, Ohio, to his Fifth avenue home last Friday lent new impetus today to the search for the promoter, missing since October 5.

In the course of his scrutiny of Bob's various stock enterprises, Deputy Attorney General Staples, of the State bureau of securities, questioned William J. Mellody and Louis P. Jubien, officers of the Consolidated Chromium Corporation, a Bob enterprise. One of them, Staples said, told him of the telephone call.

Mrs. Bob did not speak with her husband, Staples said, but the State official announced his intention of questioning her within 24 hours, to see what she may know of the call. Staples said he was told Bob talked only with the maid at his home.

The number of investors hit by the collapse of Metal & Mining Shares, Inc., an investment trust sponsored by Bob, was set at between 3,500 and 4,000 by Staples today. At first it was believed there were very few small investors, but the books showed, Staples said, that persons all over the country, especially in New England, the Middle West and the eastern provinces of Canada, bought stock in the company.

An audit report showing 22 Bob enterprises, several with subsidiaries and subsidiaries of subsidiaries, was made public by the bureau of securities. Staples said he expected to make application tomorrow in Brooklyn Supreme Court for an order restraining Bob, Frederick J. Russell, an associate who disappeared with him, and the Metal & Mining Shares, Inc., Metal and Mining Founders, Inc., and Consolidated Chromium Corporation from further stock dealings. He said he would also apply for receiverships for these companies, and possibly for several other Bob promotions.

Doolittle Held Liable To $500 Stunting Fine

(Associated Press.)

Jimmy Doolittle, former crack Army flier, who crashed into an Army plane while stunting over the Kansas City Airport several weeks ago, has been notified by the Commerce Department that he stands liable to a fine of $500 for breaking regulations against acrobatics in flying.

He is entitled to appeal from the notice and will be given a hearing before the Secretary of Commerce or a special representative in case he does appeal. Doolittle, however, has not completed the preparation of a defense and will be allowed time for doing so before any attempt is made to enforce the penalty.

Woman's Death Bares Money, Stocks Hoard

Edgerton, Wis., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ida Fields was active in the social life of Edgerton, but she never received visitors at home.

People wondered why. They learned today. Mrs. Fields, 78, died October 1, following an automobile accident. She bequeathed her estate to two Masonic lodges at Dousman and Edgerton. Administrators, poking into musty rooms, unopened for years, today found these things:

A roll of bills in the basement totaling $5,370. Other packages of money ranging from $250 to $1,161 in out of the way places.

Thousands of packages containing rare antiques and chinaware, dating back to the seventeenth century.

Bonds and securities worth many thousands of dollars.

Five hundred pairs of shoes.

Court Reverses Contempt Ruling

Appellate Tribunal Holds Summary Punishment Not Justified.

Two rulings of interest in Washington were handed down yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit, which met in Baltimore, Md., for the first time since 1923. Both rulings reversed decisions made in lower courts.

The case of Norman S. Bowles, disbarred Washington attorney, who was sentenced to serve 75 days in jail by Judge William C. Coleman in United States District Court at Baltimore for contempt of court, brought a decision reversing Judge Coleman. The appellate court held that the contempt charge was not of the class which may be summarily punished, in that it did not occur in the presence of the court.

In the matter of litigation between the Washington Airport, Inc., and the Smoot Sand & Gravel Corporation, in which the District Court of the Eastern District of Virginia had denied having jurisdiction, holding that the boundary of the State along the Potomac River was at high water level; the Court of Appeals ruled that the Virginia court had jurisdiction, because the boundary was measured at low-water level.

Fine Arts Commission Approves Byrd Medal

Secretary of the Navy Adams yesterday received the recommendation of the Fine Arts Commission for the design of a medal to be presented to the officers and men of the Byrd Antarctic expedition.

Seventeen designs were submitted by artists to the Navy Department and referred to the commission. One thousand dollars will be paid to the artist whose design is finally approved by Mr. Adams. The winning design will be cast by the United States Mint into gold, silver and bronze medals, which will be awarded to the 117 members of the Byrd expedition.

EVANGELICALS URGE LOYAL DRY STAND

Church Is Asked to Condemn Gambling, Divorce and Tobacco.

RESOLUTION IS OFFERED

Milwaukee, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The National Evangelical Church, in convention here was asked today to reaffirm its "unswerving loyalty to the principles of total abstinence from liquor for the individual, and total prohibition for the State."

In a resolution presented by the committee on morals, the church was asked to go on record as urging better observance of the Sabbath, better law enforcement, and condemning divorce, companionate marriage, gambling, use of tobacco by women and youths and "exploitation of sex appeal."

The committee recommended that the convention "request our pastors to refuse to officiate at marriages of divorced persons except where the divorce has been granted on scriptural grounds."

"Man, in his puny strength can not rescind, annul or repeal" the biblical law of the seventh day spent in rest and worship," the resolution held.

The resolution, if adopted, would say that, "as a church we are unalterably committed to enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, and hereby express disapproval of the widespread and insidious agitation calculated to bring about modification or repeal. * * *

"We greatly deplore the ruthless exploitation of our youth and womanhood by the conscienceless tobacco interests and vehemently denounce tobacco advertisements in magazines and billboards as a menace to society and an insult to decency and intelligence," the resolutions continued.

The resolution carried a "note of alarm" at the "freedom with which sex appeal is exploited in the literature, the stage and the movies of today in stories, illustrations and billboards, very often condoning the transgressions of the seventh commandment and its spirit, leading as it always has to a nervous tension, a fertile ground for immoral conduct, and the breakdown of the holiest sanctions of life."

Two Roumanian Officers Held in Red Spy Drive

Bucharest, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—An army colonel and the chief of the state intelligence department today were added to the 140 persons thus far arrested in a round-up of persons allegedly conducting an espionage system for Soviet Russia. The colonel confessed tonight, police said, he received a monthly allowance of 20,000 lei (about $120) and 100,000 lei (about $600) for each military document abstracted for his employers.

The practice followed in some military establishments, that of giving a disgraced officer a chance to commit suicide, was followed out today with the leaving of a loaded revolver in the officer's cell. He did not use it.

COX'S "REMEDY."

At last a political Moses has arisen out in Ohio to lead the way out of the wilderness of depression. While the Democrats have been denouncing "Republican adversity" with all their vocal powers, they have been smitten in their hearts because they had no remedy to offer. But now one James M. Cox, who, according to political legends was standard bearer for the Democratic party in 1920, comes forth with a panacea calculated to make every heart rejoice. Since the country was prosperous under its former tariff act, he says, let the people send Democrats to Congress so that the monstrosity known as the Smoot-Hawley act may be repealed.

Most Democratic campaigners have remained silent on what would be the party's tariff policy if it should chance to elect a majority to Congress. But Mr. Cox boldly proclaims that the law would be annihilated "without hearings or other ceremonies." Should the Democrats gain a majority "only" in the House, he predicts that they would immediately pass a measure reestablishing the former tariff rates, and that the Senate, as now constituted, would accept it. The President, he "ventures to predict," would sign it. Prosperity would be restored with this single blow, "cordial relations with the nations of the earth" would be again established, and, it may be presumed from the very nature of this wonderful vision, the Republicans would slink away to find themselves dishonorable graves.

In his enthusiasm Mr. Cox has struck his own party probably the hardest blow that it will encounter in the present campaign. Shrewd Democrats have kept quiet regarding any plans for reopening the tariff issue in Congress, because of the effect such plans would have on business. Uncertainties that have grown out of the economic depression are already delaying the restoration of normal conditions. Should uncertainty regarding tariff rates be added to the problems of industry there would be no hope for an early recovery. If Mr. Cox is speaking for the Democratic party, every vote for a Democratic representative means a vote to continue the business slump.

Mr. Cox speaks as if the new Congress would assemble immediately after election. As a matter of fact it will be December, 1931, nearly 14 months, before the representatives elected in November will take their seats. A Democratic Congress would hold the threat of a tariff revision over the head of business all that time, and longer. Any attempt to revise the Smoot-Hawley bill would meet with resistance from the Republicans and result in interminable delay.

What does Mr. Cox hope to accomplish by a revision of the tariff in 1932 or 1933? By that time all the countries which find it profitable to adjust their tariff rates in keeping with the new American schedules will have acted. Most of them have already done so. The revision downward of which Mr. Cox dreams would open American markets to foreign competition and leave many foreign markets closed against American goods. American factories would be closed, and millions of additional workingmen would be thrown out of jobs. Under such conditions the Democratic party might have to resort to the selective draft to secure a presidential candidate in 1932.

Those who blame the American tariff for the world-wide depression only demonstrate an ignorance of economic law, but those who suppose that prosperity could be restored by further meddling with the tariff are floundering in absurdity. Does Mr. Cox hope to convince the electorate that the way to steady the weakened structure of business is to rip out its foundation? His address can be interpreted in no other light than a warning to the country that, if a Democratic Congress should be elected, the business depression will continue indefinitely. If the Hoover administration is supported in its policy of aiding business and industry to solve their problems, the depression probably will have passed over by the time the new Congress meets. If otherwise, the end of hard times is nowhere in sight.

THE PROBLEM OF PALESTINE.

Administration of the mandate held by Great Britain over Palestine is a thankless job. A few months ago the mandate committee of the League of Nations severely criticized the British government for allowing racial riots to break out in the Holy Land. The government had been abused previously by both Jews and Arabs. It sent a commission headed by Sir John Hope Simpson to Palestine to investigate conditions. Using Sir John's report and the terms of the mandate as a basis, the government has now declared a new policy to be followed in Palestine. But it fails to satisfy the Arabs, and has aroused vehement protests from the Jews.

The fundamental reason for this general dissatisfaction with affairs in Palestine is that the mandate instructs Britain to foster the conflicting aims of both races. Every policy in Palestine must be a compromise. One purpose of the mandate is to establish a national home for the Jews, but this must be done in a way that does not prejudice the position of the Arabs. In attempting to establish a balance between the demands and aspirations of the two races, Britain is between the devil and the deep blue sea.

The new policy, which has created such a furore in Zionist circles, seems to be an absolute necessity if Palestine is to be developed without further bloodshed. The Simpson commission found that "there remains no margin of land available for agricultural settlement by new immigrants, with the exception of such undeveloped land as the various Jewish organizations hold in reserve." Arab population is increasing rapidly, but the land available to the Arabs has decreased by 250,000 acres, this area passing into the hands of the Jews. The Jewish immigrants have the advantages of capital, science and organization, which are lacking to the native Arabs. The government, therefore, considers, it necessary to maintain its restrictions on immigration into Palestine, and in some cases to provide more drastic checks.

It is natural that this curtailment should irk leaders of the Zionist movement. They see their dream of a national Jewish home pushed far into the future. But if these leaders take an impartial view of the situation they will probably see that there is no other safe course for Britain to pursue. The government can not disregard the rights of 700,000 Moslem inhabitants in the interests of the 160,000 Jews in Palestine. The Arabs have already developed the psychology of the under dog. They see their land and in some cases their jobs taken by Jewish immigrants. They resent this encroachment in spite of the fact that the Jews bring with them capital and thus insure greater development of the country.

If the two races are to live peacefully side by side, immigration must be regulated according to economic opportunities. The Arabs' right to land must be maintained. A national home for the Jews at the cost of racial enmity, continuous strife and bloodshed would not be worth the price. A strong admixture of prudence with the zeal of the Zionists will probably reconcile them to the slower pace of development that will be necessary under the new policy.

STOOPING TO CONQUER.

When "Ma" Ferguson, former Governor of Texas, was defeated in the Democratic primaries the country breathed a sigh of relief in the belief that Fergusonism was a dead issue. But reports trickling out of the Lone Star State indicate that the rejoicing was premature. "Pa" and "Ma" have found it impossible any longer to hitch their wagon to the Democratic star, but there is considerable fear that they may turn about and hitch on to the Republican band wagon.

Texas, as every one knows, is a Democratic State. Under ordinary circumstances Ross Sterling, the Houston capitalist, who defeated Mrs. Ferguson for the Democratic nomination, could count himself elected. But the acrimonious personal fight between Mr. Sterling and Mrs. Ferguson in the run-off primary opened such a schism in the Democratic ranks that the Republicans were inspired with hope. "Ma" Ferguson took first place in the regular primary contest, in which several candidates participated. While Mr. Sterling won in the run-off by a 90,000 majority, the Fergusonites polled a large vote and if they should throw their strength behind Col. W. E. Talbot, the Republican nominee, the outcome would be doubtful.

Dispatches from Texas political centers indicate that the Republicans have been the aggressors in the movement to create a G. O. P.-Ferguson coalition. The Republicans maintained discreet silence while former Gov. Jim Ferguson, "Ma's" chief campaigner, blackened the character of Ross Sterling, and Mr. Sterling unleashed his own store of classical invectives upon the Fergusons and their ilk. When the storm was over it seems that the Republicans of Texas decided to espouse the lost cause of Fergusonism in a hope of defeating the regular Democratic organization. The Republican platform is therefore strangely akin to the issues on which "Ma" took her stand. It is still undecided as to whether this bait will induce the Ferguson organization to change its stripe.

Politics is replete with examples of factions stooping to conquer, but in this case it seems that expediency has gone beyond the bounds of prudence and good judgment. The buffoonery of the Fergusons has been repudiated by their own party and by public opinion generally. What could the Texas G. O. P. hope to gain from such an alliance? These reports must be discouraging indeed to those leaders of the Republican party who have been trying to develop a creditable organization in the South.

KEEPING THE BRAIN ACTIVE.

Dr. Charles H. Mayo has propounded a novel question to the savants gathered in Philadelphia for the convention of the American College of Surgeons. Of what value, he asks, will be the years that science is adding to the average life span if the brain can't be kept alert? He leaves to the medical profession the problem of extending the life of the brain as well as of the body.

There is unmistakable evidence that the average life span is being extended. The Public Health Service recently announced that life expectancy at birth is now 58 years, which means that 10 years have been added to the average life during the last 20 years. Dr. Mayo says men and women undoubtedly will be able to live longer in the next half century. But is there any advantage in living 90 years if the mind becomes inactive at age 70?

"In institutions and homes," says Dr. Mayo, "we see scores of old people in their second childhood, merely vegetating, just like trees, possessed of strong bodies but with brains that are almost through functioning. Until we teach them and educate them how to live so that their brains will continue to function for the years added to the bodies' life there is little use in increasing the life span."

No doubt the medical profession can make notable contributions toward preservation of intellectual powers in old age, but it may be doubted whether the primary responsibility for this undertaking rests upon the physician. The brain, as part of the body, is influenced by bodily health or illness. Nevertheless, the problem of keeping the mind active seems to be quite different from that of keeping the body healthy. Health is the natural condition of the body. Mental fertility, on the other hand, is a mark of long and careful training. If the intellect is whetted by constant use there is little danger that it will die and leave the body derelict. Those inmates of institutions to whom Dr. Mayo refers probably went to seed before their time through sheer neglect of the mental capacities with which they were endowed. So many aged men keep their wits sharpened, even beyond senility, that the problem seems to be one of personal attainment or deficiency. To abandon efforts to extend the life span because some brains wear out too soon would be like harvesting a field of growing grain prematurely because part of the crop had withered before reaching maturity.

A $30,000,000 glue merger is announced. The only glue merger that could possibly be worth that much is one between stamp and envelope.

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR

From the Boston Transcript.

London City's new Lord Mayor, just elected by the members of certain guilds and corporations, will be formally sworn in and installed with all the ancient rites and ceremonies early next month. This popular functionary is not elected by the people as are the other 29 mayors of Greater London. He is the Lord Mayor only of that square mile within whose boundaries are the leading financial and commercial firms, the great shipping agencies, dry goods wholesalers, insurance offices and the chief exchanges. At night 15,000 persons, mostly caretakers, sleep within its confines and during the day it is safe to assert that from two millions to three millions of human beings work in it for a livelihood.

On November's most popular holiday, "Lord Mayor's Day," the ruler of the old city for the following twelve months will drive through the streets in a gilded coach with a bewigged coachman on the box. He will be attired in robes of medieval splendor and he will endeavor to wear a cocked hat ineffectually. The sheriffs who precede him, also in massive gilded carriages, will be similarly clothed and when their turn comes to be sworn in it will be observed that their knee breeches are of satin and that their calves are fat and well shaped. They may have some trouble with their swords, as these weapons occasionally display a tendency to become mixed up with the owner's legs. But all being well, the parties are introduced to the Lord Chancellor or Lord Chief Justice, who administers the oath and solemnly undertakes to be present at the dinner at the ancient Guild Hall in the evening, where 1,000 guests, mostly notabilities in every sphere of life, partake of the traditional turtle soup, washed down with potations of iced punch and followed by a variety of dishes and the choicest of wines.

It is at this dinner that the head of his majesty's government, this year Dr. Ramsay MacDonald, makes known his policy for dealing with immediate problems, and it is expected that on the forthcoming feast the prime minister will grow eloquent on Indian affairs and prospects and optimistic on the complexities of unemployment. The city is usually conservative in its politics, but sufficiently broad and impartial to give a fair hearing to a Labor minister. Should Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden appear at the dinner and address the august assembly, it may safely be predicted that while he would be listened to without enthusiasm, no bottles would be thrown at him.

The Lord Mayor receives a salary of $50,000 a year, but it is estimated that he spends at least an additional $100,000 out of his own pockets in hospitalities and charities. He must be host to all distinguished foreigners to the British capital and he initiates all great public charitable movements. He sits as magistrate and exercises summary jurisdiction, but except in trivial cases, persons charged in his court are held for trial at the Old Bailey sessions. The gentleman who will be Lord Mayor until November, 1931, is a lawyer and there has not been a legal luminary "in the chair" for more than 50 years, their lordships having been merchants, bankers or brokers. At the end of his term the Lord Mayor receives a baronetcy, or, if he happens to be a baronet already, he is raised to the peerage and begins a long line of hereditary nobles.

Los Angeles Times: Nowadays the success of a foreign cabinet depends upon its ability to float a loan in America or some other country that is supposed to have a few dollars left.

Without Gas Masks.

Detroit News: There is a minimum amount of suffering among the unemployed in this country: In Bavaria, they are given a dole of limburger cheese.

Quite a Relief.

Charleston Evening Post: It must be a source of great consolation to the unemployed to know that they constitute only about 2 per cent of the population.

Guess Again, Francis!

Lorain Journal: "Americans," says a French chef, "don't know anything about soup." One American did. He founded a soup company and has died, leaving $100,000,000.

Hard to Guess.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Another thing science might try to explain is why women think the middle of a sidewalk in the busy downtown section is a fine place to get into a huddle to discuss the latest gossip.

Those New York Judges.

Detroit News: That's probably exaggerated, about a New York magistrate who was so crooked that when he was brought up before himself on a graft charge, he asked for a change of venue.

Works Both Ways.

Topeka Capital: Everybody says what goes up must come down, but nobody believes it. That was the trouble with the stock market last year. This year it is wheat, and nobody believes that what comes down must go up.

JUST FOLKS

PROOF OF LIFE.

It's good to have a holiday and leave the tasks awhile.
It's good at times to take a rest and drop behind a mile,
But who has nothing left of care
And not another mile to fare
Gets little pleasure from a day, though skies are bright o'erhead;
Who has no dream he must pursue,
No future task he wants to do,
No need which he alone can serve
might just as well be dead.

It's good at times to wake at dawn to face an idle day,
To spurn the working tools of life
and spend the hours in play,
But who has finished every task
Which life of him will ever ask
Will find the path of pleasure is a dreary road to tread;
Who sees no cause which he can aid,
No further progress to be made,
No wrong to right, no ill to cure—
might just as well be dead.

Not long for living men is rest—tomorrow needs us all.
While we can hear and see and think on us the world will call;
To suffer pain and hear the cry
For help from others passing by;
To long for rest and yet by day for some far goal to strive;
To worry, fret and grope along;
To sense the bitterness of wrong
And ache and dream and grieve and hope is proof that we're alive!

The Man Who Directs a Railroad Doesn't Look for Dust on Chair Rounds.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MANY men, uncommonly successful as foremen, fail as chief executives because they are jealous of their authority.

They are not content to instruct their captains and leave to these lesser dignitaries the task of dealing with privates. They are afraid the captains will feel too important, or actually assume authority to use their own discretion.

They pretend that their constant supervision of details and their frequent revision of the orders given by subordinates are prompted by the conviction that they alone are competent to manage things well, but the truth is they are unwilling to share their glory.

They disrupt the organization and exhaust themselves within a year. And when they are removed to sanitariums or graveyards, the popular assumption is that the weight of great responsibilities broke them. The thing that broke them, however, was meddling—the frenzied activity made necessary by their unwillingness to delegate authority.

They could not assume the big boss attitude because they had little-boss minds. They tried to do the work of ten little bosses because they wanted everybody to understand who was big boss.

That same small-caliber jealousy is the quality that makes many men unhappy and unbearable as husbands.

An editor of one of the great monthly magazines said a few years ago: "I wish my wife would take full responsibility for the home. I'd like to hand her a check for running expenses and then dismiss the whole business from my mind and let her run the place to suit herself."

That is the attitude of an experienced and successful executive. He wishes to save his energies for problems of his own caliber.

But a smaller man is afraid his wife and his friends will forget that he is boss. Decisions made without his approval hurt his vanity. If his wife hangs a picture without consulting him, the act seems equivalent to an assertion that he isn't essential. It smacks of insubordination.

Because his smallness requires frequent demonstrations of his authority, he snoops in the kitchen, demands an explanation of grocery bills, meddles in all the minutiae of household affairs.

Perhaps he can't help it, for a man is no larger than the terms he thinks in, and the thickness of a potato peeling may seem vital to a man with that kind of mind.

In any case he is a pest, and men of his type should do the house work and let their wives get out and find larger jobs.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Adversity Helps the Wets.

New York World.

Plainly we are witnessing a breaking up of old loyalties and a realignment of party strength. One important factor in this process, we believe, is the end of the business boom that reached its peak early in 1929. As long as the country enjoyed good times, as it did in increasing measure after the first postwar depression, there were many people who could be persuaded that prohibition was the fountainhead of prosperity. There were more people, skeptical on this point, who were none the less reluctant to see prohibition made an issue in politics, lest it disturb the status quo and so endanger profits.

Now that the cycle is in the phase of depression, both of these arguments disappear. Instead of a general desire to preserve the status quo, there is now a general desire for a change. The whole political scene is altered. The cause of repeal can scarcely fail to profit enormously from this fundamental change in sentiment.

Stimson's Cuban Policy.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

The Root and Stimson policy will be approved by the American people. They certainly do not want the power of the Washington Government used in Cuba to perpetuate a regime the Cuban people do not want. The primary object of the Platt amendment was to guarantee the independence of Cuba. That should be kept in view as temptations for intervention arise.

Goes With the Job.

Topeka Capital.

The Iola Register is bitter about "unfair attacks" on Hoover by the Democrats. There were unfair attacks on Cleveland and Wilson, however. Presidents who don't encounter unfair attacks must have something wrong with them. Probably Hoover is less disturbed about unfair attacks than was George Washington, who though a well-balanced man lost his temper and broke into profanity over the treatment his critics handed him. There have been a good many Presidents since then.

Wickersham's Commission.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mr. Wickersham's commission is bolder than it was. We are told that it is going to say whether or not it thinks national prohibition is enforceable, and the country, it is promised, may expect this opinion in December.

Fortunately, we can guess what meat has made the commission so bold as to have a mind of its own. Chief among those who habitually terrorized it during the last session of Congress was Representative Cramton, leader of the drys in the House. As recently as last June 11 Mr. Cramton told Mr. Wickersham exactly what the commission would and would not do, and the commission gave an exhibition of rolling over and playing dead that outdid the average dog and pony show.

But things have gone badly for national prohibition since June. In some of the States both political parties are in revolt. Mr. Cramton himself has been repudiated in his Michigan district.

Strong for Divorce.

Atchison Globe.

We like President Hoover except when he says, "I propose to appoint a commission, &c." We've had enough of that sort of thing. President Hoover appointed a commission to study crime. We need no commission. We need to divorce the criminals from the police, if you know what we mean.

More Hard Luck.

Atlanta Constitution.

Sure, we are in for a hard winter. We are to have a big "lame duck" Congress on our hands.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Repeats What "Everybody Knows" and Describes "What Everybody Does Not Know" Regarding the Stock Crash and Its Probable Effect on November Elections.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If this country goes Democratic in November it will be because the facts have not been properly presented to the people.

Everybody knows that stocks were too high last year and that they would inevitably crash, which they did in October. Everybody knows how the Democrats delayed the tariff bill in the Senate and greatly injured business.

Everybody knows that through President Hoover's splendid efforts the crash was checked. Everybody knows that the drought came along and added misery to the situation.

What everybody does not know was the why and wherefore of the June slump. Well, there are certain multimillionaires in Wall Street who do not like Hoover on account of prohibition and the tariff.

What everybody does not know is that, on the very day Hoover signed the tariff bill, great blocks of Dupont, General Motors and Warner Picture stocks were thrown on the market, utterly demoralizing it and resulting in a slaughter of values now estimated at $40,000,000,000.

What everybody does not know is that these multimillionaires can now buy back their stocks with a profit of many millions, although they have ruffled thousands of their fellow countrymen, including brother Democrats.

Honorable Will Wood wanted to investigate the June slump. An examination of the printed transactions of the stock exchange as of the date of the tariff signature, shows that Dupont, General Motors and Warner Pictures finally pulled the market down, whereas Telephone, General Electric and Steel were trying to put it up. Not being organized as conspirators, however, the latter three failed to check the demoralization.

The Republicans decided on the old methods of campaign—mostly rag chewing—and inasmuch as the Democrats have the best rag chewer, the Republicans are probably licked.

EMOLAS.

Prof. Kelly Miller Says That Tidal Wave Against Prohibition Will Prove Ineffective.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The wets seem to be having their inning. The poll of the Literary Digest first indicated the direction in which the wind was blowing. The metropolitan press either openly advocates, or mildly espouses the side of wetness. The trend of political events is not encouraging to the cause of prohibition. The northern contingent of the Democratic party—the immemorial friend of "personal liberty"—have assumed the offensive, while the Republican party, which at Kansas City declared for the vigorous enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, has grown apologetic, if not panic-stricken. The Hoover administration has tied its hands with the Crime Commission, whose belated report promises to be vacillating and indecisive.

But this tidal wave will prove itself ineffective against the barriers of the eighteenth amendment and the basic conscience of the American people. The wets at best can only hope for an insignificant proportion of senators and congressmen in the Seventy-second Congress. The battle royal will take place between the contending forces in the presidential campaign of 1932. Even if the wets should win, which is hardly thinkable, the Constitution and the public conscience still stand against their furious onslaught.

In any event the eighteenth amendment will remain as a part of the Constitution until such time as public sentiment can be educated to the point where it can be effectively enforced. Which is to say that prohibition is here to stay.

KELLY MILLER.

Director of Women's Bureau, Department of Labor, Corrects Figures on Unemployment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Washington Post of October 21, I was quoted as having said, to the meeting of the Monday Evening Club, where I was a speaker, that "while refraining from giving actual figures, the number of unemployed far exceeds the 2,500,000 persons out of work by Census Bureau count on April 1."

The report in the paper seems to have given another slant to my remarks than was intended. I said that the Census figures were those given out by the United States Bureau of the Census as the "number of persons without a job, able to work, and looking for a job;" that, of course, there were people who considered that they still had a job although they were temporarily laid off at the time of the taking of the census, and therefore would not say to the enumerator that they were looking for a job, knowing that when their place of employment started up again they would go back to work. Then there were those who had only part-time employment, which can not be called unemployment, but which lowers the purchasing power of the workers and consequently helps to create unemployment.

The point of the meeting was to create an unemployment committee in the District of Columbia to work with the President's newly created committee on unemployment, composed of the members of the Cabinet.

MARY ANDERSON,
Director, Women's Bureau, Department of Labor.

Miss Dolly Answers the Question.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an editorial on the "Shooting of 'Legs' Diamond" you ask: Is society helpless in the clutches of the super criminals?

Surely it is. For has not the Government given them the liquor business which enables them to finance a super government with more power than the Federal Government.

SOFIA TAKES STEPS TO GUARD ROYALTY

Bulgarian Troops Rally to Safeguard Italian Rulers on November Visit.

BORIS, FIANCEE ON TRIP

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Measures to insure the safety of the royal families of two nations and of the high diplomatic representatives of others were laid down by the authorities today.

Italian police and detectives arrived from Rome to assist in the precautionary steps by which the King and Queen of Italy will be guarded when they come here in the early days of November to visit with King Boris and his bride, the Princess Giovanna.

On the day of the arrival of the royal party the principal street will be open only to their carriages. Persons living along the thoroughfare will not be allowed to have callers, or to open windows fronting upon the street for the purpose of tossing flowers.

Royal Motor Party.

The entire police force and a large number of troops have been concentrated at the capital. The belief prevails that the royal couple will return to Bulgaria from Italy on November 6 or 7. It has not been made known if the port of arrival will be Varna or Bourgas. Boris and his bride probably will travel from the coast to Sofia during the night in order to avoid demonstratrions on the way.

A police regulation requires that foreign journalists sent to report the home-coming of the newly married sovereign and the coronation of his queen must be recommended by their ministers in Sofia for entry into the country.

San Rossore, Italy, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—King Boris of Bulgaria and his fiancee, Princess Giovanna, accompanied by King Victor Emanuel, Princess Eudoxia of Bulgaria and Princess Maria of Italy, motored today to Capezanno.

To Board Yacht.

They visited relatives of King Boris, whose mother belonged to the family of Bourbon Parma who have a villa there. Boris was met by uncles, aunts and cousins and had a real homelike reunion.

The monarchs and princesses were recognized as they sped back to the lodge here and were cheered by the country folk.

It now seems likely that King Boris and his bride will leave Assisi, where the wedding will be held October 25, soon after the ceremony and proceed to Brindisi on the Adriatic where they will board the yacht Ferdinand. The yacht, escorted by four fast Italian auxiliary craft, is due at Varna, Bulgaria, November 1.

Ceremony Is Transferred.

The fact that November 1 is All Saints Day may cause some delay since the bride and other Catholics of the royal suite are bound to observe it, especially by attending mass. This may be solved by mass said by a Catholic chaplain aboard the ship or by the introduction of a pause in the welcoming festivities during which the princess may perform her church duty at the Catholic Church in Varna.

By last minute changes in the program of the wedding, the ceremony has been transferred from the lower church of St. Francis to the larger upper church. The marriage and benediction will be celebrated before the high altar. After this the bridal couple, with the other members of the royal family, will proceed to the lower church to pay their respects before the tomb of the venerable Maria of Savoia.

Otis Wingo, House Member, Expires

Arkansas Democra Fails to Rally From Operation in Baltimore.

Representative Otis Wingo (Democrat), Arkansas, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore shortly after 10 o'clock last night. Mr. Wingo, who had been ill for many monthes, failed to rally from an operation on Monday. He was said to have been suffering from gall stones.

Born June 18, 1877, in De Queen, Sevier County, Ark., he was educated in the public schools, Bethel College and McFerrin College, entering the practice of law in 1900. He was elected State senator in 1907 and 1909. Shortly afterward he married Effie Gene Locke, who survives him, along with two children, Blanche and Otis, jr., a sophomore at Princeton University.

He was elected to the Sixty-third and succeeding Congresses, including the Seventy-first. He had planned to retire from public life because of illness.

Representative Wingo lived at the Kenesaw Apartments, Sixteenth and Irving streets northwest. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

Harry F. Byrd to Talk At Rally of Democrats

Front Royal, Va., Oct. 21.—A Democratic rally will be held in Front Royal on Saturday night when former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, of Winchester, and Judge J. W. Fishburne, of Charlottsville, Democratic nominee for Congress from the Seventh Congressional District, will address the voters of Warren and adjoining counties. The speaking will be held in the High School Auditorium.

Judge Fishburne is opposing Representative J. A. Garber in the November election. This is the first political speaking which has been held in the county so far this fall.

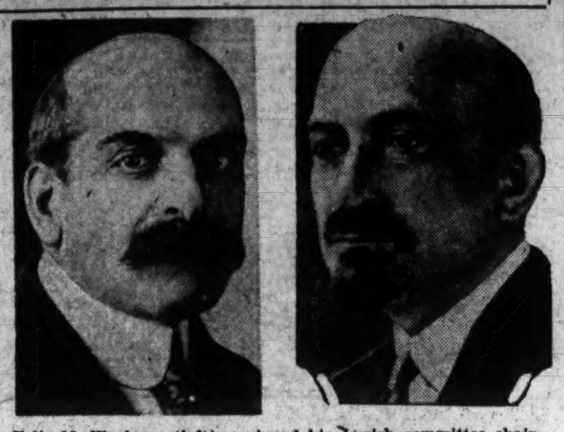
ZIONIST CRITICS OF BRITAIN



Felix M. Warburg (left), resigned his Jewish committee chairmanship yesterday and joined Dr. Chaim Weizmann in protesting against Great Britain's policy in the Palestine problem.

WARBURG RESIGNS POST, AND RAPS PALESTINE STAND

"But today I learn that the suggestion is that the financing of the agricultural program is to be for the Arab population largely, to be refunded by taxes on Palestine, which, naturally, will have to be paid in the main by the Jews of Palestine, who carry a disproportionate share of the burden of taxation.

"We now learn that Jewish immigration is to be totally restricted for the present, and the purchase of land to be surrounded with difficulties, so that even if funds are furnished to pay, however dearly, for the land, the transactions will still be rendered almost impossible.

"Those of us who tried to support a conservative approach in respect to the future and the upbuilding of Palestine, who assured the Arabs at every session of the agency that we had no ambition to rule over them or to be ruled, but to live and let live, can not but feel bitterly disappointed this day."

Among the American members of the administrative committee are Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, of New York; James Decker, of Chicago, and Judge William M. Lewis, of Philadelphia.

An all-day meeting today in the committee room of the Zionist organization of America laid plans for a protest demonstration.

London, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Asserting that the British government, by its attitude on Palestine, had broken faith with the Jews who gave their lives and money during the war, Lord Melchett, noted British industrialist and leader of British Jewery, resigned his chairmanship of two committees of the Jewish Agency today.

His letter of resignation was sent to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, who yesterday resigned the presidency of the Jewish Agency and the International Zionist Organization in protest against the government's white paper, which he interpreted as curtailing the activity of Jewish work in Palestine.

Lord Melchett said the government had been aided by Jews during the war but that the way the government had "wrecked the loyal support of the Jews was incredible."

Weizmann Makes Appeal.

"It is an act of almost unparalleled ingratitude and treachery committed by a government toward a credulous and harassed people," he said.

Lord Melchett (Alfred Mond) succeeded the late Louis Marshall as chairman of the Jewish Agency's council.

As president of the English Zionist Federation and chairman of the Jewish Agency's Council, Lord Melchett has been one of the leading figures in the movement for the upbuilding of Palestine.

An appeal to the Jewish people to bear witness to their loyalty to the Jewish National Home in Palestine by heightened energy and redoubled achievement was issued tonight by Dr. Weizmann.

Under the heading of "In an Insolent Hour," Dr. Weizmann said that he had decided to resign his two offices and had informed the government of his action. The fact that he had taken this step after twelve years of leadership of the Zionist organization and the Jewish Agency "in itself expresses the view that I take of the government statement," he said:

"It is my emphatic protest against the one-sided and unjust criticism of our work and of my refusal to accept a policy which is a direct contradiction to the solemn promises of the British nation and of the text of the Palestine mandate."

To Answer Government.

The Zionist Congress and the Council of the Jewish Agency will be given an opportunity without delay to answer the statement of the government in the name of the Jewish people, Dr. Weizmann asserted.

On relinquishing the leadership of the Zionist movement, Dr. Weizmann declared he was impelled to address a word to the Jewish people, "to the countless legions which adhere in unswerving loyalty to Zion. A stern test is before us, a time of struggle against new resistances and obstacles, but these fall upon a nation inured to adversity fit and ready to overcome them, a nation which has learned to rely on its own unaided strength.

"I appeal to the creative power of our people which believes in itself and in its great destiny, I myself cherishing these beliefs to the depths of my soul," he continued, "to the Jewish community in Palestine. I may stand fast in the tempered strength of your will and build on. We shall continue our work undaunted and single-minded.

Council Urges Session.

"To the friends of Zion in all lands I say, 'Close ranks and bear witness to your loyalty to the Jewish national home in word and deed by heightened energy and redoubled achievement. Prove to the world what Palestine is to us.' We shall stand by it undismayed and bring to it our tribute of love and devotion."

A statement by the executive council of the English Zionist Federation said tonight it "notes with deep sorrow that the mandatory power now has definitely declared itself opposed to the further development of the Jewish people in its natoinal home."

The council also urged the summoning of an extraordinary congress of the Zionist organization and a special meeting of the Jewish Agency to consider the "very grave situation that has now arisen and its bearings upon the future destiny of the Jewish people."

13 Injured in Movie Panic.

Murcia, Spain, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Thirteen persons attending a motion picture show were injured here today during a panic caused by a false fire alarm. They were trampled in a rush to the exits as some one shouted "Fire!" Three of the injured persons are in a serious condition.

NOTED SPANISH ACE THROWN INTO PRISON

Capt. Jimenez, Conqueror of Atlantic, Is Jailed for Political Acts.

SECOND FLIER ARRESTED

Madrid, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Capt. Ignacio Jimenez, Spanish transatlantic flier, was arrested today and placed in the Madrid military prison pending the outcome of charges that he made political declarations while in military service.

Capt. Jimenez was recently the author of a violent article published in the newspaper ABC, attacking all liberal and political elements. It also denounced the Berenguer government for reduction of the budget for development of aviation in Spain.

A law prohibits military men from writing in newspapers on other than technical subjects and forbids their making political declarations or otherwise mixing in politics.

Capt. Jimenez and Francisco Iglesias flew from Seville to South America in March 1929. Maj. Ramon Franco, another transatlantic flier, is still held in the prison where Capt. Jimenez is now confined. Maj. Franco was arrested on October 12, presumably for republican declarations attributed to him and published in a Cordoba newspaper.

New President Named By Bethesda Chamber

Capt. Chester Wells, of Chevy Chase, Md., was named president of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of the board of directors, it was announced yesterday, to fill the unexpired term of J. J. Miller, of Highland Park, who resigned six weeks ago to move to Germany.

Capt. Wells is a retired naval officer and is one of the large estate holders of suburban Montgomery County. He has taken an active part in the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce since its organization two years ago under the leadership of B. W. Parker. He is now chairman of the committee on public utilities and of the subcommittee on plans and specifications of the Montgomery County Courthouse building committee.

Loudoun County Woman Will Be Interred Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Oct. 21.—Funeral services for Miss Nettie M. Virts, employe of the Veterans Bureau, Washington, who died in the Loudoun County Hospital Sunday night, will be held from the residence of her sisters, Misses Elizabeth and Virginia Virts, in Purcellville, on Wednesday morning, at 11 o'clock. Miss Virts had been ill for some time at the home of her sisters before entering the hospital last Friday night. She was the daughter of the late James and Alverta Virts, of Hillsboro.

Surviving are four sisters, among them being Mrs. Robert Richardson and Mrs. Alva Boteler, of Washington. Interment will be in the Hillsboro Cemetery.

Rites for Theodore T. Van Sant.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 21 (Special) Funeral services were held today for Theodore T. Van Sant, 78 years old, veteran transfer man. Burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery with the rites of the Junior Order United American Mechanics. He is survived by two sons, Dorenzo E. Van Sant and J. Homer Van Sant.

Van Lear Black's Yacht Sold.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Van Lear Black's yacht, Sabalo, from which the publisher and flying enthusiast fell and perished off the Jersey coast August 18, has been sold to the Albert Pack Corporation, of Chicago, Harry Black, brother and administrator of the Black estate, told the Orphans Court today. The price was $45,000.

150 Wooded Acres Swept by Flames

Backfires Finally Check Blaze Which Started Near Muirkirk.

A forest fire yesterday burned nearly 150 acres of scrub timber near Muirkirk, Md. Firemen from five volunteer companies battled more than six hours before extinguishing the flames.

No dwellings were menaced by the blaze, although it came within a short distance of the little town. Forest Warden Frank B. Owens, in charge of the firefighters, said that it was one of the hottest blazes he had ever fought. Because of the terrific heat, ordinary methods of beating out the blaze could not be used, and it was finally checked and extinguished by backfiring.

Volunteer fire companies from Bladensburg, Riverdale, College Park, Branchville and Laurel sent their quota of firemen. Warden Owens said he was unable to estimate the damage, but added that it was not particularly large and that the timber was immature. He expressed the opinion that sparks from a railroad engine had started the flames.

Shultz Will Conduct County Red Cross Drive

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Oct. 21.—Albert Shultz has been selected to conduct this year's campaign in Staunton and Augusta County in behalf of the American Red Cross. The quota is $1,750.

Assisting Mr. Shultz will be D. Glenn Ruckman, chairman of special gifts; Harry Lovett, chairman of industrial and group enrollments; Miss Gilpin Willson, jr., chairman of house-to-house canvassers, and Mrs. R. Morris Armistead, chairman of publicity.

HOOVER AID IS ISSUE IN KEYSTONE STATE got himself in a devil of a fix in this respect several years ago."

Mr. Pinchot, who arrived in Pittsburgh late today after campaigning in Greene and Washington counties during the day, declined any comment because of the lack of confirmation from Washington of anything the President may have said.

(Associated Press.)

No comment was immediately forthcoming from the White House yesterday on the address of Gifford Pinchot, Republican gubernatorial candidate in Pennsylvania, saying that President Hoover stands for the election of the entire Republican ticket in the Keystone State.

It was understood, however, that the Pinchot remarks were conveyed to the White House and that a statement might be issued later.

Secretary Davis, Republican candidate for the Senate in Pennsylvania, refused to comment. He indicated that the statements on that subject made by himself Monday night at Uniontown represented the only public expression he wished to make at this time.

Blanche Bates, opening in "The Girl of the Golden West," at the Belasco, and Olga Nethersole in "The Labyrinth" at the National, played to packed houses of enthusiastic theatergoers, with all the critics raving about their marvelous performances.

The ground over the new tunnel under Capitol Hill sank to such an alarming degree that it has been found necessary to rope off the entire area and post a police guard to safeguard the public.

A record audience jammed the auditorium of the new Y. M. C. A. Building where the Rev. Frank M. Bristol, pastor of the Metropolitan M. E. Church, presided at the dedication of the edifice.

While Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pearson were at church, thieves broke into their home at 1217 Massachusetts avenue and stole jewelry worth about $1,000, but either missed or rejected a large quantity of heavy silverware.

Hundreds of persons were turned away because of lack of room as the Washington Saengerbund opened its winter season at its recital hall on C street.

William R. McKelden, who had been employed in the cash room of the Treasury Department for 40 years, died suddenly of apoplexy.

THE GOOFUS GRAF

The Goofus Graf looks like a Giraffe
When seen from the front or the side
Yet when viewed from the back
She looks like a shack
For her hips are most terribly wide.
She eats only greens and raw lima beans
Which she hopes will make her grow thin
And I hope that they may,
For as most people say
The way she is built is a sin!

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Season's Debs Make Merry At Tacky Ball

Tattered and Patched, Girls Frolic at Gay Party.

"HARK, hark, the dogs do bark,
The beggars have come to town,
Some in rags and some in tags
And none in velvet gowns."

Tattered and patched, the "girls on the shelf" tumbled into the Mayflower last night as hostesses to debs of the season at the long-awaited tacky ball, where farmers and farmerettes, nurse maids and coachmen rubbed elbows with tramps and "rubes" and nobody knew anybody else.

From east side and west side and all around the town they came, swains and debutantes in tacky blouses and run-down-at-the-heel duds, to initiate the season, not in evening dress and Paris gowns but in clothes that "matched" with hamburgers and coffee and cider, served at the supper hour on big barrels. Neither caviar nor ices had any place in the "picture" last night. Thick sandwiches and pickles were the piece de resistance at supper; clog dancing and circle two steps the entertainment; jokes and stunts the crowning fun of the evening.

On the side lines were fathers and mothers, tacky like their debutante daughters, and having just as much fun. It was one grand and glorious evening, the sort that comes once in a lifetime.

Among the debutantes were Miss Eleanor Calvert, dressed as an apache, and her sister, Miss Margaret Peyton Calvert, who wore a short, tight black dress trimmed with red bows, with countless strings of beads around her neck and wrists, and green shoes completing the ensemble.

Miss Devereux Green's dress of a dark colored chiffon, while very long and made with a full skirt, was far from being an up-to-date model, the Roman stripe sash and green hose, with a large red hat trimmed with flowers of all descriptions making it meet requirements for admittance.

Miss Elizabeth Edson wore a dark red suit, made with a long, tight skirt and fitted coat trimmed with black frogs, and her black hat was trimmed with a long white plume and red flowers. An orange colored feather fan was the only evidence of an evening costume.

Miss Margene Mussers crazy quilt dress was made with a white bodice and a blue silk and voile skirt; that is, what could be seen of it, for the patches and ornamental bows. One sleeve was made of black, red and yellow diamond shaped silks, and the other one was short dotted swiss. There was yellow brocaded silk around the neckline with a long purple and red streamer hanging from the neck nearly down to the bottom of the dress. In addition to the many bracelets she wore, there was also a wrist band of yellow ribbon holding a large blue bandana handkerchief. A very old mandarin skirt and a sombrero trimmed with blue velvet tassels and bright red geraniums is about all that can be remembered of her costume.

Miss Dorothy Dodge wore an empire style gown of pink chiffon trimmed with quantities of lace, Miss Virginia Glazebrook was in a bustle dress made with puff sleeves, and Miss Ruth Bryant appeared as a man in an antiquated full dress suit.

One of the most original of the parties which preceded the "tacky party" was the supper given by Miss Engracia Freyer for Miss Frances Virginia Waggaman. Quite in the spirit of the occasion was the checked tablecloth with candles set in bottles instead of candlesticks, and the menu, which consisted of such homely goodies as "hot dogs," dill pickles, ham, spaghetti and cheese and the ever popular old-fashioned pie.

The guests were Miss Helen Walker, Miss Caroline Sanderson, Miss Elizabeth Bawner, Miss Helen Stone, Miss Eunice Lee Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Bowman McArthur, Mr. and Mrs. Ennals Waggaman, jr., Mr. Calso Daly, Mr. William Brawner, Mr. Prescott Gatley, Mr. Paul Lutes, Mr. Milton Anderson, Mr. Henry Leverich, Mr. Howard Elting and Mr. George Clayton.

Miss Freyer made an entrancing dark-haired "Kiki," while Miss Waggaman was her redhead prototype.

Aids to President Hoover Are Ushers at Rite in Georgetown.

Miss Dorothy May Bailey, daughter of Maj. Neill E. Bailey, U. S. A., chairman of the Federal Traffic Board, and Mrs. Bailey, and Mr. Harold Norman Walsdorf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Walsdorf, of New Orleans, were married last night at 8 o'clock in Christ Church, Georgetown.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Temple, rector of the church. Mrs. Ronald J. Keppie, of Philadelphia, cousin of the bride, was the only attendant.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin, fashioned on long princess lines and with a long train. The ivory tulle veil was edged with rosepoint and she carried a lace handkerchief used by her grandmother, her mother and aunt when they were brides. The bride's bouquet was of chrysanthemums in ivory shades. Mrs. Keppie's gown was of blush pink satin made princess style and she carried butterfly roses and lilies of the valley.

Mr. Boyd Evans, of New Orleans, was the best man. The ushers were Lieut. Don Lowry and Lieut. Hamilton Young, of Washington, aids to President Hoover.

After the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of Maj. and Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Bailey wearing a costume of black velvet. Immediately afterward Mr. Walford and his bride left for the South. They will motor through the Southern States, making a stop at Birmingham for a visit with relatives. The bride's traveling costume is of dark green tweed trimmed with black caracul. Mr. and Mrs. Walsford will make their home in New Orleans.

The bride was graduated from Newcomb College at New Orleans, and Mr. Walsford attended Tulane University there, where he was affiliated with the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity. Mrs. Walsford is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity.

Among guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. A. C. von Gundell, grandparents of the bride, from Asheville, and her aunt, Mrs. Clieland Willoman, also of Asheville; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Siddall, of Chicago and Mrs. Nielson, of Philadelphia.

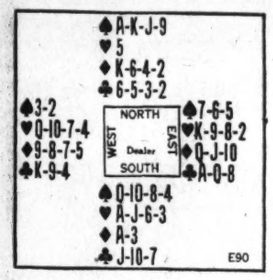
WORK ON BRIDGE



COULD YOU HAVE MADE MORE?

The bidding with the above hand at Auction Bridge was: South one No Trump, West pass, North two Spades, all pass.

At Contract Bridge it probably would have been: South one No Trump, West pass, North three Spades, East pass, and South four Spades. A worthless singleton is not as great a menace in the supporting hand as it is in the hand of the bidder of a No Trump, and as a general rule it is not wise to take out a No Trump with a four-card major suit; but in this case, with so strong a major it was wise to give South the choice between Spades and No Trump.

In Contract, bidding three of a major suit over the one No Trump forces the partner to bid for game. This take-out bid is supposed to show a good five-card major suit and a count of at least 11. With that count he would jump to three No Trumps if he did not have the major suit-bid.

In Auction it would be quite questionable whether the take-out should be made; but even in that game the bid of two Spades over one No Trump gives South the option between Spades and No Trumps, and he will rebid his No Trump if short Spades. However, in either game South will assume that North has five Spades.

It will be noted that North and South can make only one No Trump, but they can make four Spades provided the Declarer does not make the very common mistake (with cross-ruffing possibilities) of leading trumps. When the hand was played, East led a Diamond and Declarer made that very mistake. Dummy won with the Ace and three trumps were led. After that the Declarer was able to win one Diamond, one Heart and to make the two remaining trumps separately, but fell short of game.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The proper play of the hand with Spades the trump would be as follows: East would lead the Queen of Diamonds; North would win with the King and lead the singleton Five of Hearts, dummy winning that trick with the Ace and returning the Trey which North would ruff. Dummy now would be put in once more with the Ace of Diamonds and North would ruff another Heart with the Ace, after which North would lead a Diamond and ruff in dummy. A fourth Heart lead ruffed by North with the King, and then high trumps to take all but the last three tricks.

Dare Interprets the Mode

An ensemble of unusual elegance shows a heavy dull-finish white satin dress with a brown wool coat lined and showing revers and a double front effect of the same satin. The coat is lavishly trimmed in beige fox. (Courtesy of the Maison Redfern, Paris.)

New York, Oct. 21.

TELL you why I think they do.

Because no one would ever really buy a costume like this, unless it were one of the three, or is it four? remaining queens of Europe—or one of the 30 or 40 queens of the drama.

I think they do it because that irresistible urge to out and do something that isn't supposed to sell, nor be a "successful model" gets the better of them. I think that when he, she or they design such outfits, they do so knowing that they won't be sold, and not caring. And knowing that it is artistic, and that it will make up the "ohs" and "ahs" of the collection.

And sometimes it is a big hit, and every one is surprised and pleased—save the designer, who usually has sense enough to smile mysteriously, thereby inferring that he, she or they knew it would be, all along.

And that, my dahr-lings, is what makes the fashion wheels go 'round!

The above outpouring was allowed to flow because of the ravishing—and impractical, Redfern ensemble I sketched for you today, just to show you what they still do sometimes. White satin, the dress, and a white satin that was delightfully dull, not shiny. And what a gorlicious coat! All white satin lines, and with a double front effect to the satin, that buttoned and wide lapels of the satin again. And then lots of beige fox, which set off well the brown of the woolen coat. Satin, woolen and fur, and a cleaner's bill that only a queen could foot. But then, Redfern has been making clothes for Europe's queens for a half a century, hasn't he?

• • • •

How about it? Yeah, I'm just as bored with the week's leaflets, week in, week out, as you are, but gee, I hafta make 'em, all you hafta do is write for 'em. 'Nif you don't sit down and write out that stamped, self-addressed envelope right this minute to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, my dee-lite-ful editor will think that you don't love me any more, and never guess that it just slipped your mind, and that you knew all along that you couldn't live without my new leaflet of Masquerade Costumes. 'Cause you can't, nohow, it's so full of so many new costumes that you never even dre-e-e-e-emed of before. I dreamed of some of 'em after an Ill de France dinner from caviar to nuts, so you can imagine they are good.

• • • •

Ask to see hand made lingerie, hand embroidered and everything, but not necessarily French. Philippines and Porto Rico drawn work and embroidery is delicate and lovely, and much less expensive than the French handwork on lingerie.

And remember, the straight, chemise-like lingerie is as demode (pronounced "day-mode-day") as the straight, tube frock. Everything, from undervest to costume slip, must be waistline fitted, or how can it be smooth and nice under our more form-fitted frocks?

• • • •

No, the wrap around type of underskirt, that fastens at the natural waistline instead of hanging from the shoulder straps, is not practical. It refutes its own ends, that of slimness, by working around and bunchily under a tight outer skirt. Instead, straight underskirts, especially those for evening wear, must have their fullness more skillfully contrived with pleats and godets.

We know you'll enjoy Dare's weekly fashion letter in The Washington Post every Sunday.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF October 22 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are 11 a. m. to noon, from 4:30 p. m. to 6 p. m., and 10:30 p. m. to 11:50 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:15 a. m., and from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m.

Guard your physical welfare on this date, as accidents are shown. Disruptive influences within the home, which may be offset by tact and unspoken thoughts. Money made on one hand, and lost on the other. Prepare for some distant news or grief!

The child born on this October 22 will have great strength of will, determination and power of concentration, and may be bent, but not broken. It will have a quick mental grasp and comprehensiveness, and will be an A-1 student. It will enjoy much popularity and have many friends.

You are a self-important personage, and if you are not actually domineering and arrogant, you, are from the other person's point of view, the embodiment of all that is cold and hard and unsympathetic. You seem to be imbued with the unshakable conviction that you and yours are the pick of creation, and that the rest of the world is comprised of the "profanum vulgus." You are inclined to carry a chip on your shoulder and as you travel through life you are on the lookout for grievances, and are ready to discover at every turn that you have been imposed upon. You adopt an ultra-critical attitude, and refuse to be impressed by anything, and are capable of traveling from coast to coast and finding all barren. You are fussy, fastidious, unadaptable and unappreciative.

Your superiority complex, however, does not make you a creature of all faults and no virtues. Your "nerve" will carry you far, and you do not know the meaning of fear. You have a fertile mind, but prejudice makes you somewhat narrow in your views. You are a generous spender, and among your friends you display a good disposition and are a good sport. You would make a splendid family man, or a good wife and mother, as the case may be. You stick by your guns through thick and thin, and your convictions are not wishy-washy. You have spiritual desires, but suppressed ones, and you seek a practical religion.

Successful people born October 22:

James Manning, first president of Brown University.

Leopold Damrosch, musician.

Annie Louise Cary, singer.

Martin Luther, reformer.

James A. Gary, Postmaster General under President McKinley.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

TYPHOID FEVER.

A SEARCH of the medical literature, as indexed in the index volumes of the Journal of the American Medical Association, the Quarterly Cumulative Index, and the Index Medicus extending as far back as 1910, has failed to disclose any typhoid fever proved to be caused by bottled beverages, or even by bottled waters not classed as beverages. It has happened that a bottled water supply has been condemned because of its bacterial count, or because of the presence of colon group bacilli, but not even these specimens have been proved to have caused typhoid fever.

In the latter years condemnations on bacterial counts and colon bacillus in even bottled waters are becoming rare. A review of the animal reports of typhoid fever in American cities, published by the Journal of the American Medical Association, and the editorials, comments, and articles relating thereto for the same period, does not show bottled waters or bottled beverages as a cause of typhoid fever. These reports are collected from official reports, some in reply to correspondence and some as published. Several of these reports include discussion of the causes of the disease in the respective cities. In no review is there reference to bottled beverages or waters.

It is interesting to note the great decline of water and milk as etiological factors, and the increase in importance of carriers, of vacations, and of oysters. Bottled waters escape notice.

The weakness of this argument lies in the fact that in from 32 to 60 per cent of the cases of typhoid fever, in some half-dozen large cities with the best developed health departments, the cause of the disease is not discovered.

FIND THE BASIC CAUSE.

T. W. T. writes: Is there no cure for catatonia How does it act and are they usually bed patients? What is generally the cause of this sickness? Can people live many years with it?

REPLY.

Catatonia is merly a state and one that can develop in hysteria on the one hand, in dementia on the other, and almost anywhere in between. How serious it is depends on its association. If a hysteria becomes catatonic, a good licking or its equivalent is the only treatment required. On the other hand, when a community hangs, or otherwise seriously punishes a catatonic dementia precox, it does not reflect credit on itself. A catatonic dementia precox is generally a bed patient. As a rule, they do not live long. Search for the cause must go back to the trouble of which the catatonia is a phase.

BOY IS OVERWEIGHT.

R. M. V. writes:

I am a boy 12 years old and weigh 105 pounds. Several teachers have said this is bad. Can you confirm this? If so, can you recommend anything to cure or remove superfluous weight?

REPLY.

You are overweight, but how much we can not say without knowing your height. A weight of 85 pounds is normal for a 12-year-old boy 4 feet 10 inches tall or average medium height. My guess is that your obesity is due to abnormality of some ductless gland. If so, the best plan is to have a physician give you the proper gland therapy.

IT MAY BE RINGWORM.

C. B. writes: What causes the skin to peel off all the time with red spots under where the skin peels off? This is a condition of the feet.

REPLY.

The probable explanation is ringworm of the feet. Your physician can cure this.

WHY HOUSE PLANTS FAIL TO THRIVE.

AS I explained in this column a few weeks ago, you can not always definitely tell why a house plant becomes dejected and ceases to put forth new growth, but there are some conditions which, if they exist where there are a few growing plants, we know by experience will interfere with the plants' welfare.

For example, if plants are starved for water which carries food; if they have insects on the lower side of their leaves or if they are standing in jardinieres with "wet feet," their leaves will turn yellow.

We can be reasonably sure when the end of the shoots or ends of the leaves turn brown and become brittle that they are suffering from too hot or too dry air or perhaps both. We can easily lower the temperature of the room, but adding to it moisture requires more thought. The easiest way to do this is to spray the plants lightly three times a week. This method keeps the pores of the leaves open and also adds to the appearance of the plants. The best way to spray a few house plants is to carry them to the bathroom or laundry tubs and turn the shower on them.

Rubber plants, palms and ferns should be sprayed frequently with cold, soapy water. This will not only keep the foliage free from dust but will also prevent the advent of the red spider.

As a rule when a plant begins to drop its buds, as does the fuchsia and impatience sultana, you can usually be sure that you are giving it too much water or not enough sunlight. This is a condition that may be easily changed.

When such plants as the heliotrope or lantana become "leggy," meaning the main stems of the plant are too long and the foliage is sparse, it is an indication that they require to be pinched back. It will not hurt them at all to cut them back a third. All house plants should be submerged in water over the rim of the pot about once in two weeks. This should be made routine treatment, because this method of watering plants is sure to supply the necessary moisture for the lowest roots in the pot.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Nurses Save Girl's Life By Pressing Vital Vein

Belleville, Ill., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Nurses at St. Elizabeths Hospital here, sitting in two hour relays with a finger pressed tightly against an incision in the external jugular vein of Josephine Jarvis, 9, of Lebanon, Ill., probably have saved the little girl's life.

Flying glass from the windshield of the Jarvis car, driven by her mother, severed the vein and a branch of the facial artery, when the Jarvis car and another collided Monday morning. The flow of blood from the jugular wound could be be stopped only by pressing a finger against it and nurses did this from the time the girl was rushed to the hospital in the morning until 6 o'clock yesterday evening. Doctors today said she probably would recover.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

EGGS AT ANY MEAL.

(Bureau of Animal Industry.)

Eggs may be served at any meal and in a variety of ways. Probably no other single article of food can be utilized in greater number of dishes. Whether alone or with ham or bacon, or in omelettes, souffles or croquettes, eggs may appear in the main dish of any meal. Many quick breads, cakes, salad dressings, sauces, desserts and beverages not only taste better and look more attractive when made with a liberal proportion of eggs, but they are also higher in food value. In whatever way they are served, eggs are a good course of efficient protein and some of the minerals and vitamins needed for building the body and keeping it healthy.

The secret of success in cooking eggs and dishes in which eggs predominate is to cook slowly, at moderate, even heat.

Argentine Vice President Ill.

Buenos Aires, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Enrique Santa Marina, vice president of Argentina, is ill and for the last few days has not appeared at his office. Doctors having recommended absolue rest, the vice president will leave tomorrow for his country residence.

"So Delightfully Fresh and Clean"

"THAT'S how Manhattan sends my laundry back all the time. And their "Net Bag System" of washing saves me money by saving my clothes."

No wonder thousands of Washington housewives are so enthusiastic about Manhattan's modern laundering Methods. Clothes are individually inspected and sorted according to color and material into Net Bags which protect them from all hard surfaces. The pieces are subject only to the gentle cleansing action of pure Palm Oil soap and many rinsings of soft, filtered water. This gives them that clean, sweet freshness, so characteristic to well-laundered clothes. Best of all Manhattan-laundered clothes wear longer, saving you money. And in just three days Manhattan collects, launders and delivers your clothes. Called for Monday morning they come back Wednesday afternoon; collected Wednesday, returned Friday, and so on. No delay or worry when Manhattan has your clothes. Start using this economical service today by phoning for our representative. He will be glad to explain details to you.

IT WAS LOCKED

By JOHN HAWK.

Robin Smith, young poet, accepts an invitation to a house party because Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love, will also be present. After quarreling with the Earl of Winston, Gwendolen's brother, and Donald Flint, her fiance, he locks the door of his bedroom and flees through the window back to his attic room. The Earl of Winston is missed, and on a search the earl's dead body is found under Robin's bed. The poet is arrested. Scotland Yard detectives return him to Alston Manor, the scene of the murder. He is questioned. The poet is held for the coroner's inquest.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER 17.

"Lady Dorothy," commences the coroner respectfully, "you have viewed the body in the next room. You can identify it?"

"I can. It is the body of Lord Winston." Her voice is low, but firm.

"When did you last see Lord Winston alive?"

"After dinner, about nine or half-at nine on the night of his death."

"Was he quite well then?"

"Certainly." A note of asperity had crept into her voice, as if she found this useless questioning too distasteful to be borne.

"You noticed nothing unusual in any way?"

"Nothing."

"Where was he when you last saw him?"

"In the garden near the pond."

"Alone?"

"He was talking with Miss Haddon."

"You did not see him again until his body was discovered some hours later?"

"I did not."

"Do you know of any disagreeable words passing between Mr. Robin Smith and the dead man?" The coroner looks closely at Lady Dorothy as he waits for her answer; the twelve men lean forward in their seats expectantly.

"I . . . why . . . nothing actually," she replies hesitatingly. She is obviously troubled.

"Think well, Lady Dorothy. At the time of their introduction did not Mr. Smith make a threat. . . . ?"

"Oh, no! Not that! Lord Winston was rather rude in a bantering way, and he merely retaliated."

"Can you recall his exact words?"

"I'm afraid I can't. . . ."

"That will be all."

Lady Dorothy returns to her chair. Her brow is puckered in a perplexed frown. She is disturbed by this opening of the case. The coroner and the jury seemed so anxious to hear something against Robin. The poet is also a shade paler than he was.

Dr. Middlebury is next called. He is a clean-shaven, gray-faced man of middle age, of kindly demeanor, and looks what he is, a country practitioner. He makes the usual deposition. Just before midnight on Friday he was called to Alston Manor. Here he found the body of the dead man with a knife still in his heart. He judged him to have been dead about two hours. The wound, he is prepared to say, could not have been self-inflicted. That is all. He resumes his seat.

"Sir George Opie!"

With slow, deliberate steps Sir George moves his great bulk to a place of prominence near the coroner. He is known to be a member of Parliament and a man of affairs. All twelve pairs of eyes are turned curiously on him.

"I understand, Sir George, that with your wife you were a guest at the house at the time this unhappy affair occurred. Will you tell us when and in what circumstances you last saw the deceased alive?"

"It was in the garden, about nine-thirty, I should say. Miss Haddon left him and came to talk with me, and Lord Winston walked toward the rose garden. He was alone."

"What did you do then?"

"I returned to the music room, and Miss Haddon soon followed me."

"Who was there at that time?"

"As I remember, Lady Dorothy Alston, Lady Gwendolen Winston, my wife, and Mr. Smith were the only ones there when I returned."

"Did Mr. Smith remain during the remainder of the evening?"

"He left while Miss Haddon and Prince Rosolevsky were playing, ostensibly to get his poems to read to the guests."

"You think he had some ulterior motive?"

"I can not say," Sir George's voice contradicted his words. The twelve men feel that he could say much if he would.

"When did you miss the two men?"

"About half an hour after the poet left the room we became anxious."

"And you went in search of him?"

"I went to find Lord Winston. I became alarmed."

"Tell the gentlemen of your search."

"I went first to the billiards room, knowing that it was a habit of Lord Winston's to practice by himself. The room was empty. In returning I passed the small room on the half-landing which Mr. Smith was occupying, and knocked. There was no answer. I knocked again, and louder. The maid, hearing me, came to ask what the trouble was, and she joined her knocking to mine."

"Did you try the door?"

A wave of suppressed excitement sweeps through the room. Every eye is riveted on Sir George.

"I did. It was locked." The short words fell from his lips crisply. He folds his hands behind his back and waits.

"Did you not think that strange?"

"I did. I was alarmed, and hurried to Lord Winston's room. The door was open and the room was empty."

"What did you do then?"

"I hastened back to the music room hoping to find the men had returned in my absence."

"But they had not?"

"No. By then we were all alarmed, and Mr. Armstrong offered to break the lock, as Lady Dorothy did not possess a duplicate key. He broke the lock. * * *"

"What time was this?"

"Close to midnight, I fancy. I did not consult my watch. We were too engrossed with other matters to notice the time."

"And when the room was opened, tell the jury what you found."

"We found Lord Winston lying on his face on the floor, and partly concealed by the valances of the bed."

"You knew at once it was Lord Winston?"

"I personally had no doubt from the first. But the body was not actually identified until Mr. Armstrong turned it over so that we could see the face. Then we saw the knife protruded from his left breast, and I knew in a flash that he had been murdered!"

The twelve men draw their breath in, and sit staring intently at the witness. He is a reliable man, is this member of Parliament, one whom they can trust to see things clearly.

Robin has listened intently to every word. When Sir George has finished, he knows only too well that the likelihood of his story being believed is less than ever. By the time he is called every man in the jury will be hostile to him; that much is clear. It is a grim, an unpleasant thought. For he knows that he must make a plea for his immediate freedom, if not for his very life. Robin looks at Lady Gwendolen, almost hoping for a sympathetic glance, but her eyes are lowered. Only her slim white hands move nervously in the lap of her black dress.

"Lady Gwendolen Winston!"

Robin starts as the coroner calls the name; it is like an echo of his heart which has been calling to her.

She rises unsteadily, looking thinner in her black dress. Her black eyes shine like two burning coals from the dead pallor of her tired face. But she stands firmly, and waits with composure for the first question.

"I understand," commences the coroner with great gentleness, "that you were worried about your brother's absence. Will you tell the jury if there was any special reason for this?"

"No, none * * *" Her voice is so low as to be scarcely audible. Robin is shaken by the sweet, husky voice. He forgets for the moment that it is his life that is in question, and thinks only of her sorrow.

"Yet you were so nervous that you fainted when the door to Mr. Smith's room was forced open. I feel there must have been some reason. * * *"

"No, none. * * *" she repeats in a whisper.

"Tell the jury what occurred earlier in the evening between you, your brother, Mr. Flint, and Mr. Smith."

Lady Gwendolen raises startled dark eyes to the coroner. She is totally unprepared for that question.

"Why, there was nothing, really," she begins hesitatingly. "Mr. Smith misunderstood * * * he did not know that Mr. Flint was my fiance."

Neither did the coroner nor the jurymen, by their evident astonishment at Lady Gwendolen's words There is a murmur of surprise in many quarters.

"You admit that he and your brother had words?"

"Hardly that," she replies more firmly. After some instants of silence she adds: "I think you are all wrong. I am sure Mr. Smith knows nothing of the matter. * * *"

Robin's heart begins to sing loudly at this admission. He feels the color mount to his ears, as the blood rushes wildly through his veins. He has the intensest desire to throw himself at her feet, to bless her for her dear faith. But the coroner is taking her remark in quite a different spirit.

"We can't have any expression of personal opinion. It is strictly forbidden. I must ask you to confine your replies to answers to my questions." His voice is hard. It is clear that she is hurting Robin's cause rather than helping it.

After a moment the coroner asks: "Did you recognize the knife with which your brother was murdered?"

"I did. * * *"

"When and where had you last seen it?"

"In our old home in Canada many years ago. It was a knife that was given to him during a hunting trip when I was about 12. I remember it very well."

"You have never seen it since?"

"Never that I remember."

"He might have brought it back with him this time without your seeing it?"

Oh, yes; but I don't think he did."

The coroner frowns, and the twelve men of the jury frown.

"You have some definite reason for doubting it?"

"Only that it was unlike him. He hated weapons of every kind."

"Still, he might have had it, and it might have been obtained from him or where he had left it. There had been time?"

"There had been time, certainly; but——"

"That is all for the present, Lady Gwendolen," the coroner interrupts her abruptly.

She bows her head, and with stooped shoulders and eyes on her feet retraces her steps to her chair, where Donald Flint deftly places a cushion for her comfort as he tenderly whispers words of encouragement.

"Donald Flint!"

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

SINCE it is an easy task to move a show from Baltimore to Washington, Mr. Ed Wynn will come direct from his Saturday night performance in the Monumental City to a Sunday night opening here at the Belasco. "The Perfect Fool," as he calls himself, will be seen in his own production, "Simple Simon," which he purchased from Mr. Flo Ziegfeld. Wynne will have the honor of putting the first musical show of many seasons on the stage of the Belasco.

* * * *

On the night following, next Monday, Mrs. Fiske will start her repertoire in the National Theater with the first of three plays, "Ladies of the Jury." This play, by Fred Ballard, who wrote "Believe Me, Xantippe," years and years ago, had its premiere in Baltimore last season and eked out a good run in New York. It will be seen here the first three nights and the Wednesday matinee, after which Mrs. Fiske goes back to old familiar scripts, "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," on Thursday night, and "Becky Sharp" the rest of the engagement.

* * * *

Mary Bundy is dead. Though few theatergoers knew her last name, nearly every person who ever entered the portals of the Belasco came to know "Old Mary," at the water-stand—a relic, she was, of a by-gone day. Ill only one day, Mary filled up the little paper cups with sparkling Adam's Ale one night last week and the next day had gone to join the heavenly choir. As Stoddard Taylor writes: "Mary was known to many, many of our patrons and our players and was beloved by all. She possessed a heart of gold. We shall all miss her very, very much. I have lost a rare friend who had been with me for twenty years." Old Mary's infectious laugh will always be remembered by those fortunate enough to have heard it.

* * * *

There was a time when Washington got most of the premieres; but the neighboring town of Baltimore has run away with the honors—if they are honors—this year. To date, five new conceptions have braved the Baltimore stages, against two for the season in Washington. This week Mr. Harry Henkel, manager of Ford's, is entertaining a piece that was the rage in the Comedie Francaise where it played as "The Merchant of Paris." Winthrop Ames, who made the adaptation from Edmond Fleg's comedy, now calls the piece "Mr. Samuel," has changed the locale from Paris to New York and has Edward G. Robinson in the title role, that of a keen old Jewish merchant. It goes to New York soon.

* * * *

While other local managers are taking care of current attractions, Mr. Duke Fosse, at the Auditorium, is preparing for the future. He is setting his house in order for the great audience he expects in attendance at The Frieburg Passion Play. This super attraction, with a cast that numbers in hundreds, gets started here next week.

* * * *

This afternoon at 4 o'clock Mr. Stoddard Taylor throws open the doors of the Belasco Theater for a special matinee performance of the Denishawn Dancers. For many years Washingtonians have gone to see Ted Shawn and his Denishawn dancers, and always there is something new on tap. This afternoon will probably be no exception. Since the last appearance here the dancers have attracted crowds in many cities, and are still going strong.

Ethiopians Cordial Hosts As U. S. Delegation Arrives

Torrid Trip Mitigated by Hospitality and Kindness on Way to Addis Ababa, Where Ras Tafari's Coronation Will Be Held.

Addis Ababa, Abyssinia, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—After a torrid five-day voyage from Port Said down the Red Sea and an equally hot trip by rail through French Somaliliand and Abyssinia, the American delegation to the coronation of Ras Tafari, emperor of Ethiopia, arrived today. They were cordially greeted by the crown prince.

Throughout the 500-mile run over a narrow-gauge railroad, the Americans were welcomed with lavish hospitality and kindness by native princes, tribal chieftains and government officials. They were given banquets which included roast mountain goat and parridges and were entrusted with greetings to President Hoover and the American people.

As an additional compliment to the Americans Ras Tafari placed his solid gold dinner service at their disposal.

The special train carrying the Americans was decorated with the stars and stripes, flags made specially for the occasion by the Abyssinian government, which fluttered alongside the Abyssinian national colors.

At all stations along the route tribal leaders and many of their warriors, armed with rifles, medieval scimitars, lances, spears and shields of hippopotamus hide embellished with gold were lined up as a guard of honor for the American delegation.

The envoys were the first of twelve groups to arrive in Abyssinia. The tribal lords and clansmen wore white togas, brilliant crimson jackets or lion skins. With their miniature arsenals they presented a remarkable picture. None of these mountain dwellers ever before saw an American. All appeared struck with wonder by the white faces and modern garb of the visitors.

As the train made its way over the highlands many antelopes, monkeys and gazelles were observed scampering across the fields.

The reception at Addis Ababa was particularly impressive and picturesque. As the Americans left their train, in company with the Ethiopian crown prince, they were greeted by the strains of the "Star-Spangled Banner," played by native musicians. It sounded especially appealing 6,000 miles from home.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

WHAT is more pitiful than the misunderstandings that arise between those who really care for each other above all things and all people on earth? Love, respect, self-respect even are forgotten in the whirlpool of indignation and resentment that floods the soul over some perfectly imaginary situation. One believing one thing, the other believing something entirely different and neither one wise enough or poised enough to stop and think, or wait and ask. Just headlong into some unjust and frequently absurd conclusion. It is happening in families every day. It is breaking up homes and smashing up lives. It is depriving little children of one or both of the parents every child needs all the way through life. It is probably one of the things that is making your home something less than the perfect sanctuary of love that every home should be. Why do people allow misunderstandings to arise and blight life? Precious days and hours spoiled and wasted, dear ones hurt to the heart. Is that what we were meant to do with life and love?

Here is Janie'h story of fourteen wasted years and a shattered love all through the sort of thing you are doing with your life and I am doing with mine. Every one rushing at every one else headlong and wild-eyed. Does it pay?

Dear Miss McDonald:

My letter is not asking for advice, but to give it. I am still young and still in love with my husband from whom I am divorced. He is now married so there is no hope for me. But I read your column all the time and sometimes with tears in my eyes, for I know so well what these girls are going through. If you really love anyone and begin to doubt them it is agony and no other word fits the situation. I married at 18 and for three years I was in heaven. Then a much older woman told me something about my husband. It nearly killed me. I was far from my people and waiting for the greatest event of a woman's life. He was on a trip. And, according to my informant, with another woman as companion. In a daze I wired my mother I was coming home My baby was born and died one week later at my parents' home.

When I left I wrote my husband that I did not care to see him again and not to attempt to follow me. As he had never been welcome in my parents' home I knew he would make no such attempt and he did not. He wrote me that my movements were my own affair and sent me $500. That naturally confirmed in my mind every charge the woman had made.

I felt he was relieved to be rid of me so easily. He thereafter sent me $150 a month. And never wrote me a line. He was 36 and I was 21. My folks insisted that I should get a divorce, but I did not want to sever the tie between us. It was something. And I had to have something to make our three years of happiness seem more than a dear dream.

Then, one day came a letter from his lawyer. Two years had passed. He wanted a divorce and would continue the monthly check. What could I do? I immediately jumped to the conclusion that he wanted to marry the woman, and I did not contest. Ten years passed, and on a visit to friends I met the woman who had told me the tale. She referred to it casually as "the gossip about Pete." The gossip! I said, "Why, wasn't it true?" and she said, "For heaven's sake, no; it was just some woman who followed him around. She was daffy about him, but he did not reciprocate. He and my husband made the same towns and my husband told me all about it." All that I had suffered in all those twelve years came down upon me at once. I managed to get home and tell mother. She said, "Where there's smoke, there's fire," but even she seemed shocked. Well, it was weak, but I was ill, and so I wrote my husband for the first time since I left him. And his answer is all that is left to me of life. He said that he had never dreamed that I had left him for such reason, but thought my people had finally worked upon me and convinced me that he was too old! Too old! My darling too old! Then I realized that he was always worrying about that, always asking me if I was sorry I had passed up the "kids and good times" for a "settled old man." Well, he is married and has four children. And I have his letter. "JANIE."

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

His Majesty.

Alice had cut a fine paper crown out of newspaper, and with it perched upon her head and a woolly toy kitten in front of her, was busily dramatizing the story of the king who lost his kitten when her mother called her to lunch.

Alice apparently did not hear, for her voice continued uninterrupted in its dialogue between the king and his kitten.

Mother came to the door of the living room.

"Alice, didn't you hear me? It's time for lunch."

Alice looked up with a far away expression. "In a little while, mother."

"The lunch is on the table and it's getting cold." But Alice had already shifted her attention to her play.

"You heard me speak to you, Alice. You're a very naughty little girl; come at once."

"But mother, I'm a king, and I'm busy."

"Oh, I see." Mother waited a moment. "Your Majesty, dinner is served, and perhaps your majesty's kitten is hungry, too."

Alice looked up and smiled. "All right, kitty, let's eat," she said, and picking the kitten up in her arms, she trotted promptly into the dining room.

There are some who believe that tactics such as these undermine the morals of obedience. They would regard it as an unnecessary concession to a child's whim.

It seems to me, however, that anything which produces obedience without making the child feel that he is being coerced is justifiable so long as it is not in the nature of a bribe.

In the long run it is upon parental soundness of judgment in essentials and upon tact in the handling of numerous small daily situations that obedience depends.

A child obeys cheerfully only an individual toward whom he has good will.

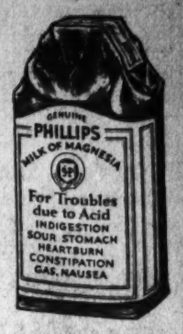
WHEN PAIN COMES...

Two hours after eating



WHAT many call "indigestion" is very often nothing but excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. The best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard anti-acid with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this more pleasant way. A small bottle is sufficient to show its merit.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for more than 50 years in correcting excess acid. 25c and 50c a bottle; any drugstore. Complete directions for its many uses, are enclosed with every bottle.

The Genuine Milk of Magnesia is always a liquid—never a tablet. Look for the Phillips' name on the bottle.

Some Specialists In Excess Fat Make Thousands Thin

Since this new discovery

In old days, doctors were not often consulted in obesity. People simply assumed that excess fat meant too much food, too little exercise. They feared the doctor would prescribe starvation.

Now that has changed. Science has discovered that a scanty gland secretion is a great cause of excess fat. Doctors the world over know how to correct it. And some of them are telling thousands the way to normal figures.

The factor they use is employed in Marmola prescription tablets. A world-famous medical laboratory prepares them to fit the average case. Thus anyone can now deal with obesity in the right way at small cost. This way supplies a lacking factor which largely controls nutrition. It helps turn food into fuel and energy when too much goes to fat. No help in all medicine is more widely accepted today.

Marmola has been used for 24 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others about it, and the use has spread. Now you can see its results in every circle. Excess fat has been fast disappearing. Slender figures are everywhere the vogue.

Now excess fat is folly. It takes so little to correct it. No abnormal exercise or diet. Combat the gland cause. Think what the results will mean in beauty, health and vim.

All druggists supply Marmola at $1. A book in each box gives the formula and explains the reasons for results. It means doing what doctors do, instead of something harmful or absurd. Go start today.

Montgomery County Man Declares Platform Is Contrary to Facts.

GRAND JURY RECALLED

Declaring that the charges against the Montgomery County administration as outlined in the Republican platform are in direct contradiction to the facts brought forth by the Montgomery County grand jury upon which he served in the March term of 1930, Ward Savage, of Olney, Md., yesterday announced his resignation as a Republican judge of election for the First Precinct of Olny District. Mr. Savage had served as Republican judge of elections continuously since 1922, he stated.

In his letter of resignation, which has been received by Laurason B. Riggs, president of the Montgomery County Board of Election Supervisors, Mr. Savage sets forth that he is unwilling to continue his affiliation with the Republican party and that he intends as soon as it is possible to affiliate as a Democrat and support Gov. Ritchie and the entire State and county Democratic ticket, with the exception of one or two personal friends, in the November election.

"My reasons are that I served as a member of the last grand jury," Mr. Savage states. "At the end of our deliberations we made a legally required report in which the below paragraphs appear, the same being a public document on record in the courthouse at Rockville.

"When this grand jury assembled, it is a matter of common knowledge that more than one-half of the grand jury were either Republicans anti-Democrats or independent Democrats not factionally associated with the county administration wing of the Democratic party," he states.

Mr. Savage then cites several paragraphs from the report of the grand jury, which gives the county administration a clean bill of health in regard to charges of unfair assessments:

"We have investigated a number alleged unequal real estate assessments that have been called to our attention, and in every case we find that these assessments are fair, proportional and in line with the general plan of assessments in the county. We have also investigated several cases where county pensions have been alleged to have been paid after the death of persons named as beneficiaries and found that in every case payment of county pensions ended with the death of the beneficiary.

"We have also investigated the tax status of several pieces of privately owned property which were alleged not to be upon the county tax books and find that these properties are on the tax books, at the same ratio of assessments as adjacent properties.

"With reference to a number of new roads that have been built or are being built in the county from proceeds of recent bond issues, and which roads are alleged to unduly and improperly increase the value of privately owned property of various owners, we find that the roads that have been called to our attention in Montgomery County have, in our opinion, been properly located and built for the general benefit of the sections of the county in which they are located and to wisely serve local and through traffic.

"We have further investigated a number of charges of illegal and improper acts on the part of the county officials and do not find any such charges supported by fact.

"Our investigations have convinced us that all county expenditures were for the best interest of the people of Montgomery County."

Mr. Savage then states: "I now find that the Republican party platform boldly states a number of charges against the county administration which are in conflict with the above report. I am not willing to be a party to this platform or to support the candidates who are running on such an untrue statement made to the voters of this county."

Copies of the letter have been sent to Frank Dwyer, Republican member of the board of election supervisors, and Paul Sleman, chairman of the Republican State central committee for Montgomery County, according to Mr. Savage.

Members of the Democratic State central committee and the Democratic party candidates' committee, for Montgomery County last night issued a signed statement in which they declared that they had no animus against any members of the Democratic party, and that they are glad to continue to cooperate with and work with all of the Democrats of the county.

"We propose to continue to consider as Democrats all who will work or vote for the duly and legally nominated candidates of their party on the fourth of next November, and will be glad to continue to cooperate with on an equal footing all loyal members of the Democratic party who are now or between now and November 4, may support and actually do vote for the Democratic State, congressional, judicial and county candidates in the approaching election on November 4."

The statement calls attention to the fact that all the Democratic nominees were selected by means of direct primary and that the "character, business experience, fitness and ability of not a single one of the Democratic candidates representing the Democratic party on the November ballot has as yet been challenged by even the opposing candidates of the other parties."

The statement is signed by Berry E. Clark, chairman; Ben G. Davis, Lucy M. Offutt, Thomas W. Perry, Ruth E. Shoemaker and Z. M. Waters, of the State central committee and Stedman Prescott, Robert G. Hilton, Preston B. Ray, Lacy Shaw and Robert D. Hagner, of the candidates' committee.

The statement is believed to be the opening gun in the move of the regular Democrats to read out of the party all who support Republican candidates in the coming election. Open charges that antiorganization Democratic leaders are supporting the Republican cause, and are working for the election of the Republican ticket, are contained in the Maryland News, official organ of the Dmocratic party in its issue today.

Senator Pat Harrison will be the principal speaker at an "old-time barbecue," which is to be held Saturday afternoon and evening at Sycamore Landing, to observe the opening of the Poolesville-Sycamore Landing road, which has just been completed. The new road provides a new connection with Howard County.

Maj. E. Brooke Lee, chairman of the Democratic State campaign committee; Police Judge Charles W. Woodward, Stedman Prescott, candidate for State's attorney, and other prominent speakers will address the gathering. The celebration will begin at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon and will be held at the river terminus of the road on the Potomac River.

Fred J. Hughes, chairman of the committee on the road opening, promises plenty of barbecued beef and all of the other features that went to make old-time barbecues the chief event of olden days.

The Montgomery County commissioners yesterday completed negotiations with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for the construction of a pedestrian underpass at Boyd. The work is to begin at once and will cost approximately $25,000. The commissioners also gave permission to the Annapolis & Chesapeake Bay Power Co. to erect poles on the north and south sides of Briggs road, leading from Columbia pike in the Colesville District.

Hiram W. Harvey, Republican candidate for register of wills, is inconsistent when he signs the Republican County platform, Robert G. Hilton, Democratic candidate for State senator, declared in a speech last night at a Democratic rally in the Community Hall at Barnesville. Mr. Harvey was foreman of the county grand jury which commended the action of the county officials in building a new courthouse and in approving other county administration activities, Mr. Hilton said, and now he denies his own words when he approves the Republican platform. Mr. Hilton declared that the progress of the county would be halted if the Democratic ticket is not elected.

Other speakers at the meeting were Stedman Prescott, candidate for state's attorney, and Police Judge Charles W. Woodward.

Berry E. Clark, chairman of the Democratic State central committee for Montgomery County, will head the list of speakers at a Democratic rally to be held tomorrow night in the Modern Woodmen hall at Laytonsville. Among the other speakers will be Stedman Prescott, Judge Woodward and Capt. Joseph C. Cissel.

The county supervisors of elections have decided upon the form of the ballots to be used in the November 4 election and the printing of 32,000 ballots has been arranged for by John J. Jones, clerk to the supervisors. The ballots will contain the names of 67 candidates and spaces for the voting for or against the holding of a constitutional convention and a proposed amendment to the State Constitution. The ballot will be in three columns.

West Virginians Confess Felonies

Nine Enter Guilty Pleas to Indictments; Seven Are Sentenced.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 21.—Nine men pleaded guilty to indictments returned a few hours previously in circuit court here today, most of them involving robberies, and were sentenced to various terms in State prison.

George Myers, 20, was sentenced to five years for housebreaking, during which he and his companion, Frank Miller, 17, stole a shirt valued at $1. Because of Miller's age court deferred sentence. Cletus Teets, Harry Wilson and Isaac Stewart, accused with Harry Miller of having broken into a building on a county orchard and stolen a quantity of gasoline and oil, pleaded guilty and each was sentenced from one to ten years. Miller pleaded not guilty and will be tried later.

Reed Patton and Joe Cannon, indicted for burglarizing a railroad station in the county, pleaded guilty. Patton was sentenced from one to ten years. Cannon, whose age is given as 17, will be sentenced later. John Thompson, a second offender as a liquor law violator, was given two years following a guilty plea. Carl T. Searle, of New York, indicted for issuing a forged check for $21.50 on a Hagerstown bank, was sentenced for two years.

Capital Boy Heads St. John's Seniors

Robert MacCartee Elected President of Annapolis College Class.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21.—Robert MacCartee, of Washington, was named president of the senior class at St. John's College at the class elections held tonight.

Mr. MacCartee has been president of his class for two years, and is an outstanding athlete at St. John's. He has won varsity letters in football, basket ball, baseball and lacrosse, and was an editor of the year book last winter.

Rudolph Schmick, of Preston, Md., was chosen vice president. Mr. Schmick held the same position last year. George Beneze, of Baltimore, was selected to be secretary-treasurer; Samuel B. Chew, of West River, historian, and William Armacost, sergeant at arms. The juniors will hold their class elections tomorrow night and the other classes will name their leaders before the end of the week.

TOWN RENEWS PLEA FOR MAIL DELIVERY

Falls Church Takes Steps to Number Houses and Fix Streets.

TO MEET REQUIREMENTS

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The citizens of the Town of Falls Church are again seeking house-to-house delivery of their mail. The incorporated town, with approximately 2,500 residents, lies in both Arlington and Fairfax Counties. At present the village has three postoffices in the different sections of town with three postmasters and no town deliveries. Time after time the citizens have endeavored to have these offices combined, but the United States Postoffice Department has denied their requests on the ground that under postal requirements the town must have all its houses numbered.

The Northwest Citizens Association, which met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gage, appointed a committee composed of H. O. Bishop, Bowie Roberts and E. L. Jones to investigate the possibilities of securing mail service. It was brought out at the meeting that the gas company, which is at present engaged in installing mains throughout the town, has completed the numbering of the houses and it is expected that this system will be ratified at the next meeting of the town council. The town has been divided into four sections, north, east, south and west, with Washington and Broad streets as the dividing line.

The special committee was instructed to investigate the present sidewalk mileage and the cost of installing either gravel or wooden walks for carriers in the remaining portion of town. Several persons said that at present Falls Church already has more sidewalk mileage in proportion to its street mileage than Cherrydale, in Arlington County, where home mail delivery was commenced last year.

The association gave Mayor Leonard P. Daniel and the town council a rising vote of thanks for their work during the past six weeks for their new road building policies and the distribution of water. The water situation is becoming more acute every day. The association voted to back the council's action in attempting to secure water from the Arlington County mains immediately.

If some relief is not obtained in the near future, several residents have stated that they will have to leave their homes and move to Washington for the winter or until the drought is broken.

The Merrifield Improvement Association held its annual election meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keyser and reelected C. R. Moran president. Other officers elected were H. H. Ankers, vice president; Mrs. Wilbur Tubaugh, recording secretary and publicity agent, and Charles Keyser, treasurer.

President Moran then appointed the following standing committees for the year: Membership, Mrs. Hattie Shreve, chairman, Mrs. H. H. Ankers, Mrs. Aana Miller and Mrs. C. R. Moran; entertainment, Miss Corita Seoane, Mrs. Stewart Preece, Mrs. C. R. Moran, Isaac Vincent and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hitt; finance, Hatcher H. Ankers and Willard Tubaugh; community hall, H. H. Ankers, B. F. Salsbury, C. R. Moran, Mrs. H. Shreve and Miss C. Seoane.

The association voted to register a complaint with the Virginia Public Service Co. in regard to the electric power, which they claim is not sufficient at meal time to meet the demand of both cook stoves and lights.

The Jefferson High School pupils at Falls Church have organized an athletic association with officers for each of its divisions. The boys division elected Francis Jones, president; James Anderson, vice president; Russell Bohn, secretary; and Victor White, treasurer. The girls division elected Goldie Thompson, president; Evelyn Via, vice president; Audrey Edmonds, secretary, and Virginia David, treasurer.

The Parent-Teacher Association at Clifton will hold its meeting tonight in the auditorium of the school. School Trustee John T. DeBell, of Centerville, has been asked to be present to give the association information regarding the various school problems. Miss Dorothy Otley, principal of the school, and chairman of the association's educational committee, has appointed Miss Lena Steffey and R. M. Wine as her assistants.

The 4-H Club at the Baileys Cross Roads school has been reorganized for this year by Miss Sarah E. Thomas, Fairfax County home demonstration agent. The Girl's Cooking Club has elected Irene Daniels, president; Elizabeth Cline, vice president; Linnet Alward, secretary; Myrtle Oliver, treasurer; Helen Daniel, song leader, and Virginia Parsons, reporter. The Boys Poultry Club has elected Elbert Bradshaw, president; Wilson Rowe, vice president; Marion Riley, secretary; John Lowman, treasurer; Irvin Payne, song leader; and Clarence Payne, reporter.

The women of the Andrew Chapel community will meet this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Andrew Chapel school for the purpose of forming a home demonstration club. Demonstrations will be given on the making of Christmas gifts.

Providence Council, Daughters of America, will hold its meeting tonight in Robey Hall, at Fairfax. Mrs. Minnie McLeroy, State councilor of the order, will pay her official visit to the lodge at this meeting.

The Women's Guild of the St. John's Episcopal Church at McLean will hold a luncheon and bridge party this afternoon in the parish hall. Mrs. Henry Mackall has been appointed general chairman of arrangements, with Mrs. Walter Weaver, chairman of prizes; Mrs. A. C. Gibbs, chairman of decorations, and Mrs. Carl C. Grimes in charge of tables.

Several of the women of the town of Fairfax are holding their annual sale of antique furniture in Willard Hall on Main street. This sale attracts several hundred visitors from all sections of the country, as some very valuable pieces of old furniture have been discovered by these women during their search in the course of a year. The sale is being held this week and will close Friday night. Yesterday, opening day, proved to be successful and many pieces were sold.

Miss Sarah E. Thomas, county home demonstration agent, will reorganize a 4-H Club at the Annandale School this afternoon.

Most of the schools of Fairfax County will be closed Friday of this week to allow teachers to attend the District H Teachers Association, to be held in Warrenton Friday and Saturday. The county school board at its meeting last month granted the teachers leave with pay, provided they attended the meeting.

Southern States Face Price Boosts

Graham Believes Costs to Go Up or Standards of Living Down.

(Associated Press.)

Residents of the South Atlantic States were said yesterday by Commissioner of Agriculture William A. Graham, of North Carolina, to be confronted with the necessity of raising price levels or lowering living standards.

In addressing the thirteenth annual meeting of the National Association of Commissioners and Secretaries of Agriculture, Mr. Graham said "wages, prices of agricultural products and living costs have been, and are yet, so far out of adjustment that the average farmer can not get enough for his produce to enable him to pay his hired help enough to meet the cost, in many cases, of its actual living expenses."

Before the representatives of 25 States, the North Carolina commissioner sketched the conditions he said were prevailing in the States of West Virginia, Virgina, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Railroad Blacksmith Dies in Martinsburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 21.—Preston Burr Lyle, 70, for nearly half a century a blacksmith at the Baltimore & Ohio shops here, died here Sunday. He was a son of Preston Oldham and Barbara Ellen Lyle and was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Holy Name Society and Baltimore & Ohio Veterans Association. Surviving are the widow, a daughter, Mrs. Mary Hoffman, Frederick, Md., and a son, Hugh Lyle. Burial will be here tomorrow.

Good health engenders confidence today business demands healthy men and women—and more than ever it is the survival of the fittest . . .

POOR health is a distinct drawback to progress in business or social life. Underweight, lack of appetite, sluggishness, a dull mentality, nervousness and even skin disorders—boils and pimples—show their mark on the body, face and mind when the red-cells are deficient in number. (See enlarged blood picture above.) Moreover a low red-blood-cell condition makes the system an easy prey to disease. When your red-blood-cells are only 80% you are NOT yourself—60% is dangerous.

The way to correct this condition is to take S.S.S.—the tonic that will help Nature build up and enrich your blood. Millions of people have found it the easiest and surest way to keep themselves "fit." If your vitality is slipping away from you, do try S.S.S.. Take it before each meal. Get the large size. CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

WARRANT IS ISSUED FOR VIRGINIA BANKER

$4,000 Embezzlement Laid to Official of Dayton Institution.

WOMAN ALREADY HELD

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 21.—Noah F. Crist, 50, cashier of the defunct Bank of Dayton, Va., Inc., since its organization in 1906 and prominent churchman, is charged with embezzling $4,000 of the bank's funds in a warrant sworn out late today by President J. M. Hilbert of the bank. The bank closed September 19, when Miss Elizabeth Coffman, assistant cashier, confessed to a shortage of approximately $36,800 in the bank's funds.

Auditors of the State Banking Commission discovered the discrepancies in Cashier Crist's accounts in checking up the affairs of the bank. Commonwealth's Attorney D. Wampler Earman will seek indictments against Crist and Miss Coffman before the circuit court grand jury here Friday. He said that if each falsification were made a separate charge there would be hundreds of charges against the pair.

Crist is treasurer of Shenandoah College at Dayton and of the Town of Dayton. He also was treasurer of several Dayton business enterprises and church organizations. In a confession drawn up by State bank examiners, Crist admits making scores of false entries in the bank's earning funds over the past four years, the bank examiners say. He denies receiving any of the money.

The auditors have gone back in the accounts for four years only and are continuing their work. Bank officials say that the aggregate shortage will not be more than the $36,800 confessed to by Miss Coffman, explaining that any defalcations by Crist would be included in this total.

In Miss Coffman's confession she said that as far as she knew no one else was implicated. Crist and Miss Coffman were the only employes of the bank, which was capitalized at $25,000. Crist is bonded for $10,000 and Miss Coffman for $5,000. President Hilbert said today that if the bank is able to collect all of the notes on which the bank lent money, that the losses to the holders of the approximately $170,000 in deposits would be slight. Negotiations have been under way for several weeks looking to taking over the defunct institution by another bank in order to release deposits sooner than if a receiver were appointed. Bank examiners said Miss Coffman is the first woman bank employe in Virginia to be charged with embezzlement.

Alleged Abductor Faces Trial Today

Harry Dickenson Accused in Case of Richmond Society Girl.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Harry Dickenson, filling station attendant, faces trial here tomorrow on an indictment charging him with abducting Mary Frances McClenny, Richmond society girl, in July.

Dickenson is charged with "taking and secreting" the girl from her father, D. C. McClenny, and with "taking and transporting her from her home to Waynesboro for immoral purposes." His brother, N. H. Dickenson, and John S. Leadbetter were indicted on charges of aiding and abetting.

When Miss McClenny disappeared from her home in Hampton Gardens there was a widespread serach which ended a week later at Waynesboro.

Man Indicted on Charge Of Slaying Youth, 15

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 21.—Dorsey Taylor, alias Dorsey Lamb, was indicted here by the Berkeley County grand jury today, charged with the willful slaying of 15-year-old Alonzo Marino, son of Constable Louis Marino, at Blairton, a limestone quarry settlement, near here, in September. Lamb has not been arraigned.

Woman and Boy Escape Alive in Car-Bomb Blast

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 21.—A bomb attached to the starter of a newly bought automobile exploded and nearly killed Mrs. Anna Mullenix, proprietor of a Shinnston boarding house, and her 5-year-old son, John, today at that place.

State police later arrested Alexander Bondaruk, 42, and Wassel Ezotoa, 40, miners and boarders at the Mullenix home, who are said to have quarreled over the woman. One bought her the car, neighbors said, and the other threatened to blow it up. The woman's husband is serving a sentence in the Federal Prison at Atlanta for a prohibition law violation.

Hagerstown Attorney Is Cleared of Charges

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 21.—Charges of professional misconduct preferred by the Washington County Bar Association against Garland E. Groh, wealthy young attorney here, were dismissed today in an opinion handed down by Judges D. Lindlay, Sloan and Albert A. Doub.

The charges resulted from a local equity suit. Groh also was tried before a jury in Frederick on a charge of perjury growing out of the same suit, but was acquitted about a week ago.

Snow Flurries Occur In Lynchburg Section

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 21.—A growing season of 204 days was terminated here this morning by a killing frost with temperature of 30 degrees. Snow flurries occurred about 9 o'clock, this being the earliest this condition has occurred here in 59 years. Twice before in that period October has seen snow but both of these were on the thirtieth of the month.

Persons coming from Lexington early this morning said they ran into a blinding snow storm for miles on Lockes Mountain. Only twice before on October 21 since 1871 has the temperature here been below freezing.

Winchester Ready For Apple Harvest

Good Crop Is Expected, Despite Damage Wrought by Drought.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 21.—This week will see virtually all the apples harvested in the large commercial orchards of the Winchester district, it was stated today by leading growers, who also said the crop this fall had turned out much better, both in quality and quantity, than had been expected earlier in the season.

The long drought, extending from late last winter, had a serious effect on orchards planted in shallow land, but those in heavy soil have withstood effects of the dry weather fairly well. It has been noted that apples contain much more sugar this fall than ordinarily. While shipments have been fairly heavy, large quantities of apples are going into cold storage here.

Fruit is being received for storage from many sections of the Shenandoah-Cumberland-Potomac district of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and southeastern Pennsylvania, and thousands of boxes of Pacific Coast apples are likewise stored here under the storage-in-transit regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Baton Rouge Man Dies Of Poison Dose, Claim

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 21.—Charles Victor Reogan, 33 years old, died a few minutes after he was reported to have swallowed a deadly poison, on the basement landing leading to the washroom in the Petersburg Y. M. C. A. Building yesterday afternoon.

Reogan was moved to Petersburg Hospital in an ambulance but was dead when he reached the hospital. Reogan, who came here from Baton Rouge, La., with his wife last spring, had been employed with a building construction company as an electrician, but he is said to have given up his position several days ago.

J. W. Robertson, Soldier Of Confederacy, Is Dead

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Oct. 21.—John W. Robertson, Confederate veteran, in his eighty-seventh year, died at his home at Newport on Saturday morning. He had been ill less than a week. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at New Providence Presbyterian Church, of which he had been a member for years. The Rev. C. Morton Hanna, pastor, was in charge, assisted by the Rev. R. L. St. Clair, of the Second Church, this city. Burial was in the New Providence Cemetery.

Mr. Robertson is survived by his widow, who was Miss Elizabeth Miley, until their marriage 63 years ago, and one son, Emmett G. Robertson, of Staunton, also two granddaughters.

Sharp Frost Damages Crops at Hagerstown

Special to The Washington Post

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 21.—Killing frost and the coldest October weather in years, destroyed late crops and all vegetation and badly damaged unpicked apples today.

The mercury dropped to 23 at the Government weather station at Keedysville and J. A. Miller, weather observer, reported only two previous October days in the past 30 years colder; in October, 1924, when it was 21 and in 1928, when it dropped to 22. Late tomatoes and lima beans were especially hard hit.

Virginia Bank Robber Sentenced to Five Years

Accomac, Va., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Leland W. Ennis was sentenced to five years in the Virginia State Penitentiary today after he had entered a plea of guilty to robbery of a bank at Keller, Va., last June 17. Sentence was passed in circuit of Accomac County.

Ennis, a 31-year-old resident of Salisbury, Md., was captured in a gun battle in which he was wounded less than an hour after he had held up and robbed Stanley Ames, cashier of the bank, of $670.

Anne Arundel Hit By Killing Frost

Mercury Drops Below 32; Crops That Withstood Drought Wither.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21.—Heavy frost, the second in the last three days, and temperature below the freezing point were the double stroke of winter's blast that visited all sections of Anne Arundel County last night. Water left in receptacles out of doors froze and a skim of ice also formed on ponds in rural communities.

The frost was what farmers call the "black" or killing frost and was much heavier than that which prevailed early Sunday morning. As a result what vegetation that withstood the drought of more than three months curled up and turned black. This fact was particularly noticeable in fields of late tomatoes, white and sweet potato crops and late tobacco.

The temperature registered just about the freezing mark in the city, but in suburban areas and throughout the county it was 3 degrees lower, a record for this period of October.

Eastern Star Meeting At Front Royal Planned

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., Oct. 21.—A joint meeting of the Eastern Star will be held in the Masonic Temple in Front Royal on Wednesday night, when the Front Royal chapter, the Spurmont chapter, of Strasburg; McKenley chapter, of Winchester, and the Treadwell chapter, of Berryville, will be visited by the worthy grand matron, Mrs. Emma Huddleston, of Roanoke.

Among other prominent guests will be Harry Kennedy, of Alexandria, worthy grand patron of the grand chapter; Mrs. Florence Clift, of Alexandria, past grand matron; Miss Louise Beale, of Richmond, past grand matron, and Dr. Harry Switzer, of Harrisonburg, past grand patron.

Former Husband Is Sued For $20,000 by Mrs. Fox

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Cornelia B. Fox, of New York, today entered suit here against her divorced husband, Morton Fox, asking $20,000, charging he was $11,700 in arrears with alimony and expenses of their child.

The suit charges he was 119 weeks behind in payment of $75 per week alimony. Mrs. Fox is well known in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. Her husband is president of Greenwald, Inc., meat packers.

Mother of 13 Children Dies.

Lonaconing, Md., Oct. 21 (Special). Funeral services were held today for Mrs. Jean Kirkwood Jones, with the Rev. Seldon C. Adams, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiating. Burial was in Oak Hill Cemetery. In 1874 she married Daniel Jones, sr., former Allegany County treasurer. Thirteen children were born of the union, nine surviving.

STOCKS' DOWNWARD TREND IS RESUMED

Vigorous Rally on Monday Shown to Be Merely of Technical Tenor.

LOSSES UP TO 6 POINTS

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Fatigued by the exertion of yesterdays' ambitious rally, the stock market suffered a relapse today and crawled back to bed.

After only momentary hesitation at the opening, prices went into a slow slump that erased all but a shade of yesterday's recovery. Net losses ran from 2 to 6 points in a turnover of 2,421,900 shares, not a large volume of business.

Weakness was general, although it was most conspicuous in the electrical equipment, Oil and copper shares. The decline met little resistance until last Saturday's lows were approached. There was then a pallid rally that lifted the market moderately from its minimums. General Electric, Westinghouse, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corporation, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Water Works, Public Service of New Jersey, International Harvester, Nash Motors, Hudson, Studebaker and several investment rails went to new lows for the year or longer.

Crude Oil Prices Cut Further.

The drop pointedly showed that Monday's rally had been quite technical. News of the day hardly had a bearish cast, except for rumors of further cuts in crude oil prices in the midcontinent petroleum field and the generally unsatisfactory character of the earnings statements, which, of course, had been anticipated. However, the Westinghouse third quarter report revealed that the company had failed to earn its dividend in the third three months' period, and the heavy offering of the stock had a distinctly unsettling effect on the entire list. Of course, the company is strongly fortified with cash, and Wall street confidently looks for maintenance of the regular dividend payments, in expectation of improvement next year.

There was some solace in the condition statement of the Federal Reserve Member Banks for the week ended October 15. "All other" loans, in which commercial borrowings are classified, soared $51,000,000, making the gain $155,000,000 in the past three weeks. There was a small decline in the same period last year. The collateral loan item proved $10,000,000, compared with last week's $215,000,000 deflation.

This decrease was smaller than had been expected, but it reduced the total gains for the year to $383,000,000, and in many quarters the present volume is not regarded as too heavy a burden. The opinion is frequently expressed, however, that further weakness in the market will lead to a more extensive downward readjustment.

Cotton Again Closes Higher.

Wheat met very small net losses, for firmness in Liverpool offset reports of a large increase in the world's visible supply. Corn eased about a cent on predictions of larger receipts and on hedge selling. Cotton again closed higher, advancing 6 to 10 points.

Selling pressure against stocks carried many of the favorites severely lower. General Electric dropped 4 to 40, but recovered a point, closing 2¾ lower. Standard Oil of New Jersey lost 3 to 53½ before coming back fractionally. American Can failed to receive much support until it had tumbled 5 points. Its net loss was 4. Westinghouse, down 8¾ at the bottom, recovered 2 points and American Telephone regained a point of a 4-point loss. Allied Chemical, which had been 9½ lower, finished 6½ below the Monday close.

U. S. Steel sagged to 144¾, within ¼ of the year's low, and then rallied ¾ to close at 145½, off 3¾. There were 2 to 3 point net declines in American & Foreign Power, American Water Works, Public Service of New Jersey, Penney, Case, Du Pont, American Tobacco B, Paramount, Union Pacific and Sears-Roebuck. Eastman Kodak and Houston Oil lost nearly 6 and Safeway Stores 7.

Foreign exchanges held firm. The German mark reacted slightly, but there were small gains in the French franc, the guilder and the peseta.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Unsettled by a new drop in prices of securities, all grain values today underwent a late setback that more than erased an early advance. Increased selling of wheat, corn and other cereals, however, appeared to be largely in the nature of profit taking, what at the top point touched today showing about 5½c a bushel gain from present low figures. Statements credited to Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Board that agricultural commodities had reached their bottom level attracted much notice, but for at least the present were without lasting effect as a market influence.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ¾c a bushel decline. Corn closed ¾@1½c down, oats ⅛@⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5c.

Tending more or less to augment the late downward trend of the wheat market today was word of an increase of 9,987,000 bushels in world stocks of wheat. On the other hand, late estimates of North American wheat export business today put the total at 2,200,000 bushels, including 1,500,000 bushels from Winnipeg. The enlargement of European demand for North American wheat had not a little to do with the early upturn of wheat prices here, in connection with an unlooked for jump by wheat values at Liverpool.

Asking prices on Russian wheat at Liverpool were reported today as having been increased as much as 18c a bushel, and it was also asserted that charterings for late shipments from Russia had stopped. Meanwhile talk persisted that wheat of acceptable quality to meet contract requirements was scarce at Liverpool, and that this circumstance largely accounted for the better European demand today for wheat from this side of the Atlantic. Such encouraging factors, though, were practically lost sight of when stock-market weakness again became more of a conspicuous influence as the day neared an end.

Corn and oats duplicated the action of wheat. Besides, the feed grains were weakened by reports indicating favorable conditions for field work and for the movement of corn.

Provisions followed the course of grain fluctuations, and ignored a downturn of hog values.

BOND SALES SLOW; DOMESTIC LIST OFF

Easier Tone in Money Rates Proves of No Value in Stimulating Buying.

FOREIGN GROUP CLIMBS

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—A slightly easier tone in the money market proved of no value as a stimulant to bond buying today. Trading in domestic issues was dull and price movement displayed about the same characteristics as in recent sessions. Declines slightly exceeded the advances.

Activity in the foreign issues was of a more constructive nature although the progress was somewhat marred by the divergent trend of a few active issues. The greatest activity centered in German municipal and industrial bonds which were generally higher. Latin American issues continued their climb to higher levels, but as in previous sessions there were a few laggard Brazilians which were mixed.

The City of New York found only a single bidder for the entire $50,000,000 in 4 per cent 50-year bonds which it sold today. Four others bid for small amounts. The Chase Securities Corporation with its "all or none" bid of 100.03 obtained the issue and is offering it at 101 to yield 3.95 per cent.

Lack of Interest Discussed.

The premium, amounting to $15,000, is the smallest obtained by New York in some time, but recent issues have carried higher coupons. The lack of interest in the issue is regarded by bond men as an indication of the present unsettled state of the market.

The City of Detroit is planning to sell $19,692,000 city bonds November 21 to retire a majority of the $22,000,000 short-term notes due December 31.

A few foreign issues reached new highs for the current advance, Chile 6s of 1961, Cundinamarca 6½s, Dominican first 5½s, Bolivia 8s, Santa Fe (Argentina) 7s, and Uruguay 8s and 6s gained a point or more. Most of the Brazilian issues that had been strong in recent sessions were heavy in thin trading. Brazil 8s reacted 1½ points.

Large Turnover in Germans.

Turnover of Germans was the largest in the foreign section. The government 7s, bank issues, German General Electric 6s, and Berlin City Electric 6s were about a point higher, and German Electric 7s reached par on a 4-point advance. The International 5½s sagged ¾ in dull trading.

While most of the investment section moved quietly in a narrow groove, convertible and stock-purchase bonds were again reactionary in sympathy with stocks. Warner Bros. 6s, Atchison 4½s, Alleghany Corporation 5s, and General Theaters 6s declined a point or more.

Offerings will be made tomorrow of $9,000,000 40-year 5½ per cent mortgage bonds of the Ottawa Valley Power Co.

WASHINGTON BANK RESOURCES SHOWN

40 Institutions, in Report, Place September Total at $326,633,000.

$1,949,000 GAIN IS MADE

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Resources of Washington's 40 banks on September 24 were $326,633,000, an abstract of reports of condition of local institutions made public by the office of the Comptroller of the Currency shows. This amount was $1,949,000 in advance of resources on June 30, date set by the comptroller's previous call, but $9,631,000 behind those of 41 banks on October 4, 1929, date set by the corresponding call of last year.

Resources of the 12 national banks September 24 aggregated $174,199,000; those of the 22 savings banks, $48,128,000, and those of the 6 trust companies, $104,306,000.

Bargains in Stocks Claimed.

Common stocks of sound business concerns whose earnings are impressive, whose management is safe and whose dividend practices have been satisfactory are now available at authentic bargain prices, according to a statement issued by the investment research committee of the Financial Advertisers Association.

The investor who is willing to disregard near-term movements of the market, the report explains, may buy such issues now with the assurance that, over a period, he will receive liberal dividends and substantial capital profits.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended October 11 totaled 954,874 cars, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced yesterday. This was a decrease of 17,618 cars below the preceding week this year and a reduction of 224,666 cars below the same week last year. It also was a decrease of 235,867 cars compared with the corresponding week in 1928.

Insurance written in the District in September showed a 12 per cent increase over the month last year, the largest for the country. Sales here aggregated $4,531,000 and 50 per cent of the local companies reported gains. The foregoing is shown in the monthly survey of life insurance sales conducted by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, of Hartford, Conn.

Merger of Two Utility Companies Is Planned

Chicago, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—A proposal to merge the American Public Utilities Co. into the Midland United Co. will be submitted to stockholders of the two companies at special meetings November 19 and 20, it was announced today.

The Central Indiana Power Co., now controlled by the American Public Utilities Co., will become a directly controlled subsidiary of the Midland United Co. if the merger agreement is approved. The Central Indiana Power Co. controls a number of public utility companies operating in central and western Indiana.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

Frank G. Shattuck Co.

T. B. F.—Please supply me with some information regarding Frank G. Shattuck Co.

Answer—The Frank G. Shattuck Co. (Schrafft's) is selling near the year's low, and around 31 yields about 3.2 per cent from the $1 yearly dividend. Sales are running below those of last year, but the number of persons served this year is believed to be greater, the average check, however, being lower. Net profits for the first half year equaled $1.06 a share as against $1.16 for the initial half of 1929. Total profits for 1930 are estimated around $2.40 as against $2.61 actual showing for last year.

Shattuck operates a chain of more than 30 restaurant and candy stores, featuring quality products and has enjoyed expansion in sales since 1920. Evidently the current year will mar the record of uninterrupted sales growth, which, however, may be only temporary because of present adverse business conditions. The stock appears attractive for long-pull ownership.

Industrial Rayon.

G. B. F.—Kindly give me some facts and an opinion of Industrial Rayon.

Answer—The company is one of the leading manufacturers of rayon. It enjoyed the best month in its history during September with respect to the sales of yarn, while sales so far in October have been well ahead of those for last year, indicating that October promises to be a big month also. Industrial Rayon is one of the select few in its line which promises to make more money this year than last. Earnings for the first nine months equaled $6.31 a share, and indications are that profits for the full year will approximate $9.

The stock is selling for only five times earnings, an unusually low ratio, and is due to a thin market and recent necessitous selling. The company plans to manufacture cellophane, but production on a large scale will not be reached until 1932. An initial dividend of 5 per cent in stock was paid February 1 but nothing since. The stock appears to have some attractiveness.

Remington Rand Co.

J. H.—Please inform me if you know whether the Remington Rand Co. is doing as well as its competitors. Is the present price of its stock due to mismanagement?

Answer — Mismanagement of this company can hardly be charged in view of the fact that economies effected by coordination of facilities resulted in earnings for fiscal year ended March 31, last, of $6,040,554, a sharp increase over average net of $2,890,000 reported in two preceding fiscal years. Of course, this company, along with practically all others, has felt the effect of the depression in business now being passed through and as a reflection net income for quarter ended June 30 amounted to only $733,366, equivalent after preferred dividend requirements to 31 cents a common share, a sharp decline from net of $1,417,047, or 79 cents a common share, reported in corresponding period of 1929. Sales for the quarter amounted to $12,764,949, a drop of 21 per cent from June quarter, 1929. It is evident that company in June quarter did not earn its common dividend of 40 cents a share for the period. However, it continues to pay on that issue, and it is amply able to do so as it is in a very strong cash position.

Underwood-Elliott.

V. S. A.—What is the outlook for Underwood-Elliott Fisher earnings?

Answer—The stock reached a new low last week at 65, and is down about 20 points since issuance of the third quarter earnings statement which showed 59 cents a share earned on the common stock. For the first three quarters earnings amounted to $3.81 per share as against $6.36 for the same time last year. The company is expected to cover its $5 dividend this year by only a small margin at best.

General Printing Ink.

L. O. T.—Please give me some facts and advice on General Printing Ink.

Answer—Earnings dropped sharply in the initial half of 1930. Net profits per common share amounted to $1.52 as against $3.18 in the same period a year ago. A further decline in demand for printer's ink in the last six months of this year may jeopardize payment of the $2.50 regular dividend. The stock is regarded as comparatively unseasoned and the outlook is not promising. If you have not bought the stock, leave it alone.

Brockway Motors.

K. L. B.—I have been advised to purchase Brockway Motors. Please give me some facts and advice regarding the stock.

Answer—Profits continued their decline in the first six months, net income dropping 43 per cent compared with the first half of 1929. Earnings for the common were equal to 60 cents a share, as against $2.41 for the same period last year and $3.73 in the first half of 1928. Export sales were small this year and materially reduced profits despite reduced operating expenses. The stock is not recommended from the standpoint of investment.

Preferred Shares.

T. N. S.—Please give me a list of a few good preferred stocks where the yield at current prices may be considered attractive.

Answer—General Motors Corporation $5 preferred stock, which yields about 5¼ per cent; Public Service Corporation $5 preferred, yielding about 5½ per cent; National Biscuit $7 preferred, yielding nearly 5 per cent, and Electric Bond & Share $6 preferred, yielding approximately 5½ per cent. All of these companies have a good earnings and dividend record and appear suitable for the long term investor.

Eureka Vacuum.

T. L. U.—Please give me information and an opinion of Eureka Vacuum.

Answer—The company operated at a loss of 67 cents a share in the first six months, as compared with $2.24 a share earned in the first half of 1929. The quarterly dividend of $1 was passed in July. The stock must be considered highly speculative as the outlook for the remaining months of this year is none too bright.

WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1930. 17

CENTRAL TRIUMPHS, 14-7, OVER WESTERN IN SERIES

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Nowhere else in football are the civilities so elaborately observed as in Boston when the Army is playing Harvard, and, while some of the hatlifting and saluting that goes on up there on Harvard-Army day may be put down as mere ceremonial flubdub of a European type, it seems better to overdo such things a little than underdo them.

They were underdone when the Army was in the habit of playing Notre Dame in New York, and hard feelings were engendered between the West Point football officers and the city administration, which always had time, money and manpower to squander on celebrities' parties, some of them quite dubious, who came here from Europe. Perhaps it has been a mistake of the West Point traffic manager that he brings the corps of cadets down from the point by rail instead of shipping them out beyond Sandy Hook on barges so they might come up the harbor, where the receptions start.

At any rate, Boston and the State of Massachusetts always are most polite to the West Point people. They arrange a review, so that the cadets may strut their formations before the haut monde and the bon ton of New England, the governor of the State always gives the corps some little present, from him to them, with assurances of profound respect, and the mayor of the town, by rummaging through the museums and municipal attics, generally contrives to come up with some historical bromides, even though he may be wondering, at the moment, what the devil they are going to do with it once they get it back to the reservation.

It Was Spearheads Last Year.

Last year the governor's present was a set of gold spearheads for the company guidons of the corps and, of course, they were nice to have, but this year the best he could think of was a plaque adorned with the shields of the corps, Harvard and the State. Now, if there is one thing that West Point could manage to stagger along without better than any other thing is is another plaque to be squeezed between the plaques on the walls of the academy buildings, but the general, diplomat that he is, made a little counter-speech, indicating that the governor must have been tipped off, because, next to a swifter scheme of promotion and pay, the United States Military Academy most desired a plaque.

Thereupon the plaque was turned over to the cadet quartermaster along with a glorified bungstarter, officially described as a gavel, carved from one of the original newel posts in Faneuil Hall, presented on behalf of the mayor, with the compliments of the municipality. They have no use for gavels at the Military Academy, where the command, "Attention!" always suffices, but I suppose they will put this gavel away, under glass, with a typewritten and flyblown description card leaning against it, until such time as the beer ration is restored, when it might be found useful in starting bungs.

Simplicity Unfair to Our Cadets.

This kind of politeness could be pretty thoroughly talked down by any one inclined to talk it down, but I am ambidextrous that way and I think I could talk it up on the ground that unless a town wants to go in for rude and fundamental simplicity in all things it isn't fair to turn out the fireboats and strew the streets with ticker tape for cheap queens of little scrofulous monarchies in the Balkans in May and slight the cadet corps of the United States Military Academy in November.

Last year, it may be recalled, Maj. Phil Fleming, the graduate manager of athletics at the academy, thought of quitting New York altogether as a football site on the ground that the children along their line of march to the Yanke Stadium taunted the cadets and the police commissioner of the moment, who was a Mr. Whalen, if I remember the name, was a little bit hesitant about giving the foootball team an escort of motorcycle policemen, the implication being that Tammany Hall hadn't received enough tickets. They were hard to get.

The fact of the matter was that the police escort had been overdone in town, with all kinds of penny-ante dignitaries bowling past the traffic lights, and it seemed to me that the West Point team might have started a little earlier, they being accustomed to rising at 5:15 o'clock, thus obviating the need of an escort. Still, if Paul Whiteman's press agent could command outriders to usher him through the traffic one time on his return from a routine and not too triumphant visit to England, the cadet football team might have been granted the same courtesy without imposing too much on precedent and the finest.

Will Wait Long for Captaincies.

My thought in watching the cadets march upon the Common or a football field is a rather lugubrious reflection that the boys, so hopeful and ambitious now and envied of all beholders, will spend a long time

No. 1 Ranking Awarded to Considine

D. C. Net Association Places City Champ at Top of List.

Frances Krucoff Is Again Ranked First Among Women.

BOB CONSIDINE and Frances Krucoff, District of Columbia champions, head the lists of 1930 tennis singles rankings for Washington, as announced last night at theannual banquet of the Washington Tennis Association at Columbia Country Club. .. ..

The naming of Considine marks the conclusion of a steady climb by this lanky youth during the last five years in local net circles. The ranking committee also designated him in two places on the doubles list, assigning him the No. 1 position with Tom Mangan and the No. 3 position with Dooly Mitchell. This is something of a rarity in tennis.

Miss Krucoff was ranked first among the women for the fifth successive year. She has ruled the feminine net stars here since 1926. Frances Walker and Mrs. Ruth Martinez wre ranked first in doubles.

Men's Singles, Doubles Rankings.

In the men's division the following ranking prevails in singles:

Considine, No. 1.
Dooly Mitchell, No. 2.
Tom Mangan, No. 3.
Eddie Yeomans, No. 4.
Commander C. C. Gill, No. 5.
Thomas Markey, No. 6.
Frank Shore, No. 7.
Maurice O'Neill, No. 8.
Colin Stam, No. 9.
Deane Judd, No. 10.

The doubles rankings are:
Considine-Mangan, No. 1.
Markey-Yeomans, No. 2.
Considine-Mitchell, No. 3.
Patrick Deck and William Seidell, No. 4.
Joseph Rutley and Owen Howenstein, No. 5.

In the women's division, Mrs. Martinez follows Miss Krucoff in singles, with Josephine Dunham, No. 3; Frances Walker, No. 4, and Margaret Graham, No. 5. Dorothy Kingsbury and Mary Ryan are ranked second in the doubles.

Hundred at Banquet Hear Addresses.

More than 100 persons attended the banquet and heard, besides the announcement of rankings by Clarence Charest, former District champion, a review of the past year in local tennis by Winfree Johnson, president of the association, and other talks by Lawrence Baker and Considine. Louis I. Doyle presented trophies to winners of various individual and team championships decided during the last season.

Suarez Ban Stands, New York Body Rules

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission today refused to lift the suspension of Justo Suarez, Argentine lightweight, who was set down for 60 days starting October 7 for fouling in a match with Ray Miller at Madison Square Garden. The action of the commission wipes out the schedule bout between Jimmy McLarnin and Suarez which was slated for November 21 in the Garden arena.

The commission received a long communication from Jack Sharkey, in which the Boston heavyweight offered to enter any series of bouts the commission might suggest in an effort to clear up the muddled heavyweight situation. Sharkey said he would meet young Stribling in New York, if the commission desired.

Timely Wins Sprint In Drive at Jamaica

Jamaica Rack Trace, N. Y., Oct. 21 (A. P.).—The Rolling Plains Stable's Timely, with H. Thurber up and favorite in the betting, was a driving winner of the Hiawatha Handicap, 5½-furlong feature here today. The daughter of High Time ran the distance in 1:07. Robin's Egg, owned by the Greentree Stable, was second and Harry Payne Whitney's Thais, third. Straying, coupled with Timely, was fourth.

Straying ran in the name and interest of Aknusti Stable.

The start was bad, Morshion being the only one to get away, beating the gate by several lengths, while Sun Parched was left lengths back of the field.

Morshion attempted to make a runaway race of it, but could not get very far from Straying and Timely. At the stretch turn Morshion tired and Timely took command. She drew away to win by a length and a half, while Robin's Egg beat Thais a head for the place.

The race was worth $3,975.

RANKED NO. 1

BOB CONSIDINE.

FRANCES KRUCOFF.

George Lott to Become Broker in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—George Lott, jr., of Chicago, a members of the United States Davis Cup Tennis Team last season, will enter the brokerage business in this city.

Lott and his bride, the former Abigail Allen, returned to the home of Mrs. Lott's parents at Abington yesterday for the first time since their elopement to Elkton, Md., on October 14.

Parental forgiveness had already been extended while they were honeymooning at White Sulphur Springs.

Crack Soldier Platoon To Drill at G. U. Game

A platoon of soldiers from Fort Washington will stage a "silent drill" between the halves of the Georgetown-West Virginia football game in Griffith Stadium Friday night. This platoon recently earned high praise for its exhibition in the military carnival at the Army War College. The appearance was arranged by the athletic department of Georgetown with the cooperation of Maj. Alexander M. Patch, commandant of Fort Washington.

G. W. to Play Dickinson in Daytime

Pennsylvania College Refuses to Compete in Night Game.

Hoffman, G.W. Back, Has Clot on Knee; Out for Month.

BECAUSE Dickinson College refuses to permit its football team to play games at night, its contest with George Washington here Saturday will be played in the afternoon at Griffith Stadium, instead of under the floodlights as originally scheduled.

A letter from the Pennsylvania school advised George Wasnington officials that Dickinson had already refused to play Pennsylvania Military College in a night game this season and felt that it could not meet G. W. at night after this agreement. Dickinson stated that its team had never played under nocturnal conditions, had no facilities for practicing under the lights, and felt that it would be at an overwhelming disadvantage if forced to play at night here.

Although George Washington had made arrangements to play all of its home games at night this season, it assented in the case of Dickinson, making the only afternoon game which the Colonials will play at Griffith Stadium.

Hoffman Out for Month With Injury.

While the Colonials were put through their regular drill yesterday, it was learned that they would be without the services of one of their most valuable reserve backs and a regular last year, for about four weeks. "Blackie" Hoffman, who has been bothered with a sore knee since just before the Rutgers game ten days ago, yesterday discovered that a blood clot is the source of his trouble and that an operation would be necessary before he could play again.

Hoffman expects to go under the knife shortly, but will hardly be ready for action within four weeks, or just before the game with Catholic University. His loss will be felt severely, as George Washington is none too strong in the matter of reserve backs, Sammy Berkowitz, Johnny Fenion and Billy Wells being the only ones available for duty besides the regular four ball carriers.

Freshman Coach Named Wolfpack Varsity Aid

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Dr. Robert E. Warren, freshman coach, today was named varsity back field coach at North Carolina State. He will begin the discharge of his new duties tomorrow, assisting Dr. Ralph Sermon, athletic director, who was made head coach last week.

Warren was full back of the State varsity team, which he captained in 1928. Dr. Sermon succeeded John Van Liew as head coach. Van Liew resigned yesterday. Dissatisfaction because of the Wolfpack's showing in games against Florida, Clemson and Davidson led to the departure of Van Liew, who was engaged as head coach at the beginning of the season.

Purdue Sent 3 Scouts To Wisconsin, Charge

Milwaukee, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—The Journal said today that Purdue, violating a conference rule which says that no school shall have more than one scout at a game, sent three to watch Wisconsin in the Penn game last Saturday. They were, the paper said, Earl Martineau, Christy Flanagan and Bill Mathel, all assistant coaches.

The Boilermakers are to play Wisconsin this Saturday at Lafayette, Ind., and the game is regarded as one of the most difficult on the Badger schedule.

"A letter to Athletic Director Kellogg, of Purdue, calling attention to the violation, was written by George Little, Wisconsin director, Monday," the paper says.

Rosenbloom Battles Obscure Foe Tonight

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Maxie Rosenbloom, ring clown, Broadway playboy and light heavyweight champion, will step around the corner from his favorite thoroughfare into Madison Square Garden tomorrow night to battle fifteen rounds with an almost unknown title challenger, Abie Bain, of Newark, N. J.

Searching through the records, the experts are nicknaming Abie "Where-Have-You Bain," for the Newark youngster never has appeared in a main bout before in the Garden or in other leading fistic centers.

Rosenbloom has had trouble finding suitable title opposition in a class that has gone slightly to seed. A short time ago he toured the country in a series of nontitle appearances. He has failed so far to convince the New York State Athletic Commission that he should be permitted to fight out of his class because of the shortage of suitable light heavyweight opponents.

CENTRAL BACK GAINS ON WIDE END RUN

Paul Hinkel, Central High half back, is seen free around end in the second period against Western High yesterday. He was forced outside after a 5-yard gain.

3,000 WATCH FREDERICK RACES

Nose Finishes Feature 3-Race Program on Opening Day.

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 21.—Nearly 3,000 persons, in overcoats and furs, braved a chilling blast from the west to watch the first day's races at the fair this afternoon. Three events, a 2:24 pace, purse $400, with six starters; 2:15 trot, purse $400, with eight starters, and a ⅝-mile dash, with eight starters, constituting the program.

The first race, 2:24 trot, was won by East Coast, a brown mare owned by T. P. Dempsey, of Columbus, Ohio, in two straight heats. Lawful Tip, black more, owned by Paul Adams, of Bridgeville, Del., took the first heat by a nose from East Coast. The next two were hard pressed by the Delaware mare Mollie Keymar.

Bryan and Bowstrom Remain at Tackles.

The second event, a 2:16 trot, went to Grey Guy, a gray gelding, owned by Guy Cochran, of Dawson, Pa., in straight heats. Govola, a black gelding, owned by M. D. Sheers, of Mount Holly, N. J., finished on the heels of the winner for second place, and Gloria Worthy, a brown mare, owned by Theodore Phaton, Eldred, Pa, was third. The Best Heat, the first, was made in 2:11.

The ¾-mile dash was won by Lady Monte, a black mare, owned by William Mein, of Hagerstown. Dr. Hickman, a brown gelding, owned by E. E. Wagner, was second, and Camphor Ball, gray gelding, owned by J H. Elliott, Norristown, Pa., was third. The winners crossed the line by a nose.

Clayton Elliott, Bridgeville, Del, was the tsarter and Dr. Ira J. McCurdy and Dr. R. V Smith, this city, and J T. Wolfe, Hagerstown, were judges John P. ixon and H. W. Blunt, of the Maryland Racing Commission, occupied the judge's stand

Twenty Grand's Owner Rejects $125,000 Offer

New York, Oct. 21 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mrs. Payne Whitney has just refused an offer of $125,000 for Twenty Grand, recent winner of the Jockey Club Stakes in the amazing time for a 2-year-old under 122 pounds of 1:36 for the mile.

T. W. Murphy, her trainer, who has resigned to take effect at the end of the current season, made the offer in the hope that he could buy the son of St. Germans—Bonus. He developed the colt which now ranks with the best in the country and was anxious to have him carry his colors in the rich 3-year-old stakes next season.

Mrs. Whitney was flattered by the price put on her good colt but has no thought of selling, as she is looking forward to his carrying her Greentree Stable colors to the front in other races.

Quintero and Freeman To Meet in December

Salt Lake City, Oct 21 (A.P.).—Manuel Quintero, Tampa, Fla., flash, will meet Tommy Freeman, welterweight champion, in a nontitle bout at New Orleans the latter part of December, George Braun, Quintero's manager, said here today.

Braun said he has completed negotiations with Martin Burke, New Orleans promoter for the bout.

McEver, of Tennessee, To Undegro Operation

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Eugene McEver, the University of Tennessee's disabled half back and the Nation's high football scorer last year, tomorrow will undergo a major knee operation which surgeons hope will enable him to resume play next year. They advised him today that he can not play this season.

Dr. Willis C. Campbell and Dr. J. S. Speed, orthopedic surgeons, examined McEver and Fritz Brandt, Tennessee end, also out with leg injuries. They informed Brandt that he will be out at least two weeks, but probably will be able to play in the Tennessee-Vanderbilt game November 15.

The examination disclosed that ligaments and cartilage are torn in McEver's injured knee. Dr. Speed described the operation as a major one of its kind. It will be performed by the two surgeons.

McEver was injured last spring and again during the summer. When he resumed fall practice he again was disabled in scrimmage. A last try to return to the back field showed conclusively that his injury was serious. McEver has not played this year and expects to be eligible next season.

TIDE ROLLS UP YARDAGE.

By gaining 308 yards in the Tennessee game last Saturday, Alabama increased its yardage for the season to date to 1,648. John Suther has gained 274 yards of this total.

NAVY TESTS PRINCETON PLAYS

Middies Stage Long eDfensive Drills for Game Saturday.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 21.—Navy was driven hard this afternoon in preparation for the Princeton game Saturday. The midshipmen held a long defensive workout against Princeton formations as flashed by the best talent on the "B" squad.

While the regulars took a lay-off yesterday, the members of the big team today battered away at Tiger plays as brought here by scouts headed by John N. Wilson, Navy's plebe coach.

The only two changes in the team that faced Notre Dame and Duke will be the shifting of Steffanides, husky oarsman, to end along with Johnny Byng, while Tuttle, heavyweight of the Middie boxing team, is slated to replace Black at the pivot position. Tuttle is sturdier than Black. Gray and Underwood will be regular guards. Gray, also a varsity oarsman, has been bothered by an injured shoulder, and Johnson took his place. In the Notre Dame game Johnson was probably the star of the line, but did not shape up to Gray's usual standard last Saturday.

Bryan and Bowstrom still are held by coaches to be among the best of tackles in college circles. They, however, fell in with the rest of the squad in the poor exhibition against Duke. The let down attributed largely to reaction from the Notre Dame clash of the previous week.

Six backs are being primed for the back field. Dale Baner and "Kid" Denny are alternating as signal chirpers. Kirn has won one o fthe half back jobs, in fact, has proved the outstanding player on the team to date. Hagberg is the undisputed full back, although Antrim and Konrad are not being overlooked. Gannon, the passer and Tschirgi are battling nip and tuck for the honor of starting left half back.

Tomorrow the team is in for another stiff scrimmage, taking the offensive. Theteam will leave here at 7:55 Saturday morning on a special car. The entire regiment will also make the trip to Princeton.

TRANSFER FRANCHISE.

Keokuk, Iowa, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Dr. Charles R. Logan, for 20 years president of the Keokuk Baseball Association, will head a group of five men to whom the association has transferred the Mississippi Valley League franchise and the Keokuk Club. Dr. Logan said his group had sold an option on the club to the St. Louis Cardinals for $5,000.

Mirman, End, Runs Kickoff To Goal

Thrilling Gallop of 70 Yards in 3d Period Ends Deadlock.

4,000 Watch Western Threaten; First Half Is Scoreless.

CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL'S "Question Mark" Eleven started off on the right foot in the 1930 public high school football series yesterday in Central Stadium when the Blue and White defeated Western's fighting team by a score of 14 to 7 before 4,000 persons.

The winning margin, as events proved, was produced by Larry Pinckney, 185-pound Central full back, who carried the oval across the last chalk mark in the early moments of the fourth period. Western rallied with an aerial attack in the final period to send Amidon over with a touchdown, and Webb counted the extra point on a line plunge.

Central's first touchdown was the game's feature, with Gus Mirman, stocky end, running back the second-half kick-off for 70 yards. Tucking the ball under his right arm and using his left to ward off onrushing tacklers, Mirman battered his way into the clear at midfield and raced home unimpeded.

Western Superior In First Quarter.

While the final result justified the hopes of optimistic Central supporters, who have been envisioning the return of the championship to the school on the hill, there were times when it was evident that the Blue and White machine still needs further improvement before it can wrest the title from Tech.

A more even battle than the two teams waged during the first half yesterday could hardly be imagined. Western's bright red warriors held a conspicuous upper hand in the first quarter.

Western kicked off to Central's 30-yard line and in successive plunges at the Red wall Central could gain but a few yards. Mirman kicked out, Central's one good kick until the booting assignment was handed to Pinckney.

The Western first period offensive began when Webb passed to Amidon, who was downed on Central's 16-yard line. Amidon and Lynham hit Central's slightly puerile line for 8 yards between them, but here the wearers of the blue braced and held steadfastly.

Central Threatens in Second Period.

The second quarter saw Central level the see-saw by maneuvering solely in Western territory. Pinckney and Hinkel had taken the oval out of the precarious position in which it lay at the end of the first quarter. De Lisio and Pinckney skirted opposite ends to Western's 38-yard mark. A short pass, De Lisio to Hinkel, gained 20 yards. Pinckney battered the line to Western's 8-yard mark. Here Central was penalized for offside. De Lisio's end run failed to reach the linesman's pole.

Webb kicked out to Western's 35-yard line, but the Red was in danger almost immediately. On the first play De Lisio ran 25 yards around left end. Pinckney and De Lisio hit the line in succession, but Western's Red front line held bravely on the 1-foot line. Webb kicked out 50 yards from behind his goal posts.

Central Improves In Second Half.

One must merely conjecture the words which must have greeted Central's players during the half rest. Suffice to say they appeared 25 per cent better at the beginning of the third quarter. Gus Mirman received the kick-off on his 30-yard line and sprinted 70 yards to a touchdown.

Western came right back. Webb's passes to Lynham and Buscher and Webb's plunge saw the ball carried to Central's 18-yard line. It was Pinckney, whose all-around play stood out during the day, who snatched Webb's third potent pass as it sailed over the goal line toward Lynham's outstretched hands.

Central's orderly passage down the field at the start of the last period saw them "clicking" more evenly

Sweeping Changes in Rules Of Scoring Seen by Heydler

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—There are far more important revisions needed in the baseball rules than the elimination of the sacrifice fly, in the opinion of John A. Heydler, of the National League.

Although refusing to comment on the suggestion of President E. S. Barnard, of the American League, that the sacrifice fly be banned, President Heydler predicted there would be a thorough revision of the rules at the December meeting of the two major leagues.

"Scoring rules in particular need clarifying," said the National League head, "so that the average fan can tell the difference between an error and a hit. The methods of figuring pitchers' records also is in need of changing.

"There is a committee of baseball writers working on the clarification of the rules, but I can not say just what revisions they will recommend. Personally I prefer to remain out of any baseball discussion until the football season is over," said Heydler.

MACK GARNER PILOTS FOUR WINNERS AT LAUREL

Day Featured By Jocky's Triumphs

Rides Mr. Sponge to Victory Over Ned O. in Feature.

Harvey's Foul Claim Disallowed; Valenciennes Third.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 21.—The high light of the racing today was the feat of Mack Garner, the Widener jockey, in riding four winners—Buckup and Mr. Sponge, in the two feature races, for Mr. Widener, and Fly Guy in the first race and Stern Chaser in the seventh event.

This is a record for the Maryland season on major tracks. Jockey Adams rode nine successive mounts to victory on the half-mile track at Marlboro, his mounts distributed over two days. Garner's feat today was probably the greatest since Earl Sande's record of six winning mounts at Havre de Grace some years ago.

Garner had no easy victory on any of his mounts. He landed Fly Guy by a half length, and got the same margin with Mr. Sponge under whip. Buckup and Stern Chaser were driven in by a neck in each instance. With Sande riding only selected mounts, and few of them, the race for supremacy in the realm of jockeys seems to be between Garner and R Workman, for L. Fator sems to have gone back and no longer can be considered near the top.

Mr. Sponge Scores In Feature.

J. E. Widener scored a double when Mr. Sponge won the Cecil Purse, the feature today, having previously taken the Peggy Stewart with Buck Up. G. W. Foreman's Ned O. was second, Mrs. John D. Hertz's Valenciennes third and E. R. Bradley's Buckeye Poet fourth.

The start was good for all but Woodcraft. Mr. Sponge went to the front and led easily until Ned O. challeneged, when Garner had to go to the whip. Harvey claimed he was interfered with by Mr. Sponge, but the protest was not upheld. Valenciennes closed very fast to get third. Ned O. went to the post a slight favorite. The winner paid $6.30. The time was 1:44 3-5 for the mile and a sixteenth. Buckeye Poet was close to the pace until Ned O. passed him.

The day was cool, but a large crowd was out. The feature was run within a second of the record. Woodcraft made his first appearance since spring in this event, but was outrun at all stages.

Fly Guy Closes Fast In Opener.

Sam H. Harris, theatrical man of Broadway, sent the winner of the first race to the post in Fly Guy, Garner up. The gelding was a long time catching the pacemaker, Redoubtable, but once in front drew away. Mynheer next passed Redoubtable, but the last mentioned held the show money by a head over Sweet Air. The winner was the favorite and paid $5.30. The time was 1:14 1-5. Twelve 2-year-olds started. Redoubtable beat the field from the gate and had an easy lead to the sixteenth, when the others caught her tiring.

Brown Erin Second Favorite to Win.

P. M. Walker's Brown Erin was the second favorite to win, defeating an ordinary lot of maidens, 3-year-olds and upward. R. Dulaney's Ellona was second and The Whip third. A. Robertson had the mount on the winner, which won by a length. Ellona was a neck in front of The Whip. Destiny Bay was fourth, six lengths back. The Glen Riddle Farm started for the first time Dock Light, by Man o' War—Milkyway, a 3-year-old. He hung at the start, but ran a good race. The time was 1:48 2-5 for a mile and a sixteenth. The winner paid $3.80.

Joseph E. Widener's Buck Up, in a fast 6 furlongs, always under a drive by Garner, beat the Western filly, Risque, of Mrs. John D. Hertz by a neck in the Peggy Stewart purse for 2-year-old fillies. Harry Payne Whitney's Avenger was third, two and a half lengths back of the leaders. The time was 1:12 1-5. The winner paid $13. This was the first overthrow of a favorite of the day.

Chief interest in the race was the presence of three candidates for the $25,000 Selima Stakes Saturday—Buck Up, Risque and Center Stone, from the Glen Riddle Farm. The other starter was Grace Darling. Buck Up led all the way. Risque, making her chief challenge at the sixteenth, failed. She had top weight.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROWN ERIN, $3.80, $2.40, $2.20; EILONA, $3.80, $2.80; THE WHIP, $2.60.
BROWN ERIN dropped back shortly after the break and lost ground at the first turn, took a wide course to reach contention, finished gamely and was going away steadily. EILONA followed close up, shook off the leaders when ready, but could not stall off the winner. THE WHIP raced forwardly and held on well.

BROWN ERIN DRIVES AWAY BLUES IN SECOND.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:51½. Off at 2:51½. Winner, J. E. Widener's b. f. (2), by Buchan—Look Up. Trained by P. Coyne. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23, 0:47 4-5, 1:12 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUCKUP, $13.00, $3.70, $2.40; RISQUE, $2.80, $2.20; AVENGER, $2.40.
BUCKUP began quickly, was steadied along for the first furlong, drew clear approaching the home stretch, was forced to a stout drive in the last sixteenth and just lasted. RISQUE followed close up throughout, made a bold charge, but appeared to hang. AVENGER was outrun. GRACE DARLING quit.

BUCKUP PROVES RISQUE TO BE BAD RISK.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:25. Winner, H. C. Hatch's b. f. (4), by Bainneur—Norther. Trained by L. Gentry. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $200. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48, 1:12 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MR. SPONGE, $6.30, $3.50, $2.70; NED O., $3.20, $2.70; VALENCIENNES, $3.00.
MR. SPONGE broke rapidly from the inside, opened up an easy lead rounding first turn, was taken in hand on back stretch and, nursed along in front, had something in hand when NED O. challenged in stretch run. NED O., closer up than usual in early stages, saved ground entire trip. He was never off the inside rail.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VOLTEAR, $4.80, $3.70, $3.50; BLIMP, $11.60, $5.40; SCARED O' NOTHIN', $5.40.
VOLTEAR, rated along in the early stages, went to the outside when called on, shook off the leaders when entering the home stretch and, kept under slight pressure, drew out at end. BLIMP, hustled to the front, was rated along until challenged and held on well. SCARED O' NOTHIN' showed a good test and appears in good form.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STERN CHASER, $5.90, $4.20, $3.40; FAIR THORN, $7.50, $3.90; NEALON KAY, $4.10.
STERN CHASER assumed command when settled on the back stretch, drew clear at the final turn, but had to be hard ridden at the end to stall off FAIR THORN. Latter, prominent throughout, came to the outside and was wearing the winner down gradually. NEALON KAY closed stoutly. REJUVENATION went evenly.

HANDFUL OF UNBEATEN 1929 TEAMS STILL WINNING

Seven Remain Undefeated In Year

Small Group Headed by Notre Dame, Fordham.

Western Maryland, Ohio U. and Utah Also Included.

By TED VOSBURGH.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Several of the great football teams that went through last season without defeat have fallen already in the course of a strenuous campaign, but a handful headed by Notre Dame go marching on as though possessed of charmed lives.

Several leading colleges have not lost a game in more than a year—Notre Dame, Utah, Western Maryland, Duquesne, Ohio University, Texas Christian and Fordham. In fact the first three named have not been so much as tied.

Virtually all of these seven are scheduled to defend their records against formidable foes this Saturday. Notre Dame plays Pittsburgh, Utah meets Denver, Duquesne opposes Catholic University in a Friday night affair, and Fordham comes to grips with its Metropolitan rival, New York University, in a game that has the big town stirred up.

Loyola Looms Easy For W. Maryland.

Somewhat easier assignments are anticipated by Western Maryland in meeting Loyola, of Baltimore, and by Ohio and Texas Christian in playing Miami and Texas Tech, respectively.

Knute Rockne's men will carry a string of twelve straight victories into battle with Pittsburgh's powerful eleven at the huge Pitt Stadium this Saturday. Not since Southern California tossed them for a 27-to-14 loss in the final game of the drab 1928 campaign have the Irish been beaten or held to a draw.

Utah, the king pin of the Rocky Mountain Conference, was last beaten by Creighton in 1927, although tied by Brigham Young and Creighton in 1928.

Under the expert coaching of Dick Harlow, former mentor of Colgate and Penn State, little Western Maryland, one of the smallest schools in the East, has won sixteen straight games since it was tied by Gettysburg in 1928. Included in this sweep were two victories over Georgetown and one over Maryland.

Fordham Tied Twice Last Season.

Fordham was tied twice last year and Duquesne once, but otherwise they have carried all before them. A tie last season and a scoreless game with Simmons a few days ago are the only breaks in Texas Christian's victorious progress. Ohio, after going through last season unbeaten and untied, was held to a draw on October 11 by West Liberty.

Among the foootball elect of last year who have fallen before the present season has passed the halfway point are Tennessee, which suffered its first defeat in 34 games since 1926 at the hands of Alabama Saturday; Southern Methodist, which fell before Notre Dame in a thrilling game; Tulane, a victim of Northwestern's powerful attack, and St. Mary's, turned back by California by a single point.

Martha Jones Scores In Feature at Latonia

Latonia, Ky., Oct. 21 (A.P.).—J. T. Looney and Shelby Jones' Martha Jones scored one of the most popular triumphs of her successful initial campaign when she accounted for the Richmond Purse, feature of the third program of the Latonia Jockey Club's meeting. The daughter of Wise Counselor won easily and by four lengths from Wee Shane. Reverberate ran in third position.

than in any game this year. Pinckney put the ball across from the 3-yard line after a drive of 50 yards. De Liso plunged for the extra point.

Webb's mechanically perfect passing paved the way for Western's late tally. Two heaves, one to Amidon and one to Reynolds, placed the ball on Central's 20-yard chalk. Amidon, on a smooth double pass, squirmed through Central's left tackle for the touchdown. Webb rushed it across for the extra point.

V. M. I. TEAM DRILLED ON OFFENSE

Coach Seeks Scoring Punch for Battle With Maryland.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 21.—Disappointed at their failure to win the Virginia game Saturday after outplaying the Cavaliers in the first half, members of the V. M. I. Team have settled down with redoubled energy to prepare for their game with Maryland at Richmond this week. Coach Bill Raftery feels that comparatively little work will suffice the V. M. I. defense, which weakened twice to allow Sippley and Thomas to score, and the rest of the week's program calls for intensive drills in offensive tactics.

The Virginia game was almost a repetition of the Citadel clash of the preceding week, with V. M. I. almost doubling the opponent's ground gaining, but slipping badly after making opportunities to score. Coaches Raftery, Hess and Binish are confident that continued hard work on the offense will supply the scoring punch that has been noticeably lacking this season.

Cadet Corps Leaves By Train Friday.

Plans have been definitely completed for the corps movement to Richmond to support the Flying Squadron against Maryland's Old Liners. The squad will travel by bus to the capital city Friday, but the corps will leave Lexington by train Friday night, arriving in Richmond at 6:30 Saturday morning. The Cadets will be quartered at the Blues Armory, with permission granted to individuals to stay with relatives and friends. The corps will entrain at 9 a. m., Sunday morning, on the return trip.

Though the Cadets downed St. John's, 6 to 0, and Maryland defeated the same team, 21 to 13, the Old Liners are considered to have made the better showing in piercing the Johnnies' stout defense for three touchdowns before giving away to reserves, who allowed the Annapolis team to score twice.

SAYS PEGLER

waiting for their captaincy bars once they have been graduated from the academy, most of them in posts where the liquor is poor, the social life limited and monotonous and glory is not.

The ranks seem less the same every year, for the uniform changes gradually, but a class goes out to the Army every spring and the cadet corps, which appears unchanging, is completely renewed every four years, with a few exceptions. One such young man who went out eleven years ago reappeared in Boston Friday night, a first lieutenant of infantry but hopeful of receiving his captaincy in three more years, and I doubt that life in the Army had yielded him many minutes of that pomp, which is one of the lures for young cadets, since June week, 1919. It struck me that anything any governor or mayor can do to kid the cadets along and make them feel enviable is little enough to do for them, considering that they will soon be deglorified and sent out to stand by for years as officers of the regular Army.

Takes Little to Make Them Feel Good.

It takes little to make them feel good. Give them a crowd to oh and ah at them as they swing by; give them some trinket carved from the original wood of Peter Stuyvesant's leg or a few kind words beginning, "As a token of the respect of the citizens of the great State of So-and-So," and they are fortified for long months of hard routine at the only college in the United States which has sufficient honor to trust itself to do the sporting thing in sporting matters.

Boston does it generously. Of course the boys are being strung along, because Boston and Massachusetts, in a past war of some importance, were not particularly distinguished by the excellence of the shoes or uniforms which they sent down to the troops at contract prices, and the people who bought blockade cotton, to the detriment of the Union cause and the aggrandizement of certain basic New England fortunes of today, certainly were not the country's farmers. But soldiers always are paid off in medals of bronze or pewter, little strips of ribbon and cheers for the sustenance of their vanity.

A silver plaque costs a State, say $100, and the governor, on a holiday Saturday afternoon in the fall, probably has nothing better to do than assure the cadets that his State holds them dear as guardians of the Nation. It seems positively churlish to do less than this for the young men of the United States Military Academy.

Line-Up Revamped by Mills Treats Freshmen Roughly.

By JACK ESPEY.

THREATENED changes in the Georgetown first team, which drew the ire of Head Coach Tom Mills for its showing against Western Maryland last Saturday, were apparently taking form yesterday as Mills sent a revamped line-up against the Freshmen in a torrid scrimmage in Griffith Stadium.

On the heels of Mills' statement that he was going to select the first team from players displaying the utmost fighting spirit, the scrimmage brought out some of the most zealous football that a Georgetown eleven has exhibited in either game or practice to date.

At one stage of the scrimmage Emile Bozek, substitute right half back, came to blows with a freshman end, O'Rourke, but the quick intervention of the coaches and other players prevented any damage being done and it was ended with handshaking.

Hudson and Parlette At Ends.

The first team was composed of Ray Hudson and Lew Parlette at ends; Ed Katalinas and Gunnear Anderson, tackles; Dave Muir and Aurel Tremblay, guards; Capt. Bill Morr's, center; Dick King, quarter back; Ed Leary and Emile Bozek, half backs, and Leroy Bordeau, full back.

Mills arrayed this team with no comment. Hudson, Parlette, Muir, King, Leary and Bozek hitherto have been regarded as second stringers. They filled the places, respectively, of Jim Leavey, Bob Brennan, Maurice Dubofsky, Johnny Scalzi, Johnny Bozek and Russ Danieu, all of whom started against Western Maryland.

Whether Mills will stick to this combination for the West Virginia game Friday night is problematical. Some observers believe that he will not, predicting that he is shoving some of the regulars in the background temporarily in order to get a better line on the ability of the reserves. It also is said that, in view of his expressed dissatisfaction with the Western Maryland result, Mills is ignoring certain players as a sort of disciplinary measure.

The varsity answered Mills' complaint about lack of fighting spirit by treating the freshmen to a rough afternoon. It was just the opposite of the nature of last Wednesday's scrimmage when the yearlings ran wild through the varsity.

Whereas last week the freshmen ran up four touchdowns, the varsity yesterday held the upper hand. There was not as much scoring, but what there was the varsity was responsible for. On one occasion Bordeau, behind fine interference, scored off tackle on a run of 10 yards.

That Georgetown will have to play a spirited brand of football to down West Virginia may be taken for granted, since the Morgantown team has a burning desire to avenge previous defeats. The Mountaineers have not even scored against Georgetown since 1926, when they won, 13 to 10, in the renewal of the series that began in 1902.

Last year's game ended 0 to 0 after Georgetown had failed to negotiate a chance to score in the last quarter.

Washington-Lee High Team To Invade Fredericksburg

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 21.—Washington and Lee High School, of Ballston, will travel to Fredericksburg next Friday for their first conference game in the Third District. The Generals last year won the State of Virginia football title in Class B and are favored to repeat again this season. Already they have defeated Western and Eastern High Teams of Washington.

Efforts to book the Seaman Gunners for a game Sunday with the St. Mary's Celtics Eleven have failed. The Gobs will probably play the locals within two weeks.

Manager Bill Hammond of the Pirate Athletic Club, hopes to play the Hilltops next Sunday. The Pirates have signed Lester Scott and "Sonny" Henderson to play with the team the rest of the season.

Manager Pat Gorman, of the Virginia Athletic Club, is seeking a game with some fast Washington football team for Sunday. He can be reached from 9 to 4:30 o'clock by phoning Alexandria 190. The Virginians play in the unlimited class.

The Del Ray Athletic Club, Alexandria's entry in the 150-pound division of the Capital City League, will entertain the Wolverines in Sunday's tussle. This game will be fought out on the Redbirds' home field.

Charlie Armstrong, Alexandria youth, is playing right tackle on the freshman eleven at Washington and Jefferson College. Armstrong formerly starred with the Alexandria High School Eleven. He made the district mythical eleven for two seasons.

LAUREL NOTES

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 21.—Col. J. P. Sullivan, before departing for the Fair Grounds, New Orleans, informed horsemen that there will be no reduction in purses there this winter. All Fair Grounds stakes will have a value of at least $1,000.

Dick Carmen, jr., who handles the Nevada Stock Farm's horses, will take a division to the winter racing at Miami.

Andy Blakeley was an arrival from New York with W. H. Miller's string.

Spinach, Yarn, Chianti, and Polydor returned from Latonia, Ky. The first two will be pointed for the $15,000 Maryland Handicap, a mile and a quarter test to be run Saturday, October 25.

At the present writing it looks as if the field in the $15,000 Maryland Handicap will consist of Spinach, 126; Yarn, 120; Starpatic, 121; Questionnaire, 119; Ned O, 113; Conclave, 112; Her Grace, 108; Valenciennes, 108; Woodcraft, 108, and Sun Falcon, 105.

Trainer Elmer Trueman, of Washington, is mighty high on Ral Parr's Her Grace and says the filly is a certain starter in the Maryland Handicap.

Trainer Bringloe has purchased for Ed Seagram, of Waterloo, Ontario the 2-year-olds, Darksini, bay son of Traumer—Asinia and Mintmagi, a bay son of Mint Briar—Romagi, from Willis Sharpe Kilmer.

Willie Daly is planning to send Myrthus to the United Hunts meeting on November 8 at Belmont Park.

The Glen Riddle Farm's Great Gun has been placed on the schooling list.

Joseph McLennan, race secretary at Bowie, states that entries are beginning to come in for various stakes to be run during next month's session in Prince George's County. The Bowie stake list closes on Saturday.

CAMPOLO ARRIVES HOME.

Buenos Aires, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Victorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight boxer, arrived today on the steamer American Legion. He said he would return to the United States in December to fight Young Stribling in Miami.

HAWKS SEEK FIRST WIN TONIGHT

New Plays Readied for Invasion of Catonsville.

DEFEATED once and tied twice in their only three starts so far, the Mohawks will attempt to register their first 1930 victory at Griffith Stadium tonight when they stack up against a powerful Catonsville (Md.) Club at 8:15 o'clock.

An idea of the sort of competition Coach Abbey's players will encounter may be gleaned from the fact that Catonsville last Sunday scored a two-touchdown victory over the Lansdownes, a team which previously had beaten the Hawks, 6-0, and tied them, 0-0.

Catonsville boasts several outstanding performers. Sol Baker, former Homestead star, who plays full back for the Marylanders, is one of the greatest line plungers football has ever produced in this section. "Bullet" Gerard is another back-field star whom the Hawks will have to watch closely. The Catonsville line is bulwarked around "Tubby" Branner, well-known to District fans when he started with Maryland several seasons ago. Branner is playing a smashing game at tackle for the Marylanders.

Mohawks to Use New Plays.

Defensively the Mohawks are rated highly, as attested by their scoreless ties with Lansdowne and Irvington. Although within scoring distance on numerous occasions in their trio of contests so far this season, the locals heretofore have lacked the punch to cross an opponent's goal line. In an attempt to develop this punch Coach Abbey has been drilling his charges on several new offensive plays built around "Snail" De Labre and "Admiral" Dewey, outstanding backs, which will be used for the first time tonight.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR W. VA. U.

Morgantown, W. Va., Oct. 21.—A special train for the West Virginia University football squad, band and fans will be operated out of here for the Georgetown game in Washington, D. C., scheduled Friday night. The train will leave here Thursday night at 10 o'clock and will arrive in the Capital at 7 Friday morning.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

SEWAGE SEEN AS THREAT TO WATER SUPPLY

Big Rain Could Send Montgomery Refuse Into Reservoir.

CREEK TOO SLUGGISH TO GET RID OF SLIME

Sluice Built Five Years Ago to Carry Overflow Into Dalecarlia.

A heavy rain would result in dumping much of the summer's accumulation of sewage from western Montgomery County in Maryland into the Dalecarlia Reservoir, which supplies Washington with its drinking water.

The sewers of Chevy Chase, Friendship Heights, Bethesda, Edgemoor, Drummond, Somerset and other communities in that section of the county empty for the most part into Willett Creek, at a point about 2 miles above the northern end of the reservoir.

Willett Creek in turn flows into Little Falls Branch, which runs to a point about 100 feet from the edge of the reservoir, where it pours into a tunnel which carries it to the Potomac River.

Above the point where it receives the sewage, Willett Creek is a clear-crystal stream of what appears to be pure water. Below that point its odor can be detected by a keen nose for a distance of at least a quarter of a mile.

Slimy Refuse Evident.

Without going into details, it may be said that the drought this summer has made the water in the creek so low that there has not been enough flow to carry off the sewage, with the result that the bottom and edges of the stream are covered with a layer of slimy refuse which in some spots is considerably more than a foot deep.

Throughout the summer residents of the section say, Willett Creek has been the breeding spot for billions upon billions of mosquitoes and other insects, to say nothing of untold trillions of germs of various kinds.

At the upper end of the reservoir there was built about five years ago a sluice which was constructed for the purpose of carrying the overflow from the creek into the reservoir, where it became part of the water which residents of the District drank.

This sluice, according to Edward Dana Hardy, superintendent of the reservoir, was built to guard against the possibility that the pressure of water from the swollen creek might break down the banks of the reservoir.

Has Overflowed Before.

The creek, he said, has overflowed into the reservoir at various times in past years, but not since the sluice was built. The last time such a situation occurred was just before the sluice was built, and was, in fact, the emergency which emphasized the need for some protection to guard against breakage of the reservoir walls.

However, residents of the District who drink the water from Dalecarlia are not certain that to have to drink the sewage from Montgomery County would really be the lesser of two evils, despite the fact that Mr. Hardy explains that in case of an overflow the water would pass through a chlorinator and be purified before flowing into the District mains.

J. D. Bowman, secretary of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, which is in charge of all sewerage in Montgomery County, contends that the commission is not to be blamed because an open sewer flows for 2 miles through the county and endangers Washington's supply of drinking water.

Creek's Use Temporary.

He explains that under the commission's arrangement with the District, Willett Creek is being used as a sewer only temporarily, until such time as the District constructs a trunkline sewer in the vicinity with which the Maryland line can connect.

When this is accomplished, he pointed out, all the sewage from the western part of the county will flow through pipes to the point where it will connect with he District trunk, whence it will be carried to the Potomac without any overhead distribution. Mr. Bowman cited the diversion this summer of the sewage from the eastern part of the county, formerly dumped into Rock Creek, which is now carried directly into District pipes.

Mr. Bowman said he was not aware of the sluice which had been built into the reservoir, and agreed that "something ought to be done about it." However, just who is to act is a question which does not now seem close to solution. The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission claims that it has no responsibility in the matter, while Mr. Hardy insists that the possibility of such an overflow is slight, although he admits it has happened at various times in the past and that there is no reason why it should not happen again.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Oct. 21.—Noel H. Moody has been elected president of the Augusta County Teachers Association, succeeding J. D. Kramer. Other new officers are Miss Flay Mitchell, vice president; J. M. Garber, secretary; O. S. Crute, treasurer. The new president is from Fishersville; Miss Mitchell from Stuarts Draft; Mr. Garber from Spottswood, and Mr. Crute from Stuarts Draft.

Teachers in Augusta schools this year will conduct an intensive campaign to improve reading among pupils.

Miss Gladys Goodman and Miss Ethel Spillman, of the Harrisonburg Teachers College faculty, conducted discussion groups for various departmental teachers during the afternoon of the association's first meeting. Prof. Frank M. Somerville, superintendent of county schools, also conducted a discussion group.

Seepage of Tank Held Gasoline "Well" Cause

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 21.—Lonnie Burwell's gasoline bubble burst in Caswell County today with reports by Herman J. Bryson, State geologist, that the gasoline which has been flowing into his well seeped in from a leaking gasoline tank in Burwell's filling station.

The geologist reported that the rock formation was not of oil-producing type and that the probability was that gasoline had been leaking from the tank for some time and that there would be continued seepage. Burwell, however, contends he removed the gasoline tank and found no leak in it.

In the meantime there has been a cave-in in the well and the flow of gas has stopped.

MAN PLEADS GUILTY TO KILLING CHILDREN

Martinsburg Father Admits He Lured Daughter and Sons to Death.

SENTENCE IS DEFERRED

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg W. Va., Oct. 21.—Taylor W. Hott, 35, unemployed laborer, entered a formal plea of guilty to three indictments charging him with the slaying of his three children in a quarry hole near here July 20, when arraigned today in circuit court. Asked to plead to the indictment returned by a grand jury not more than two hours previously, he merely replied, "I'm guilty."

Judge Rodgers announced sentence would be deferred until court could hear a statement of the case from the prosecution. This was not expected before Thursday, inasmuch as the grand jury is still in session.

It is the first case in some years here when a prisoner has thrown himself upon the mercy of the court. Opportunity is given a prisoner, just before sentence is pronounced, to make any statement he may desire. Whether Hott will avail himself of the privilege is not known.

Bodies Found in Pool.

Hott is accused of slaying his three children—Gertrude, 7; Calvin, 6, and Floyd, 5—whose stiffened bodies were discovered in a pool of water in one of the abandoned quarry holes near the southern edge of this city by youths who had gone there to bathe.

The parents made no inquiry before they were taken into custody by police for questioning. Hott then said he had "given" the children to a Kidwell family in the county. Police took him on a hunt of the "Kidwell" family, and, on this trip, under a tree along a country road, he finally told officers his alibi was false and confessed the slayings.

He said, according to the confession later repeated to other officers, he slew the children about dusk. Earlier in the afternoon he and his wife had walked with the children to a suburban park. Later she refused to accompany him on a further walk with the trio and he took them to the quarry hole. There, he said, apparently becoming either mentally unbalanced and angered by his wife's attitude, he decided to kill the children.

Put Cloth Around Necks.

He lured them down the rocky bank to the water under the pretext of letting them go in swimming. At the water's edge, he said, he picked up a piece of cloth, tore it into strips and placed these strips around their necks, explaining to the unsuspecting children that they were necessary to prevent water from getting into their mouths. One at a time he tightened the strips so tight that the children crumpled into unconsciousness. He then tossed them into the water, he said. The girl sank immediately. Calvin struggled faintly to reach the bank, but a rock, tossed on the child's chest, sent him to the bottom.

Floyd, younger of the two boys, put up a desperate fight for his life, Hott told the officers. He said he tossed the little lad into the water, but when the boy landed, the child immediately regained consciousness and climbed a short distance up the bank. This action unnerved the father, Hott adding that he did not remember exactly what followed. He thought he tightened the strip again about the neck and pushed the boy back into the water and shoved him under the surface with a pole. (Floyd's body showed two holes in the head.)

Autopsies performed by four physicians at the request of the State's attorney revealed no sign of water in the lungs of the children.

Loudoun 4-H Clubs Stage Celebration

Waterford Minister Talks at Achievement Day Exercises.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., Oct. 21.—The Rev. J. A. Bowman, of Waterford, was the principal speaker at Achievement Day exercises held in the high school auditorium here by the Loudoun County home demonstration clubs and the 4-H Clubs marking completion of the past year's work under the direction of the extension division of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Mrs. Moncure Lyon, of Purcellville, presided at the meeting.

Round Hill 4-H Club was awarded first place for the year's work and for their showing on Achievement Day. The Lucketts Home Demonstration Club also won first place for their year's work, showing on Achievement Day and in the table arrangement contest.

The 4-H Club members who won State honors were presented by by the county agent, Miss Harriet Cocke. They are Lillian Hope, of the Lucketts 4-H Club, who was one of the girls in Virginia sent to the National Camp in Washington, and Mary Alice Turman, of Arcola, judged to be the best girl physically who attended the State short course at Blacksburg.

BOY PLEADS GUILTY IN BURGLARY COUNT

Prince Georges Youth Only One of 17 Not to Fight Indictments.

PAY FOR ROAD HELD UP

Seventeen persons against whom the Prince Georges County grand jury returned indictments were arraigned before Judges Joseph C. Mattingly and William M. Lokar yesterday in the circuit court at Upper Marlboro, and only one pleaded guilty to the charge brought against him. He was Bernard Overly, a young white boy accused of burglary.

Those arraigned yesterday were expected to plead guilty and reduce the number of cases which will have to be tried in this term of court. In spite of the great number of not guilty pleas it is still possible that many of them will be changed after the prisoners have retained lawyers, as in most cases yesterday they pleaded without advice of counsel.

Criminal trials on the new indictments will begin today, and untried civil cases will be postponed until criminal cases have been disposed of. It was originally intended, however, not to begin criminal trials until next Monday, when other cases would have been finished.

Those arraigned yesterday and the charges to which they pleaded not guilty were: Arthur Godbold, John Tillman, William Epps and John Samson, larceny and receiving stolen goods; Benjamin Roth, larceny and intent to defraud; Robert Tolson, larceny and receiving stolen goods; Lewis Holmes, larceny and receiving stolen goods; Randolph Lewis and Thomas Newman, larceny and receiving stolen goods; William E. Hawkins, Thomas Woods, Charles Bassen and Frederick Dorsey, larceny and receiving stolen goods; Charles Rawlings and Raymond Chaney, larceny and receiving stolen goods, and another count against Charles Rawlings alone, larceny.

Eldridge Webster, alias Stormy Webster, pleaded not guilty to charges of assault with intent to kill, assault and battery, and robbery. All three of these counts grew out of his alleged attack on Henry Lafayette Davis, of Accokeek last summer, in which Davis was nearly killed during a holdup. William Green, colored, also pleaded not guilty to the murder of Richard Diggs, who was shot to death about two weeks ago. Henry Bennett said that he was not guilty of assault with intent to kill and assault and battery on Goldie Dyson, and William Love will fight the charge of arson that was returned against him by the grand jury.

County Commissioner William A. Duvall yesterday refused to pass for payment a bill for $2,200 for construction of the Branchville road from the Baltimore boulevard to Edmonston, claiming that the road was not up to specifications. His refusal came at the regular meeting of the board of commissioners, and caused the board to ask the State Roads commissioner to examine the road to determine the propriety of paying the bill.

Mr. Duvall says that the surface of the road is rough, and that the tar used in construction is thin and of poor quality. The culverts he declared to be properly built, however. District Engineer E. G. Duncan will inspect the road and report to the board. The road is a county highway built by a private concern on a contract let by the board of supervisors.

The board also authorized repairs to the roadway of the bridge on the Metzerott road over the Pint Branch. The repairs are not to cost more than $100.

A suggestion made to the mayor and council of Hyattsville that the police court in that town be located elsewhere than next door to the school was referred to the commissioners and considered at yesterday's meeting. The board decided that if the mayor and council could find any other suitable building in the town for the police court, a change in location would be approved.

The Taxpayers Association of Prince Georges County will hold a meeting in Suitland tonight and one in Mount Rainier next Monday night. These gatherings will be for the purpose of gaining votes for the coalition ticket supported by the taxpayers, the Law Enforcement League and the Municipay Officers Association of the county.

Samuel Grollman was yesterday awarded $100 by a circuit court jury as the result of his suit for personal injuries against Rice Hooe, a lawyer, with offices in Washington. Grollman, who is a cattle dealer, is said to have had a contract for the grazing of his stock on Hooe's farm in Virginia. During an argument over terms of the contract, Grollman said, he was assaulted by Hooe and painfully injured. Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer appeared for Grollman.

Citizens of Riverdale Hills and Riverdale Heights want Charlotte avenue and one other street connecting their town with the main road taken over by the county and maintained as county roads. The other route has not been decided upon yet. Eventually, leaders of the group say, they would like to have one of the roads kept up by the State. Petitions asking for the county roads will be prepared and sent to the board of commissioners of the county in the near future.

Plans for the Thanksgiving service of the Hyattsville Associated Charities were made yesterday at a meeting of the association in Hyattsville. There have been no more appeals for help than usual, the president, Mrs Retta Morris, said, but from the amount of unemployment the Charities expect to have a busy winter. The Federation of Colored Churchwomen in the county will form an auxiliary to the Associated Charities, it was announced.

Fire early yesterday destroyed the 8-room house on the farm of J. Bottistone near Redd's corner, Md., doing damage estimated at $10,000. In spite of the wind, volunteer firemen from Marlboro, Capitol Heights, and Greater Capitol Heights succeeded in saving several tobacco barns which stood near the house.

Credit Bureau Meeting Is Called in Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 21.—The Annapolis Chamber of Commerce has called a special meeting Thursday evening for further discussion of the proposal to organize a credit bureau in Annapolis.

The chamber has obtained Stephen M. Talkes, manager of the Retail Credit Association of Washington to make an address on the operation of such a bureau and the benefits accruing therefrom.

FRITZ MEDAL GIVEN TO ADMIRAL TAYLOR

Highest Engineering Award Goes to Retired Navy Man for Deeds.

EXPERT IN HULL DESIGN

New York, Oct. 21 (A.P.).—Rear Admiral David Watson Taylor, retired, has been awarded the John Fritz gold medal, highest honor of the engineering profession in America.

He receives it "for outstanding achievement in marine architecture, for revolutionary results of persistent research in hull design, for improvements in many types of warships, and for distinguished service as chief constructor of the United States Navy during the World War."

Others who have been given the medal in the past are Herbert Hoover, Ralph Modjeski, John J. Carty, Elmer A. Sperry, Edward Dean Adams, John F. Stevens, and Ambrose Swasey. The award is made by representatives of the four American Societies of Civil, Mining and Metallurgical, Mechanical and Electrical Engineers.

One of Admiral Taylor's most notable achievements was utilization of the bow wave for ship propulsion, a practice which cut the United States Navy's coal bill in half and has been adopted by every navy in the world.

He also, while chief of the Bureau of Construction of the Navy, inaugurated the design of a giant flying boat which could proceed to Europe by air. This resulted in 1919 in the first flight across the Atlantic by the NC-4.

The dirigible Shenandoah also was designed under Admiral Taylor's direction.

Admiral Taylor was born in Virginia in 1864, attended Randolph-Macon College from 1877 to 1881, and in 1885 was graduated from the United States Naval Academy with the highest honors ever attained by any midshipman up to that time. He was then sent by the Navy Department to the Royal Naval College at Greenwich, England, completing his course there in 1888.

He is a commander of the legion of honor of France and was awarded the distinguished service medal for his work as chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair during the World War.

When forest fires developed in Wisconsin, Gov. Walter J. Kohler made an inspection trip in an airplane over the blazing region.

JAMES K. MADDUX, SPORTSMAN, DEAD

Virginian, Who 'Discovered' Man o' War, Victim of Heart Attack.

RESIDED IN WARRENTON

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 21.—James K. Maddux, noted sportsman, died early this morning in his seventy-eighth year at his home from an acute heart attack.

Mr. Maddux had been complaining for several days and suffered a severe attack Monday evening. His daughter, Miss Winifred Maddux, was with him at the time of his death.

Mr. Maddux was married in 1900 to Miss May Muurling, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. I. J. R. Muurling, of New York, but separated some ten years later. She is now Mrs. Raymond Belmont, of Middleburg. He is survived by his daughter and four nieces—Mrs. George Armstrong, of Buffalo, N. Y., and the Misses Virginia and Lillian Barker and Mrs. W. W. Brown, jr., of Warrenton—and one nephew, J. Edward Barker, of Warrenton.

Mr. Maddux was born in Marshall, formerly Salem, Fauquier County in July, 1853, but early in life moved to Warrenton, where he had since made his home. He was identified with horses all of his life, being a noted amateur rider; he had exhibited and judged in all of the big horse shows of the country. His Neptune, a race horse, won fame, and later his two show ring horses, Gray Cap and Searchlight, took prizes throughout the East, including Madison Square Garden.

He started the movement for the Virginia Gold Cup, now one of the racing classics of the East. In 1917 he picked Man o' War, then a yearling, and persuaded Samuel D. Riddle to buy him at the Saratoga sales in 1917. He was prominent socially and was a member of the Fauquier Club and the Warrenton Country Club, both of Warrenton.

He was a regular attendant annually at Saratoga. His home, Neptune Lodge, was formerly the home of the Civil War Governor of Virginia, "Extra Billy Smith."

Japan, though it has a large local tire industry, is America's best customer for heavy-duty casings for automobile trucks.

JUDGE SETS RECORD IN ARLINGTON COURT

20 Cases Disposed Of Within One Hour by McCarthy; All Plead Guilty.

TAX PAYMENTS ARE DUE

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy set a record yesterday morning when he disposed of 20 cases, ranging from housebreaking, operating automobiles while under the influence of liquor and violations of the prohibition law in general within the space of one hour, according to Arlington court officials. Of the 20 cases disposed of, 2 carried a penitentiary sentence of 1 year in each case. All of the accused plead guilty.

William Proctor, J. W. Lee, Willis McKnight and LeRoy Colvin, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, were fined $147.50, including costs, and each given a susended jail sentence of 30 days.

James C. Todd, pleading guilty to two charges of housebreaking, one from which he took an automobile valued at $500 and the other $75, was sentenced to serve one year in the penitentiary in each case.

Shirley Fortune, C. E. Darnell, Benjamin Briggman and Phillip Jones, pleading guilty to charges of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, were fined $147.50, including costs, and given a jail sentence of 30 days with the exception of Phillip Jones, who drew a jail sentence of 60 days.

James Walker, pleading guilty to a charge of illegal possession, was given a jail sentence of three months in addition to a fine of $52.50, including costs.

John Casey, pleading guilty to a charge of destroying evidence to be used in prosecuting a charge of violation of the prohibition laws, was given a suspended jail sentence of one month in addition to a fine of $97.50, including costs.

Clarence Brown, Joseph Patterson, Powhatan Winston, Walter Jenkins and C. K. Gray, pleading guilty to charges of illegal possession, were given a jail sentence of one month in addition to a fine of $97.50, including costs. The jail sentence was suspended in the cases of Jenkins and Gray.

Isiah Saunders, Richard Savoy and Ada Savoy, charged with destroying evidence, were given a jail sentence of one month in addition to a fine of $97.50, including costs.

Mrs. Mary Morris Lockwood, executive head of the woman' bureau of the Arlington County Voters Service League, last night gave out the following statement on the question of the proposed change in the county form of government:

"As to the plan to change the present form of the county government, I favor it, but I am unalteraby opposed to the plan to elect members of the county board, as proposed in the plan, at large; first, as it will not give to property owners living in the ouskirts of the county an opportunity to have any representation on the board and, second, because thickly settled sections of the county will be able to elect members of the board, thereby having control of the county affairs."

Having completed the tax records for Jefferson District, County Treasurer E. Wade Ball announces that he or one of his deputies will sit at the Jefferson District Health Center tomorrow from 9 o'clock in the morning to 4 o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose of collecting taxes now due the county. Any taxes that are unpaid by December 4 will be subject to a 5 per cent penalty.

Announcing that taxes are now due and payable, Mr. Ball stated that apy person in this district who has not received his or her bill for taxes should immediately apply for it at his office at the courthouse. Failure to receive a bill, he said, does not excuse delinquency.

The Arlington County Republican Club will hold its first fall meeting tonight in the Spaulding Building in room 10 at Clarendon.

The Burnside Corps, No. 4, Woman's Relief Corps Auxiliary, meeting last night with the Parent-Teacher Association of the Nellie Custis School in the schoolhouse, presented an American flag to the school.

The presentation was made by Mrs. Alice Stein, patriotic instructor of the corps, and was accepted on behalf of the Arlington County School Board by A. D. Davis, member of the board from Jefferson District. Other speakers were Mrs. Delia O'Brien, departmental president of the auxiliary, and Mrs. Alice Meade, president of Burnside Corps.

Following these exercises the Parent-Teacher Association held a short business session at which it elected the following officers for the year:

Mrs. E. C. Deitrich, president; Miss Meta Glasscock, first vice president; Warren Norwood, second vice president; Mrs. E. A. Richardson, secretary, and Miss Otis Mohundro, treasurer.

Arlington Lodge, No. 193, I. O. O. F., announces it will give a benefit dinner tonight in the Odd Fellows Hall from 5 to 8 o'clock. Starting at 9 o'clock there will be dancing until midnight.

Members of Arlington County Monarch Club will be guests of the Washington Monarch Club at a luncheon meeting today at the Hamilton Hotel at 12:15 o'clock.

The sixth annual meeting of the Fourth District of the Federation of Women's Clubs will be held today at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse. Mrs. Eli Swavely, district chairman, will preside.

The meeting will open with an address of welcome by Walter U. Varney, vice president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce. Speakers at the morning session will be Mrs. Henry S. Eley, of Suffolk, Va., director and past State president, and Miss Helen Norris Cummings, president of the Cameron Club at Alexandria.

Following luncheon at 1 o'clock, the afternoon session will convene with invocation by the Rev. Isaac Steenson, pastor of the Clarendon Presbyterian Church. The principal speaker will be Mrs. J. L. B. Buck, State president.

The meeting will conclude with a solo by Mrs. C. P. Oliver.

James William Dawson, who for the last ten days has been confined to the Georgetown Hospital, where he underwent an operation, returned to his home in Lyon Village yesterday much improved.

Records in the office of William H. Duncan, county clerk, show that the Virginia State Corporation Commission has granted a charter to the Rucker Lumber Co., Inc., with offices and plant located at Rosslyn, Va.

The maximum capital stock, according to the charter, is $100,000, with the minimum placed at $40,000.

The county board of supervisors has awarded the contract for one carload of pipe, to be used in making extensions to water mains of the county water system, to Joseph D. McDonnell, of Clarendon.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will hold its weekly luncheon meeting tomorrow at 12 o'clock at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse.

22 Kiwanians Plan To Attend Parley

10,000 SEE OPENING OF FREDERICK'S FAIR

Poultry Exhibits Entered by Walter Johnson in County Event.

4-H CLUBS REPRESENTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 21.—The Frederick County Fair, one of the largest in Maryland, began its seventieth annual exhibition today with an attendance of nearly 10,000. It is the last of the Maryland Eastern county fairs and will continue four days.

Every department is crowded with high-class exhibits. Thousands of entries of preserves, jellies, bread, cake, canned fruits and vegetables, paintings, fancy work in linen, cotton and wool, home-made confections and flowers are displayed in the household building. Farm and garden products, including wheat, corn, rye, oats, barley and every variety of vegetables and fruit are shown in the pomological department. Each of four exhibitors competing for special cash prizes have on exhibition 80 varieties of vegetables, grasses, seeds, canned nuts, melons, and fruits. In a special department this year, eight units of the grange have large exhibits of farm and garden products.

The cattle exhibit, one of the features of the fair, is large. Owing to the number of late entries, it was necessary to erect a tent to accommodate 50 animals for which stalls could not be obtained. The cattle are principally of the Holstein, Jersey, Ayershire and Guernsey breeds. Some of the finest specimen of dairy cattle in the State are exhibited by home breeders. A large number of cattle, hogs and sheep are exhibited by 4-H Club boys from ten counties of Maryland, who are competing for cash prizes and silver cups. A number of teams of vocational high school students will take part Friday in the cattle and judging contest.

The poultry department has about 2,000 entries of fancy birds. Among the exhibitors are Walter Johnson, Washington, noted baseball figure, who expects to attend the fair. Most of the poultry will be exhibited in the Madison Square Garden show next January.

About four acres is given over to the machinery exhibit, including tractors, threshers, silos, milkers and every type of labor-saving farm implements.

One of the unusual exhibits is sponsored by the Federation of Rural Womens Clubs. It consists of demonstrations of cookery on a large platform arranged to resemble a kitchen. Teams from half a dozen clubs give demonstrations each day and then distribute the receipts. Today the Maryland Tract, Pleasant Grove and Buckeyestown clubs demonstrated preparation of muffins, school lunches and vegetables. Girls clubs and the Maryland State School for the Deaf have exhibits of home-made garments, canned goods, preserves, paintings and specimens of penmanship.

Other features include races and free attractions in front of the grandstand. A small army of judges began today to award premiums

368 Are Vaccinated In Shepherdstown

Health Officials Believe Smallpox Epidemic Well in Hand.

Special to The Washington Post.

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Oct. 21.—A total of 368 persons—children and adults, white and colored—had been vaccinated against smallpox up to noon today by Dr. Edwin Cameron, of the Berkeley County health unit, lent to Jefferson County for emergency, as the result of smallpox epidemic here that had its start some days ago.

Inoculation was continued with children of the colored grade school and citizens today. The children in the white grades and students of Shepherd College were treated yesterday.

Dr. Cameron said today he regarded the situation as well in hand. Serum for the vaccination was obtained from the Maryland State Health Department at Hagerstown with supplies coming later from Pittsburgh.

ALEXANDRIA WATER SHORTAGE IS ACUTE

President of Utility Urges Customers to Be More Sparing in Use.

AID OF POLICE IS SOUGHT

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The water shortage in Alexandria is becoming serious, according to a statement issued yesterday by Urban S. Lambert, president of the Alexandria Water Co., and unless there is some relief in the way of rain within the next 30 days it will be much more so.

The statement of Mr Lambert sets forth that owing to the continued drought and the drying up of all springs and streams in this vicinity and contiguous territory, the company has been depending upon its storage reservoir at Barcroft to furnish the City of Alexandria with water. The statement continues:

"We appeal to every one to be conservative in the use of water and to prevent waste in every way. In this emergency existing we positively can not permit the use of hand hose for any purpose, and have asked the police department of the city to see that this is enforced.

"The company has arranged to use every available source of supply to meet conservative requirements and ask the cooperation of every user in conserving water."

It is stated that never before in the history of Alexandria has the situation been so serious, the supply having always been ample for every demand upon it. At the beginning of the period when other communities were feeling the need of conserving their water supply, the local company issued a statement to the effect that its reserve was sufficient to last six months. However, the drying up of streams and springs have changed the situation to an alarming extent.

The movement launched by the Roanoke Chamber of Commerce, calling on the Governor of Virginia to use his influence to have $10,000,000 spent for road work in the State during the coming year in anticipation of the collection of funds for this purpose, has been indorsed by the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce board of directors. The resolution provides that the money used for this purpose be paid back to the road fund at the rate of $2,500,000 a year.

The local trade body directors have authorized the business manager, Dan S. Hollenga, to draft a resolution that will have local conditions apply in the expenditure of the funds proposed.

Judge William S. Snow, a member of the Virginia game and inland fisheries commission, stated yesterday, in reply to a question as to the proposed closing of the upland game season in northern Virginia, that the season will open on November 15 as usual, this decision having been reached at a meeting of the commission last week. The season will continue to December 31.

Judge Snow stated he had made a personal investigation of the game conditions and found that the supply of quail and
